Subcommittee favors closing Memorial in fall

The Memorial School came one step closer to being closed as a Newton elementary school when the Subcommittee on School Enrollment and Building Utilization voted its recommendation to the full School Committee.

Members Paul Ash, Edward Prince, and Honora Kaplan all favor the plan to have Solomon Schechter Day School occupy the building in September and bus all the Memorial students to what would be called the Memorial-Spaulding School.

The formal vote on Chairman Ash's Plan 1 was 2-0-1, with Kaplan abstaining because of sections in the plan that deal with Angier, Warren, and Hamilton schools.

The subcommittee took straw votes on each subsection of Ash's plan as they went along before taking the formal vote.

Plan II that calls for closing Oak Hill elementary and Weeks Junior High School in 1979 was defeated by a 0-3 vote. However, the plan is feasible and saves about $1 million more than Plan I by 1985, so it will be sent to the full School Committee without the subcommittee's recommendation.

Other items in the recommended Plan I include redistricting of Warren Junior High School to accept Angier School graduates in 1977. Angier students currently attend Meadowbrook Junior High and South High. Putting the students into the North High feeder pattern makes it easier to convert South to a four-year high school by 1981.

Kaplan abstained on this vote because neither Angier or Warren PTAs were consulted.

The redistricting of Chestnut Hill students who live south of Beacon Street to Bowen School instead of Ward was approved 2-0-1 with Prince abstaining because he feels siblings of students attending Ward should be allowed to attend with busing provided.

The plan includes busing to Ward for students currently there and who want to continue, but offering them transportation to Bowen School. Kindergarteners would have to begin at Bowen. About 30 elementary students currently live in the area and they had been given the choice of attending either school, but up to now buses were only provided to Ward.

Another redistricting plan previously forgotten about calls for sending elementary students living between Commonwealth Avenue and Mill Street to Mason-Rice School instead of letting the students choose Ward or Mason-Rice. Three students in the area attending Ward will be allowed to continue.

The subcommittee approved of having Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink appoint a faculty committee to recommend reorganizing the grouping of grades K-8 to provide the best educational opportunities consistent with a four-year high school.

The committee, which would include the superintendent, would make its recommendation "consistent with enrollment projections and financial constraints'" Ash's report said.

The subcommittee tentatively

Schechter School 'interested' in buying

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Solomon Schechter Day School has a "very strong interest" in purchasing Memorial School from the city if the School Committee decides to close the school at the end of June 1977.

A spokesman for the Jewish K-8 school who has met with the mayor and city solicitor to discuss the possibilities of the sale said, "Our interest is active and firm."

Solomon Schechter currently has about 220 students in Weston where they were allowed to use the Brook School for the current year.

School officials were eying Memorial last year when the former School Committee voted to close it.

Previous to this school year Temple Emanuel in Newton Centre and Temple Mishkan Tefila in Chestnut Hill provided space for the students.

Robert Shuman, copresident of the Memorial School PTA, told the Subcommittee on School Enrollment and Building Utilization that to offset the effect on the Oak Hill Park community of Memorial's closing, the building could be occupied by Solomon Schechter School "who expresses great desire to occupy" the building.

Shuman reminded the School Committee members that they committed themselves to consideration of future use of the buildings to be closed. He said "all legal channels" would be used to stop the closing of the school if it is closed and nothing is done to help the community.

The 17-room school built in 1950 currently houses the library and several

New zoning for developments to be presented Monday

Two proposals that will radically change the city's handling of development and open space, especially on the south side, will be presented in public hearing before the Land Use Committee Monday night.

A "planned development" ordinance and a "cluster zoning" ordinance have been prepared by the Planning Department to provide a means of dealing with the few large parcels of land left in Newton

Planned development would apply only to parcels of land of at least 20 acres in single-residence districts

Cluster zoning would be used for parcels of 5 acres or more.

There are 11 pieces of land of 20 or more acres, according to the Planning Department. The parcels include cemeteries and golf courses.

There is no count of the parcels of 5 acres and up, but that information will be available at the public hearing, according to Ellen Reckhow of the Planning Department.

In a planned development, at least 50 percent of the land will be set aside as permanent open space, and minimum "usable open space" will be 85 percent of the total land area, leaving 15 percent to be used for dwellings.

The lots may be as small as 10,000 square feet in a planned development, and buildings could be 60 feet high.

In cluster zoning, which could be used in all residence districts, lot sizes could be reduced in a new development in exchange for the developer's keeping most of the leftover land as open space.

The overall density of a cluster development would not be increased. For example, on a five-acre parcel in Residence A, eight houses could be built on 25,000 sq. ft. lots. Under cluster zoning, eight houses could be built on 15,000 sq. ft. lots, with the remaining space able to be used for recreation by the residents and-or the public.

Cluster zoning would enable a developer to preserve natural features, such as woods or a pond, and build a more attractive development.

In both planned development and cluster zoning, the uses to which the open space would be put may well be the main problem to the Board of Aldermen.

If the open space is allowed to be kept as private land for the use of the residents of the planned or cluster development, several aldermen will object.

Both ordinances outline possible ways of dealing with the remaining open space in developments, which include deeding some to the city.

The two ordinances will be considered in reference to two proposed developments on south side Ward 8 — Nahanton Woods, a 112-unit condominium project, and another condominium project proposed for the Murley land on Dedham Street.

The ordinances may also affect action by the mayor and the Board of Aldermen on acquisition of the Novitiate land on Winchester Street.

Copies of both ordinances are available before the public hearing at the Planning Department, City Hall.

Information sought on Chestnut Hill murders

Newton police are still seeking information concerning the bludgeon murders of a Chestnut Hill attorney and his wife last Tuesday.

Preliminary reports from autopsies revealed that William Herbits, 82, and his wife, Julia, 72, were shot, slashed and beaten to death in their home at 249 Commonwealth Ave.

Det. Capt. Walter Drew said this week there are no suspects and still no "definite motive" for the murders.

"It seems like they were after some information" concerning his law practice in which his wife often served as his personal secretary, Drew said.

"We haven't ruled out any of the last eight cases he was working on," Drew said.

One case police are investigating involves a six-figure condominium land swindle in Puerto Rico in which Herbits' brother, Nathaniel Herbits of Pittsfield, was among about a dozen men allegedly cheated.

Charles Herbits of Natick, son of the murdered man, said in a telephone in-

Novitiate land to be appraised

Mayor Theodore Mann has asked the Planning Department to find out the cost of obtaining appraisals of the Novitiate land on Winchester Street, Ward 8.

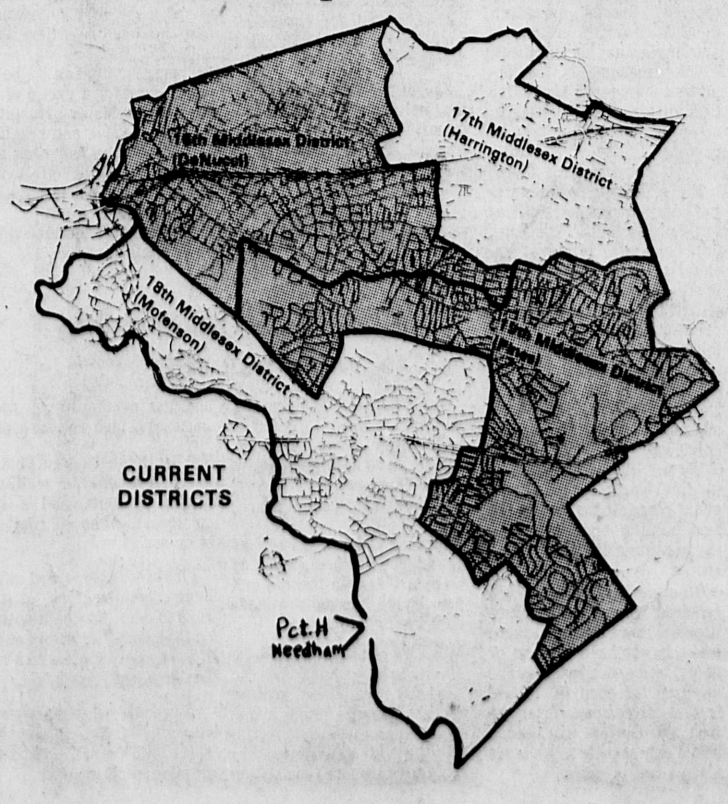
Mann refused to sign a resolution of the Board of Aldermen asking him to obtain appraisals of the 60-acre parcel with a view toward buying the property because he did not want to seem committed to the purchase of the land.

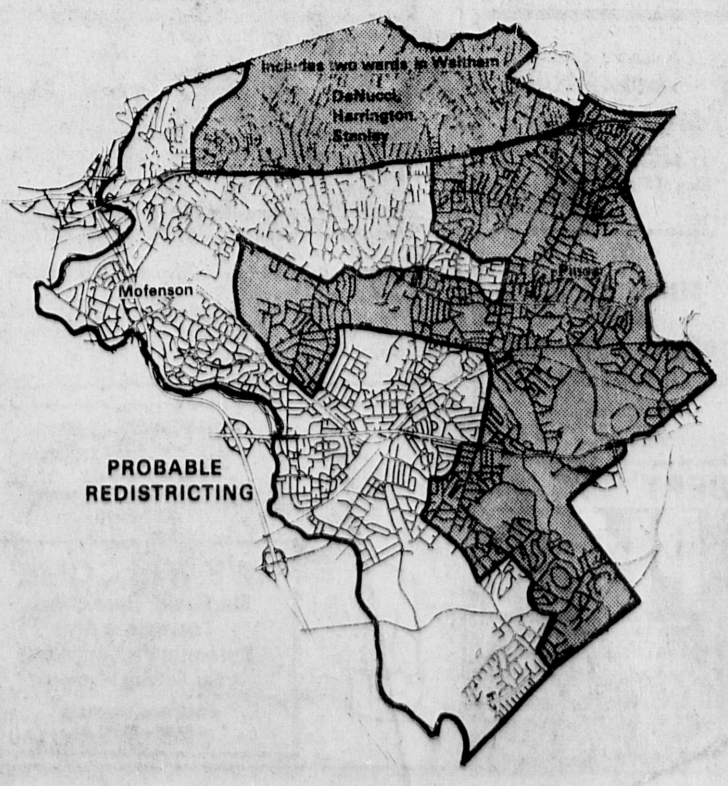
But he has asked Planning Director Charles Thomas to take the necessary steps to have the land appraised.

The Newton Conservators spearheaded a drive last fall to get the mayor to assent to city acquisition of the property for use as a park. They gathered over 2000 signatures on a petition to that effect and garnered support from many groups in the city.

The aldermanic City Planning Committee has voted to include the land acquisition in the new capital improvement program, and is in favor of development of a small portion of the land for housing.

City to share a state rep with Waltham





By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Newton will lose one state representative , share one with Waltham, and keep two representatives in the official House redistricting plan to be presented tomorrow (Jan. 7) according to one of the representatives involved.

State Rep. Peter Harrington, who now represents the north-side 17th District, State Rep. Joseph DeNucci of the 16th District, and William Stanley of Waltham in the 1978 election will all be vying for the new Newton-Waltham spot.

Districts represented by State Reps. Lois Pines and David Mofenson have been enlarged over their previous boundaries.

The new north-side district will comprise Ward 1, precincts 1 and 4; Ward 2, precincts 1 and 3; Ward 3, precincts 1, 3 and 4; Ward 4, precinct 4; and two wards in Waltham, according to Rep. Peter Harrington.

State Rep. Lois Pines' district under the new plan will include her present district plus precincts 2 and 3 of Ward 1, all of Ward 7 and precinct 2 in Ward 2.

Mofenson will retain his present sprawling district and take over Ward 4, precincts 1 and 3; West Newton Hill (Ward 3, precinct 2) and precinct 4 of Ward 2.

Mofenson said this week he is not sure whether his new district will keep the single precinct in Needham that he now represents, but thinks not.

The redistricting plan was drawn up in response to ballot questions, by which voters ordered the one-third reduction in the size of the House.

The current 240 members will be reduced to 160 in the 1978 elections.

The plan has been worked on for the past year under House Whip George Keverian, and is expected to go through more or less as is. Even the "losers" in the redistricting acknowledge that Keverian has done a good job.

One of the losers may be Harrington, who will have to run

Mofenson gives preview of his 1977 legislation

Rep. David Mofenson said this week he has purposely reduced the number of bills he has directly sponsored for 1977 and explained that filing or being a sponsor of a bill is often less important than being able to shape and safeguard it as it goes through the legislature.

Mofenson, who as chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs shapes at least 300 bills a session before his committee, will personally sponsor 79 bills, down from a high of 120 in 1973.

In discussing his legislative program, Mofenson warned against simply filing bills for the sake of filing bills. "There's too much paperwork in government anyway. Too often legislators file identical bills, when it would be far preferable to have them all sign onto a single piece of legislation," he said.

"It is important to remember that just passing laws will not solve many of the problems facing our state," Mofenson said. "Frequently we need new regulations or simply better enforcement of the laws we already have on the books. Sometimes it is quite useful to repeal or amend old laws that aren't working as originally intended. At other times pilot programs and study commissions can serve as instructive first steps for legislative ideas."

Mofenson's program for 1977 reflects these concerns. It includes a few refiles of previously defeated priority legislation, a variety of bills he is cosponsoring on behalf of the City of Newton, bills which reflect his special concerns with providing adequate human services and protecting individual rights of privacy, and bills in several new areas he believes are worthy of development.

Last year, Mofenson's bills designed to license social workers, strengthen the state's antitrust laws, and establish in Suffolk County an experimental program for jury selection reform almost made it through the legislature. This year he is more optimistic of securing their passage.

Along with Common Cause, he is sponsoring legislation to implement sunset laws for state programs and agencies. He is also continuing his efforts toward the establishment of special commissions for firefighting equipment safety and metric conversion education.

He also wants the state to improve its traffic enforcement laws, for their own value as well as a possible first step to permitting right-hand turns on certain red lights.

Mofenson is sponsoring legislation, with the City of Newton, to defer implementation of the 100 percent revaluation and to broaden current real estate tax exemptions for the elderly.

He wants to extend the provisions of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) code to state and local buildings. Other bills are directed at prohibiting discrimination against and providing opportunities for blind and other handicapped persons.

For 1977, Mofenson is also sponsoring bills to decrease the waiting period for no-fault divorce, reform the juvenile jury system, provide local option for those communities which want to repeal their blue laws, and establish a Massachusetts Economic Development Bank.

Some other Mofenson bills include those to improve the care and treatment of alcoholic minors, extend food stamps to SSI recipients, establish a sliding fee scale for day care services, require insurance companies to report dangerous products to the Executive Office of Consumer Affairs, and to provide cost-of-living adjustments for individuals caring for foster children.

Mofenson, chairman of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy, said that much of his privacy package will be included in the commission's legislative recommendations to be released next spring.

For information on, or copies of, any of the bills in Mofenson's 1977 program, contact Mofenson's office at the State House, Room 22, Boston 02133, or call 727-1321.

Backman moves to rebuild adequate human services

"There remains a huge chasm between the needs of the people and the human services which the state provides. One of our prime goals must be the rebuilding of the services that were reduced and frozen over the past few years," said Sen. Jack Backman recently.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Human Services Coalition, Backman cited child abuse and neglect as a first example. Backman said, "More than 2200 cases were reported to the Welfare Department in 1975, and 3400 are projected for 1976. In some areas there is a two-month delay before the department is able to make an initial response to a complaint involving serious abuse to a child.

"It is estimated that at the present time only a fraction of the total child abuse and neglect cases are referred to the department. What is required is a 24-hour-a-day "hot" line all over the state to report child abuse," Backman said.

Backman said he will recommend that additional funds be appropriated to give adequate staffing to the division.

"In day care we are in the process of making another tragic funding error," said Backman. "Our administration has cut day care to the point that it now provides day care only for parents who are on welfare. What we are doing, however, is excluding all persons not receiving welfare who may be working and require day care in order to avoid having them lose their employment and go on welfare themselves," said Backman.

Backman said he has filed legislation to create a day care program on a sliding-scale fee basis, according to ability to pay.

In the area of elderly affairs, Backman noted that community services for elders has been reduced to a level where only seniors on public assistance receive any help from the state. Home care was initially provided for elderly not on welfare.

"If we do not provide adequate services for those who are not on public assistance, they soon will be. We must provide the necessary staff for community services for those persons not on public assistance. If they do not receive it they will require public assistance or institutionalization," said Backman.

"In order to avoid this disastrous course, we need to expand home care services for the elderly at minimum to the extent such services were provided before the present administration cut them," said Backman.

The cost-of-living increase for the elderly, blind and disabled, mandated by the legislature in 1973, but eliminated in 1975 and 1976, is another Backman goal.

Backman has also filed a proposal for a constitutional amendment to provide for equal rights for the handicapped.

"Because of the state's financial crunch, as well as the fiscal problems which beset Boston, the solution to our problems must in part come from the federal government," Backman said. "We require federal and state job programs. The federal government must take over the welfare program and the necessity for a national health program is clear.

"Let us cry out to President Carter that we can wait no longer — we need jobs, we need help. Let us send the message to Washington that the success of the new administration lies in immediate action to restore not only the federal economy and the business climate, but that there must be a planned program of assistance to this Commonwealth and other states, as well as the large cities of the nation. Without the federal government's help, our outlook is bleak."

Reorganization voted, city solicitor says

The doubt about whether Public Works-Recreation departmental reorganization was really voted by the Board of Aldermen two weeks ago was dispelled Monday night, though not without a fight.

Unclear as to whether only the plan or the plan with the necessary ordinance changes had been voted, aldermen asked the opinion of City Solicitor Howard Levine, who ruled that the ordinance had been voted along with the plan.

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, whose absence from the voting caused the passage of the reorganization by one vote, asked that the Board rescind its vote of approval of the reorganization plan because of several typographical errors found in the ordinance revisions.

The errors all had to do with the Recreation Commission or Commissioner. They all were inadvertent, according to Levine, who prepared the revisions' and could easily be corrected.

Levine pointed out that all the ordinances may be changed by the Board of Aldermen at any time. The reorganization plan had to be accepted or rejected, without amendment.

Bullwinkle's motion to rescind the previous vote was ruled out of order by Vice President Matthew Jefferson.

The reorganization plan is principally concerned with the maintenance function of the Recreation Department, which will be taken over by the Public Works Department.

Many aldermen were afraid that this change would work to the detriment of the Recreation Department's ability to maintain its playgrounds and playfields, but head of the Recreation Department Russell Halloran raised only slight objections, at least publicly.

Home offices ordinance clears Land Use 6-0

Doctors and other professionals with home offices can continue their use if their building permits for building the office are at least six years old, according to state law.

This state law has done much to alleviate possible hardships created by the new amendment to Newton zoning ordinances allowing some home offices.

The amendment was approved 6-0 by the Land Use Committee Monday night, after several months of revising the Planning Department proposal.

The ordinance, now down to two pages, allows home offices for physicians, dentists, psychologists, lawyers, architects, and other recognized professionals, provided the office does not occupy a space greater than the square footage of 30 percent of the ground-floor area .

The user of the office must live in the house and may have not more than one nonresident employee.

Doctors, dentists, and other medical practitioners are given a bonus in the form of one less parking space required than required for other home offices.

Off-street parking spaces are required when a home office occupies more than 200 square feet. Except for a medical or dental office, one space will be required for each 200 square feet of office space after the first 200. Doctors will need a space only if their office is 400 square feet or more.

Home occupations, such as teaching music, tutoring, displaying merchandise not for sale, tailoring, and the like may be conducted in a home as long as it is secondary to the use of the house as a residence.

Nonresident employees are not permitted for home occupations, and no retail sales are permitted.

Specifically excluded from the definition of home occupation are real estate brokers. Use of a home for a real-estate office will be in violation of the law.

All variations from requirements of the ordinance are appealable through the Board of Aldermen, which may be able to grant permissive use in some cases.

Dr. Charles Thompson, who practices medicine in his Newton Highlands home, commented at the Land Use Committee meeting, "There seems to be hardly anything here that would interffere with anybody."

Thompson has been spokesman for a group of 25 Newton-Wellesley Hospital doctors who live and practice in Newton' who had been apprehensive of the effect the new ordinance would have on their practices. .

The Board of Aldermen votes on the ordinance Jan. 17.

Here's your chance to be heard on planning goals

Should Newton have more people, fewer people, or about the same number of people as now? Should Newton's large, old houses that become too expensive to maintain as single-family homes be preserved by converting them to two or three family units?

These and other questions about population and housing in Newton were asked at Newton's first public meeting on the city's comprehensive plan held by the Department of Planning and Development at Day Junior High School on Nov. 30, 1976.

At that meeting proposed population and housing goals for the city were presented for discussion. Feedback sheets were distributed for written comments and collected at the end of the meeting. In order to allow as many residents as possible to give their opinion of the proposed housing and population goals, all residents are asked to fill out and to mail to the Department of Planning and Development the accompanying form . The information will be incorporated into the finalized goals.

Newton's city charter requires the Department of Planning and Development to formulate a comprehensive plan to "form policies to govern the future physical development of the entire city."

In response to this mandate, the Department of Planning and Development has begun the comprehensive planning process. This process presents a unique opportunity for Newton residents to influence their . city's future.

In contrast to traditional staff- or consultant-written plans, Newton's comprehensive plan is to be developed jointly by the residents of the city and the Department of Planning and Development's comprehensive planning staff.

The plan will consist of separate elements on different aspects of the city such as population, housing, and land use. The first step in this process will be to set goals for the city. The second step will be to decide on policies and strategies to carry out those goals. At each step, public discussion and written commets will be encouraged.

At present, the plan is in the first step of the process — goal setting. The finalized population and housing goals, reflecting resident input will be presented at a second public meeting to be held later this month. At that meeting, proposed land use goals will also be discussed.

The Department of Planning and Development urges all residents to become personally involved in this long-range planning process by filling out the form and attending future comprehensive planning meetings.

Questionnaire

MAIL-BACK FORM

Residents of Newton are being asked to participate in the preparation of the city's comprehensive plan. Please help by expressing your opinions. Please answer the following questions concerning population and housing goals for Newton and then mail this form to Comprehensive Planning Section, c-o Dept. of Planning & Development, Newton City Hall, Newton, MA 02159.

Please indicate what village you live in:

1. There are about 89,000 people living in Newton, down from the high of 95,000 reached in 1965. Should Newton have more people, fewer people, or about the same number of people as now?

2. While median income of Newton residents varies almost 300 percent among different areas of the city, the citywide median income has remained higher than that of the Boston metropolitan area. Should Newton have more, less, or the same variety of income groups as now?

3. Current data indicates a change in household characteristics in Newton. There has been a decline in the number of families in the city and an increase in the numbers of single-person households and group households. Should Newton have more, less or the same variety of households?

4. The northern portion of Newton has a higher population density than the southern portion. How should population be distributed throughout the city?

5. The rising cost of housing inhibits many people from living in Newton and subjects many Newton residents to financial strain. Should the City of Newton assure housing opportunities to people of all income groups?

6. As Newton's housing stock gets older, more and more repairs will be needed. Should Newton urge continued maintenance and repair of the city's present housing stock?

7. There are many older large single-family houses in Newton whose architectural style contributes to the special character of the city. If these houses become too expensive to maintain, should they be preserved by converting them to two or more units, or should they be demolished and replaced by new housing?

8. Newton's housing consists mostly of single-frame homes. Should Newton have a greater variety of housing types (duplex, garden apartments, row houses) that provide different-sized housing units (studio, 1 bedroom, etc.)?

School Committee reelects officers

The chairman, vice chairman, and secretary of the School Committee were re-elected at the organizational meeting of the Committee Monday.

Meeting in the Frank Frazier Room, conference room A of the Education Center at the renovated old F.A. Day Junior High School, the seven members present re-elected Alvin Mandell as chairman of the nine-member Committee. The vote was 5-1-1' with Manuel Beckwith against and Mandell abstaining.

Henry Delicata was elected vice chairman with a 5-1-1 vote, with Beckwith against and Delicata abstaining. Voting in favor were Honora Kaplan, Paul Ash, Robert Cohen, Edward Prince, and Mandell.

Lillian Radlo was unanimously elected secretary.

Mrs. Kaplan nominated Beckwith to be renamed chairman emeritus, but the senior member of the Committee refused the title.

Beckwith, who begins his 20th year representing Ward 4, said the title "has been some center of conflict as time went on," and asked that the title be temporarily dropped after having moved that it be abolished.

$5000 grant for guidelines on historic rehab

Newton is one of 35 cities and towns in the state to receive a grant for historic projects, according to information from the office of Secretary of State Paul Guzzi.

Newton was awarded a $5000 "survey and planning grant."

Planning & Community Development Director Charles Thomas said this week that the money will be used for a "guidebook" for rehabilitation and restoration of buildings in the Upper Falls Historic District.

Of the total of $303,400 in grants, $221,000 was earmarked for restoration and purchase of old places. The remainder was allocated to 13 communities, including Newton, for inventorying and planning projects, on a matching-funds basis.

The grants, which are federal funds, are distributed by the Massachusetts Historical Commission. Guzzi heads the commission.

First court stenotypist starts 'another 50 years' of reporting

Madeline A. May of Newton, the first stenotype court reporter in New England, was honored recently by the Massachusetts Shorthand Reporters Assn. at a holiday party.

Miss May is celebrating her 50th anniversary as a reporter, and is going to retire, she said, "after another 50 years."

Congratulatory telegrams and letters from friends, Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin, Boston Mayor Kevin White, and Gov. Michael Dukakis were read, and Miss May was presented with a commemorative plaque from her contemporaries by Santo "Joe" Aurelio, president of the Massachusetts Shorthand Reporters Association.

President Gerald Ford sent Miss May a letter congratulating her on 50 years of reporting.

Although Miss May has recently had two hip operations, she is still a working reporter. Her specialty is the reporting of medical conventions.

The road for stenotypists 50 years ago was not easy. Miss May learned stenotypy in 1918, but because most reporters used shorthand she was not allowed to work for Federal Court until 1933, after she bid on and won a contract.

After 1933, she took many important court cases and became one of the principal conference reporters in New England.

She served as President of the Massachusetts Shorthand Reporters Association from 1960 to 1963 and was active in the Associated Stenotypists of America before it disbanded in 1969.

She assisted for years in free "clinics" for advanced students and neophyte reporters and assisted countless students, reporters, lawyers, and clients with her expertise.

Miss May lives at 143 Allen Ave., Waban.

Salute

Legislative aides at the State House usually receive more criticism than praise.

So it is appropriate to report that one of them was responsible for saving the lives of three small boys who fell through the ice on the Mystic River in Medford Christmas morning.

George H. (Chick) McDermott, chief court officer of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, was in the kitchen of his Medford home when he heard a cry for help.

Looking out the window, McDermott saw four boys floundering in the icy river waters. He shouted to his wife to telephone the Medford Fire and Police Departments, then raced to the river, dove in fully clothed and rescued one of the boys who was crying for help.

McDermott is 56 years old and has a heart condition. But he didn't stop to think that a plunge into the icy river and the exertion of swimming out to the struggling boys might have serious and even fatal consequences for him. All he thought about was saving the boys from drowning.

Fire-fighters arrived in response to Mrs. McDermott's frantic call, assisted in pulling the boys to shore and rushed them to a hospital. One youngster died in the hospital.

McDermott, however, had averted an even worse Christmas tragedy. Except for his heroics in risking his own life, all four boys would have perished in the Mystic River.

McDermott is a former State Representative from Medford. His courage and disregard of his own safety and well-being in order to save those boys reflected credit not only on him but on the State Legislature which employs him.

Our salute to George McDermott.

Bell's clubs

Attorney general-designate Griffin Bell has announced that he will resign from the two exclusive clubs in Georgia to which he belongs since they do not permit black or Jewish members. He has explained that the attorney general stands for equality before the law and "it would be improper" to stay in the clubs. Yet, don't all Americans stand for equality before the law? Does membership in such clubs deny such a stance for the ordinary citizen?

It would appear that even the constitutional guarantee of freedom of peaceful assembly might be interpreted to mean that Americans could gather with whomever they wanted and limit that gathering. The right to entertain one's own friends, those with whom one is comfortable and congenial, can hardly be denied. Club membership can be regarded as merely an extension of that privilege.

The difference is that the exclusion of blacks and Jews in particular is not merely a matter of personal preference but a sign of continued degredation of people who have suffered considerably in the past. No one would complain if even the President of the United States belonged to a club limited to blue-eyed, freckled, six-toed, left-handed descendants of an 18th Century immigrant, if he so qualified. But denying membership in what is primarily a social or athletic club to members of minority groups is becoming increasingly un-American.

There is no place in the United States for such discrimination any more. The failure to realize it reflects upon both Bell and President-elect Carter.

The prisoner who wants to die

By Lillian Ambrosino

Those who oppose the death penalty seem to have overlooked one element — the condemned prisoner who wants to die.

Their arguments always assume the state as the sole taker of life and life, any life, as better than death. Death, therefore, is the ultimate punishment and becomes cruel and unusual, inhuman, and-or immoral.

The words differ with the individual philosophical or professional bent of mind, but the conclusion is always the same: Death, as the ultimate punishment, is an activity absolutely to be forbidden to the state.

The case of Gary Gilmore, the now famous Utah Prisoner convicted of murder, shakes these assumptions to their very cores. He wants to die: he wants it so desperately that he attempted suicide twice to circumvent the delays to his plea for a prompt execution. Even those who suspect Gilmore as a manipulating personality would be convinced of the seriousness of those attempts.

It is important to separate the legal from the moral issues in this tragic story. There is no issue of legal capacity. Gilmore's words are filled with intelligence and experience. His IQ is reputedly very high and half his 36 years have been spent behind bars. He freely admits his guilt and now seems to be seeking surcease from a wasted life and a futile future.

Neither is there a question of improper legal procedures or a denial of due process. The state charged Gilmore with a brutual and senseless slaying; a jury found him guilty in a fair trial. The state did not tell Gilmore he had to die before exercising his right of appeal. That was his idea, and it set off a bizarre chain of events that included suicide attempts, resuscitations, parole approvals of executions being delayed by several Supreme Court appeals. Gilmore is still waiting to die. His third execution date has been set for Jan. 17.

The problem this grotesque tale raises has little to do with the validity of the death penalty itself. The Supreme Court has yet to declare it unconstitutional. Indeed the founding fathers had no moral or legal problem with the imposition of death for premeditated murder. The problem is the implications.

The American Civil Liberties Union, long an opponent of the death penalty, is afraid that the execution of Gilmore will end the 12-year moratorium on executions. The principal is more imPOrtant to the ACLU, the citadel of individual rights, than this individual's desire.

Gilmore's willing, knowledgeable waiver of his rights makes no difference. He must live at all costs, even though it becomes a torture for him, so that others will not die, even though they might wish it. (Robert Excell White, a prisoner sentenced to death in Texas has stated that he wants the state to execute him because he lacks the courage to do it himself0.

The perverse turn in these well-meaning efforts is probably the result of the discomfort most of us feel at the thought of death. Often this is so great that the mere thought of death as a rational alternative seems impossible — unless, of course, it concerns euthanasia or abortion. I can not say from the comfort and safety of a desk chair which is worse: a death that is irrevocable, (absent a belief in a hereafter) or a life that is intolerable (absent a belief in life at all costs). This will depend on the individual, his or her values and his or her predicaments.

But just as I can conceive of death as a rational alternative to a terminal illness, I can accept it as a rational alternative by a sane and guilty prisoner to a hopeless life in jail. Otherwise it would seem that a state-imposed life, as might have been true for Gilmore, would become a form of cruel punishment in denying him the most basic choice of life or death.

The Gilmore affair is a reminder of the limitations of the noblest goals. We are a life-avowing culture, especially with the promise of a bright, new year. But even a culture that cherishes life can understand that there can be more dignity in a knowing choice to die than a forced compelling of life.

Although there is not yet a legal right to die, a prisoner's right of privacy, which includes a say over the use of his body, should include the right to choose life over death or death over life. The message of the Gilmore case is that this choice is still in the hands of the state — even, as it now appears, if it has to revive a prisoner in order to execute him.

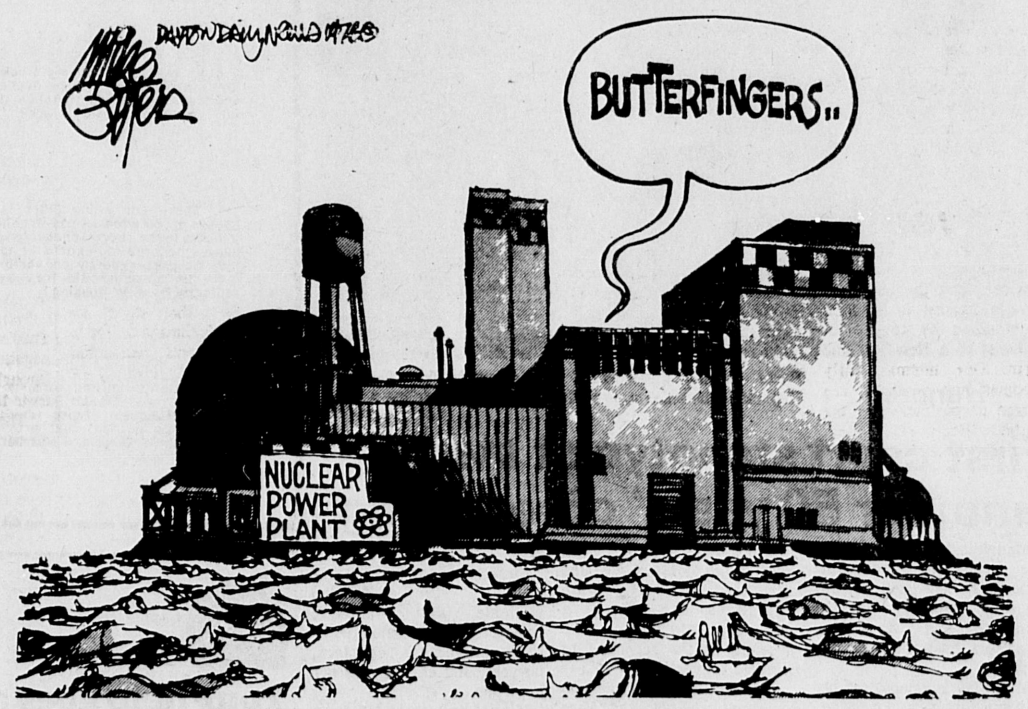
Major industries are bent on suicide

Commentary by Gus Tyler, national columnist



NEW YORK—Five of America's major industries are in danger of committing suicide. They are aircraft, autos, computers, electronics, and chemical engineering.

These giants in the American economy are exporting their most valuable asset: advanced technology. They are peddling their know-how to other countries whose companies, in turn, use these techniques to compete against American producers.

These findings are contained in a report prepared for the U.S. Dept. of Labor by Jack Baranson, president of the Developing World Industry and Technology Inc.

The transfer of American technology to other countries is not althogether new. This dangerous export of out key resource has been going on for some years — to the serious detriment of American manufacture and American employment.

But, in the past, the kind of technical information that American corporations distributed around the world was of a "mature" character; that is, the sort of data that was of fairly common knowledge in the production community in many lands.

But now, says Baranson, in an article in the current issue of Foreign Policy, "the technology is increasingly the most sophisticated available, and its release is often under terms that assure the rapid and efficient implantation of an interationally competitive productive capability. This trend represents a radical departure from traditional transfer modes — direct investment and licensing – in which the technology released was, for the most part, based on "mature" product lines and available production techniques."

In the past, American transfers were from the U.S.-based home corporation to wholly owned subsidiaries.

Hence, it was argued by the multinational corporations, the profits made by the overseas plants fed American corporate coffers back home and, in addition, these overseas factories would supply jobs to American workers by using component parts made here.

But, says Baranson, these corporations 3? '3? now find attractive the sale of industrial technology to noncontrolled foreign enterprises."

In cool lingo, Baranson notes that these changes have profound implications for the future competitivness of U.S. based industry and its ability to continue to generate production jobs for U.S. labor."

Not only is the United States losing its edge in the competition for world markets. Other countries — with American know-how — now invade our markets.

"The release of front-end technology to commercially astute and aggressive foreign enterprises can prove to have especially damaging consequences for other U.S. producers in that industry."

In short, American corporations are busy creating a Frankenstein monster who is able and eager to destory his creator.

The industries that Beranson discusses are the so-called heavy, capital-intensive, sophisticated manufacturers. They are precisely the industries that were supposed to expand and to absorb all those workers who were losing their jobs in the light, labor-intensive trades as a result of imports from countries that pay pennies an hour for their labor.

But if autos, computers, aircraft, electronics and chemical engineering are now about to shrink, too, where shall the 20 million blue collar workers find employment in this land?

Her affair went from torrid to horrid

By Bob Greene, national columnist

True Romances, 1977:

John and Mary (names have been changed to protect my health) have been man and wife for 12 years. John is an iron worker. Mary, who stands 5-foot-2, and weighs 180 pounds, is a typist. John works days. Mary works nights.

Mary is proud of her family life. "My family has no derelicts in it," she said. "I know karate."

But love, as it will, winked at Mary. It winked in the person of Elroy, a thrice-divorced civil service file clerk. He met Mary one night after work, at an informal gathering in a tavern. He asked her to dance. She accepted. When the song ended, she said to him:

"You're a jerk."

Several months passed. Then, one night at work, Mary received a telephone call from Elroy. Elroy wanted to know if Mary would like to go out on a date.

For all the years since her marriage to John, Mary had been faithful. But by this point, according to Mary, "you get aggravated and disgusted and stuff. I was super-bored and not taking part in activities or hobbies." So when Elroy called, Mary was receptive.

"Are you still a jerk?" she inquired.

"No," Elroy said.

"Okay," Mary said. "Pick me up after work."

And thus Mary, a mother of four daughters, began her tempestuous affair.

At first, she thought it would be merely a lark:

"I thought, hey, I'll go out with this dope and spend his money."

But the fling turned into romance:

"He treated me real gentle and all that crap."

Soon they were meeting on the sly three and four times a week. "We'd drink or eat or hit a motel," Mary said.

Love was not blind; Mary knew that Elroy had a few minor character flaws.

"I knew he was a nut," she said. "He'd been married three times, and he mentioned something about being in an alcoholic drying-out ward once, and I knew that he was a home invader. He burglarized apartments. But he told me he was through with all that. Still, sometimes when we were drinking, his pupils would dilate, and he would talk about crazy things, like doing more home invasions to support his habit. He never mentioned what his habit was and I never asked. I was very attracted to him physically."

For a year, Mary and Elroy met in the shadows. Then, on a recent Sunday, Mary borrowed her husband's car and she and Elroy went for a ride. Mary's husband John, who had borrowed another car, saw them cruising, and cut them off on a side street.

"John was going to punch Elroy's face in," Mary said.

But Elroy ran away.

That evening, John took his four daughters to a shopping center. While they were inside a store, Elroy came to the parking lot, stuck a rag in the gas tank of John's car, lit it, and tried to blow the car up.

Luckily the wind blew the flame out. But later that night, John and Mary looked out their front window and noticed that John's car had exploded.

After the fire department had doused the flames and the charred hulk of the car remained on the street, Mary went to Elroy's house to confront him.

"Did you go and torch my husband's car?" Mary said.

"Oh, no," said Elroy. "I have been sleeping."

"I do not want to see you again," Mary said.

Several days later, the apartment of Mary's cousin Bertha was burglarized and set on fire.

"I found Elroy with some of Bertha's possessions," Mary said. "He had taken seven bottles of liquor, a pair of handcuffs and a gold badge that a police officer had given Bertha as a memento. Bertha works in the sheriff's department in the field of locking up prostitutes.

Mary again confronted Elroy with the evidence.

"I cannot remember," said Elroy. "I must have had an alcoholic blackout."

Mary said to Elroy, "I am giving you the brush-off."

She said to Elroy's brother, "Tell him if he ever comes near me again, I will blow his brains out."

John, for his part, said, "I was going to tear Elroy apart limb by limb. I'm a pretty big boy. But I decided not to, because I might get arrested for it."

Now John and Mary's marriage is on solid ground again.

"We never used to shop together," Mary said. "That has changed."

"There's one thing you can say about my wife," John said. "She is not the worst woman in the world."

Work to prevent oil spills

To the Editor:

Dec. 22, I attended an emergency congressional subcommittee hearing, concerning the tanker Argo Merchant's grounding on Nantucket shoals in Massachusetts, and subsequent oil pollution. From the testimony, five points should be noted:

Six Massachusetts fishermen testified that many tankers frequently take short cuts through the Nantucket shoals, but no one has reported it to the Coast Guard.

There have been 14 major oil spills off New England shores since 1967. I, like many fellow citizens, have trekked upon black— gummed, polluted beaches and believed the government was working to successfully prevent these mishaps from recurring.

Gov. Dukakis, Congressman Studds, and Senator Kennedy, all Democrats, in a partisan attack, unjustifiably condemned the Republican administration for being too lenient on oil pollution. Congress has vigorously fought the Ford administration's shipping regulatory proposals, saying they are not strong enough, without trying to seriously amend the proposals.

Congress is using the Coast Guard, which acted very competently in the pollution crisis, as a scapegoat by demanding the military exceed its congressionally-given authority in such situations, by ignoring shipping rights on international waters.

Senator Clairborne Pell (D.-R.I.), recalling his Navy days, wondered why the ship wasn't torpedoed. He implied, unfairly, but dramatically, that the Coast Guard was inept for not having burned the oil. I, while talking to Admiral Stewart, the Coast Guard's Regional Commander, during the hearing, encouraged him to declare that he would have an immediate testing to ignite the No. 6 industrial oil. Capt. Shubert (USCG), testified that the flammable properties of the No. 6 oil are just above asphalt, and in the cold Atlantic Ocean conditions would not burn, as the subsequent tests verified.

My conclusion is this. All of us share the responsibility for our pollution problems. We must work towards constructive implementation of regulations formulated in 1973, during the London Conference of prevention of oil spillage as referred to in testimony by Russell Train, Federal E.P.A. administrator.

Since these spills are likely to increase in the future, due to the Georges Banks drillings, and due to New England's and America's desperate need of oil, technologists must design reliable, large-capacity pumping units which can easily be transported by air to any emergency pollution zone area for fast transfer purposes and water clean-up. The Congress must act promptly to provide funds to implement such development. Also, an aircraft-type airport, for control of ships on the sea as they come near land or port, should be developed.

Hopefully Congress will wake-up during the next session and get down to the business of running this country. Congress, stressing the Watergate story to obfuscate the Johnson War and city rioting of the Democratic administration, now don't have Republicans to kick around and blame for Democratic mismanagement.

Every Republican platform, such as 1970 Massachusetts Republican Platform, Page 6, Enviromental Affairs Section 5, calls for strengthening the laws against oil spills, and Section 12 says polluters must pay for pollution damages. Public protection is Republican philosophy.

Social responsibilities should know no partisanship, however the majority party delays passing meaningful legislation.

Pollution control is necessary. We must provide public pressure to attain necessary anti-pollution legislation.

Village libraries

To the Editor:

I was pleased to read that Virginia Tashjian, Newton head librarian, has stated that "our unique village concept warrents the maintenance of eight of the 10 branches in spite of the cost."

Newton does have a "unique village system" and every effort should be made to improve as well as maintain the quality of life in the villages and neighborhoods.

The local library is an important part of neighborhood life. The services in the branches should be improved, and branches in communities such as Oak Hill Park and Upper Falls should only be closed under extreme circumstances.

Oak Hill Park is likely to lose its school soon, and it would be unfortunate for the community to lose its library also. If both branches are closed, there will be no branch library south of Rte. 9, a circumstance hardly conducive to neighborhood use of community resources.

In general, the services in the branch libraries whould be improved, not reduced. There are rumors that it is planned to curtail evening hours in the Highlands branch in the near future. This is the very time when the library can be used by those who work during the day. Reducing the hours will reduce use. The next thing we shall hear is that the Highlands branch is not used enough to warrant the expense of keeping it open!

Now that we know that Mrs. Tashjian is committed to the concept of branch libraries I trust that she will take the next step and consider keeping the Oak Hill Park and Upper Falls branches open and maintaining and improving the services in all the branches.

Convenience

To the Editor

Twice during the past week we've awakened to a world transformed by the silent whiteness of a New England storm. Our normal daily schedules and activities are delayed or postponed by the weather. Nature reminds us one more of our place in the chain of natural events — that despite technology's efforts to conquer nature, nature still dominates us.

Amidst our pleasure with the beauty of the scene around us, practicality intrudes. We glance into the refrigerator and realize we must go out for milk.

As we bundle into our heavy jackets, boots and mittens. we rejoice in the knowledge that we live within walking distance of a village shopping area. Without first having to shovel out the car and driveway, we have access to the stores we need.

As we meet our friends and neighbors trudging through the snow and greet our local merchants in their stores, we feel we are fortunate to live in one of Newton's residential areas that surrOunds a business district.

Pleasant place

To the Editor:

I would like to heartily congratulate the staff of the Newton Cooperative Bank Lower Falls Branch for its wonderful Christmas spirit, and old-fashioned effort.

Manager Mary Curtin, her assistant, Karen Ramrath, and teller, Pat Fahey, rented or made costumes in keeping with the season. During Christmas week, bank customers were served by Santa's lady helpers and elves, while Santa himself greeted passersby outside the bank.

The effect was delightful, and we customers all went away with a quicker step and a smile. I want to publicly thank these thoughtful people and also to add that they are just as pleasant to deal with the other 51 weeks of the year!

Recyclables

To the Editor:

Now that winter has arrived, snow and extreme cold may mean delays in trash collection. In the event of inclement weather, please do not put recyclables out for collection.

The street department has the following priorities:

To clear the roads of snow and ice.

To collect trash.

To collect recyclables.

Save yourself extra work of bringing barrels and bundled papers back indoors or potential aggravation of watching your recyclables thrown in with the trash. Keep your bottles, cans and paper indoors for the next weekly collection date in the event of snow or extreme cold.

No bids

To the Editor:

It has recently come to my attention that the public works commissioner has recommended that the contract of the heating, ventilating and air conditioning repairs to Newton North High School be awarded without competitive bidding.

A conflict of interest is in the making by allowing a company to survey and do the work, without allowing others to bid. The accepted practice would have been to engage a professional engineer to make a survey of the entire project. This would have enabled the city to put the job out for competitive bids. It would have also enabled the city to have a clerk in charge to oversee the project and to assure that the work would be performed as designed by the engineer.

I believe that the city's personnel are leaving themselves exposed to adverse criticism by allowing a condition as described above to exist.

To say the least, a job of $950,000 awarded without competitive bidding is unheard of. As a concerned Newton resident, I resent the city spending nearly a million dollars on construction in a manner disregarding all of the safeguards imposed by the public bidding laws.

City bid for $2.9m rejected by Feds

Newton's application to the federal Economic Development Administration for $2.9 million for street repair and reconstruction has been rejected.

The federal government announced the $2 billion program in October, calling for applications for funding for local public works projects to provide immediate aid to areas with high unemployment rates and low per capita incomes.

Members of Mayor Theodore Mann's administration did not fully expect that Newton's application would be accepted.

But when communities such as New Bedford' Fall River, Lynn, Lawrence, Springfield and Worcester were also rejected, the Mass. Mayors' Assn. starting thinking of suing the EDA.

Jane Pitt, Mayor Mann's assistant, said this week that she preferred trying to get the Carter administration to fund another, larger program, under which Newton would stand a better chance of being funded.

Rep. Michael Harrington has announced his intention of filing legislation that would create a $7.5 billion program.

Paul St. housing may still get HUD funds

The proposal for a 43-unit apartment house for the elderly on Paul Street, Newton Centre, shows signs of life, according to Planning Director Charles Thomas this week.

Thomas spent much of the day Tuesday in the Boston office of the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development and came away feeling about "optimistic," he said, HUD funding for the elderly housing.

Modifications in the plan and decrease in the size to satisfy neighborhood objections resulted in the 43-unit plan, which was passed by the Board of Aldermen in spite of fears that the per-unit cost would be higher than HUD would approve.

Thomas said HUD has asked for a revised "total development program," meaning the total cost of the project — land and construction.

Thomas said the estimated total cost is now $1.8 million, a decrease from earlier estimates because of the deletion of some features.

Besides cutting the cost of the building, Thomas said, the city will contribute $60,000 of federal community-development funding toward the project instead of the $40,000 previously earmarked.

The new development program should be ready by the end of this month, Thomas said.

If the project is approved by HUD, the Board of Aldermen will have to vote on an extension of the permissive use to build that it previously granted.

Open back door used in one of five breaks

A gold watch and $250 in cash were taken from an unlocked home Monday, according to Newton police.

Joseph Restuccia of 49 Faxon St., Nonantum, told police that someone entered his home through the unlocked back door sometime between 7:15 and 8 p.m. Monday and took a brown crocheted handbag with the money in it and the watch.

Sometime Sunday before 8:30 a.m. two flags valued at $100 each were taken from the Hammond Park Condominiums, 10 Hammond Pond Parkway. An American flag and a Hammond Park flag, 5 by 6 feet in area, were taken from the poles.

Jordon Mishara of 37 Radcliff Rd., Waban, had an electric typewriter, a camera, and two color television sets taken from his home between 4 and 9:25 p.m. Sunday.

Early New Year's Day a car belonging to Edna Pitti of 24 Melbourne Ave., Newtonville, was broken into. Taken were a CB radio worth $120, a camera and flash worth $235, a suction unit worth $128, and portable oxygen valued at $80.

Robert Magnet of 119 McCarthy Rd., Oak Hill, returned home on Jan. 1 to discover more than $1100 of goods missing from his home.

Gone were an 1863 pocket watch valued at $800, gold cufflinks worth $200, rings worth $120, a $75 necklace, and a $50 calculator.

A drill and the bit used to drill three holes made to enter the home of Ronald Viavattene of 349 Linwood Ave., Newtonville, were found in the cellar of the home Dec. 31.

Missing were two rolls of dimes, two rolls of quarters, and a $50 calculator. A ring and $15 in assorted coins were taken from another person at that address. Entrance was gained sometime between Dec. 25 and Dec. 31.

Fire and police unions begin 7th month of talks

Presidents of the fire and police unions will be sitting down with mediators and city officials this week with hopes to iron out disaugreements.

Both unions have been without new contracts since July 1, 1976.

Police union President Thomas Fleming said that negotiations have progressed through about the 12th page of their 15-page offer.

"The progress being made on our side is pretty good so far," Fleming said. Their next negotiations meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 11.

Rick Ciccone, president of the firefighters' union, said there's a good reason why talks have gone one on for six months and no agreement has been reached' but he has pledged not to talk about negotiations to the press.

Ciccone and city officials will talk more Friday, Jan. 7, and if there is no progress, he said he would explain why negotiations are stalled.

Fleming said he, too, would break the silence if there is no progress after Tuesday's meeting.

Personnel Director John Ritchie said negotiations have been going on for six months "because we haven't been able to reach agreement."

"The city has stated its position in both cases," he said.

Newton Jaycees held a Christmas party Dec. 15, 1976, for 27 Newton children. They were taken shopping, had lunch at Pomroy House, donated by McDonald's of Newton; and then sang Christmas carols and wrapped presents. Kings also furnished gifts for the children. Energy information useful to consumers

In purchasing major household appliances consumers have traditionally been concerned with function, cost, and also aesthetics. Today, however, increasingly sophisticated consumers are asking about the efficiency of particular products.

"Energy efficiency information need not remain a mystery," said Rep. David J. Mofenson, House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elder Affairs. "Massachusetts currently requires that all refrigerators, freezers, and air conditioners be labelled to indicate their energy efficiency. Knowing the facts is not only good for the environment, but it is good for the pocketbook."

Mofenson commended Consumer Affairs Secretary Christine Sullivan for her efforts at publicizing information on the energy consumption of various applicances. Last month she issued a report on the energy costs of best-selling, brand-name refrigerators, the first of what she hopes will be a series of useful consumer tools.

"For example, if you're planning to purchase a 15, 17, 19 or 20 cubic foot refrigerator, you will find it helpful to know not only the purchase price of different brands of each size, but what you will probably have to pay over a 10-year period for the energy to run that refrigerator," said Mofenson.

Copies of the report are available from both the Office of Consumer of Affairs, and from Rep. Mofenson's office at the State House.

In 1975 Congress passed the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. As a result the Federal Energy Administration, the Federal Trade Commission and the National Bureau of Standards must now develop national standards for the energy consumption of appliances, and uniform labelling requirements will also have to be met. The national regulations are to take precedence over state laws.

Fire Capt. Meinhart named assistant chief

Newton Fire Department Capt. Karl W. Meinhart has been promoted to an assistant chief in the department effective last week, Acting Chief Harvey Preble has announced.

The new assistant chief joined the department Dec. 28, 1956, and was promoted to lieutenant on July 6, 1965.

In May, 1973, he received his associate's degree in fire science from Massachusetts Bay Community College and in the same month was promoted to captain.

Assistant Chief Meinhart graduated from Newton High School in 1948 and served in the Air Force from 1948 until 1952.

He is currently assigned to Station Three in Newton Centre and lives on Carver Road in Newton Highlands.

Drinan outlines 4-point program to revitalize economy

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) recently stressed the need for renewed efforts in dealing with Massachusetts' economic and unemployment problems.

"The economy was recovering nicely for a time in early 1976," Drinan said, "but the latest economic reverses have indicated that we must step up our efforts if we are to get more people back to work and stimulate business growth and prosperity in the near future."

At hearings sponsored by the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition recently, Drinan emphasized that "federal government must take a leadership role in four major areas in order to stimulate the economy of Massachusetts, not just in the short term but for years to come.

"First, we must deal with the problem of unemployment and jobs. The national unemployment rate has now gone over 8 percent again, an intolerable situation. President-elect Carter and the Congress will be working in future months to fashion a combination of jobs programs, economic aid and tax relief so as to stimulate the economy and turn around our present economic downslide.

"Second, we must devise a national energy policy which will deal with one of America's most troubling problems, the dependence on foreign oil.

Energy has become one of the most important aspects of our economy, both in terms of its high price and the shortage of supplies. We must, therefore, speed up our efforts in developing new energy supplies while applying an intensive energy conservation program throughout the country.

"Third," Drinan continued, "we must deal with the problems of the cities, which are carrying heavy and costly social burdens on behalf of the country as a whole. We cannot pretend that the United States can be prosperous while our cities go bankrupt. Means have to be formulated to deal with the difficult urban problems so that urban and rural America can both emerge with economic vitality in the coming years

"And finally, we must examine federal spending patterns to insure that Massachusetts and the Northeast receive a fair share of federal funds in ongoing programs. By insuring that our region receives a fair share of government funds, we would receive a new economic stimulus in the form of increased program grants and aid."

Community School activities. The spokesman said he doubts there would be any reluctance by the school of keeping the library there, and community and after-school use of the building would have to be worked out.

Paul Ash, chairman of the subcommittee, said after Monday night's meeting that the city would want a buy-back provision on the school in case enrollment increases beyond expectations. He also said the building would immediately be turned back to the city should Solomon Schechter vacate it.

Lawrence Suttenberg, president of the school and its Board of Trustees, said this week that the 45-member board will meet next Tuesday or Wednesday if the full School Committee votes to close Memorial.

Suttenberg said the trustees "would immediately put in a request to buy the land" to begin the lengthy process outlined in the city ordinance for the sale of city-owned land.

The ordinance requires a process of review and hearings that take about 150 days, City Planner Charles Thomas said.

If the aldermen and city departments determine that the land is available for sale and should be sold, the offer of purchase must be held by the aldermen for 60 days to allow for any recommendations.

The City Planning Committee must then decide if the land should be sold, and this decision is reviewed by the full Board.

If the Board feels the land should be sold, the Finance Committee then must publicly advertise for other bids for the land and, with the help of those bids, determine the minimum selling price of the land.

The Finance Committee will then make its recommendation to the full Board, and the Board will make its recommendation to the mayor.

Mayor Theodore Mann has the final say in the matter.

President Suttenberg, who lives at 5 Montrose St., Newton, said the school is accredited by the state and spends half of the teaching time on secular subjects and half on the teaching of Hebrew and Jewish studies.

recommended changing to a K-5, 6-8, 9-12 organization in 1984 on the south side of the city, with the north side of the city switching to it in 1986.

Hamilton School is slated to be closed in 1981 when it is expected that all the students will fit into Angier School. Kaplan voted against this plan because it included the contingency that some students would go to Williams School in 1981 if Angier could not hold them all.

The subcommittee recommended that the mayor and aldermen find future uses for Weeks and Hamilton that are acceptable to the communities before the projected closing dates.

Weeks Junior High is scheduled for closing in 1981 when all of the students will fit into the renamed Weeks-Meadowbrook Junior High for grades 7 and 8. By 1984 the school would accept all sixth graders that will eventually attend Newton South.

Superintendent Fink approves of a four-year high school but pointed out to the subcommittee that a grade reorganization in 1981 of K-5 in elementary schools would leave all the elementary schools in the city about 50 percent below their capacity of 8,700.

Kaplan opposed closing Oak Hill School if students have to be divided between Countryside and Spaulding, but noted that in 1981 there will be about 725 elementary students with 1300 spaces, even with Memorial closed.

She said she will discuss with statistician Vincent Silluzio the possibility of fitting Oak Hill students into Countryside, but she could not pinpoint when that may be feasible.

The subcommitee planned to have its meeting in the Education Center but more than 75 people were in the audience so the meeting was moved across the street to the new F.A. Day Junior High School.

terview Tuesday his father was "enthusiastic about being offered a settlement" of up to $25,000 in the condominium case, contradicting previously published reports that someone had attempted to bribe his father.

The son denied this was a bribery offer.

"He had been somewhat unsuccessful in resolving the Puerto Rican case," Herbits explained, "and the settlement offer was not to my father, but to nullify the complaints of the plaintiffs."

Two other recent cases of the late attorney, who had offices at 44 School St., Boston, involved the Plantation Corp. and the Plantation Inn, Plymouth.

The defendant in the Plymouth cases was involved in long litigation with Herbits, the son said, and there was some disagreement about terms of settlement.

Capt. Drew said about 100 people have been interviewed in the Plymouth-Wareham area and each interview leads to "more people to interview."

Newton's 23 detectives and Lt. Det. Joseph Denehy and four other state detectives are working on the case.

The murders, according to police, occurred sometime between 1:30 and 3:15 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 28, 1976.

All eight vehicles seen in the area that day by neighbors were investigated and gave no clues, police said.

Lt. Charles Feeley of the Newton police said that one report made last week of a suspect being sought in Boston was false.

Police Chief William F. Quinn this week said he would like to remind all citizens that anyone who has any information concerning the double-slaying can contact him "in complete confidence" through Box 911, West Newton, Mass. 02165.

State grants extensions for wetlands restrictions

The state has granted an extension until April 1 for the decision on imposing wetlands restrictions on land adjacent to Newton South High School.

If the land is permanently restricted, plans for a football field and track on the land can never be carried out.

The Board of Aldermen will meet tonight (Thursday) at 10:15 p.m. in a specially called session to reconsider its vote of acceptance of the state Inland Wetlands Restriction Act designation of 22 sites in Newton as not to be filled or built upon. The South High site is one of the 22 sites.

Reconsideration of the vote was moved by Ald. Robert Stiller of Ward 8, where Newton South High School is located.

The adoption of the restriction order on the 22 sites was almost routine until Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen learned two weeks ago that long-postponed plans for a home field at South included the use of the wetland.

Much of the land had been filled in the late sixties and early seventies, until a Conservation Commission order banned filling in 1975.

The land needed for the football field is 4.5 acres of the remaining unfilled 10 acres, according to old plans.

Filling was stopped because of movement of peat, said to be 40 feet deep, that threatened to damage houses in the vicinity.

City Engineer Cynthia McCarthy at a recess meeting of the Board Monday night said there are ways to prevent "peat waves" if construction of the field in its planned location is found necessary.

But relocation of the new field may be possible. McCarthy pointed out on plans another siting that could be done.

The delay granted by Commissioner Evan Dobelle of the Department of Environmental Management will give the city time to determine whether any of the wetland is needed and whether a field should be built at all.

Dobelle's letter accomplished what two hours of work on the problem did not quite achieve Monday night at the Board meeting.

The final action at that time was adoption of the wetlands restriction, with an accompanying resolution to Dobelle asking that the South High site alone be delayed for six months.

Several aldermen wanted to reject the whole package of 22 sites, which had to be voted on as a single item. Rejection would have provided an automatic six-month delay, preventing the Department of Environmental Management from implementing its restrictions for that period of time.

During the six months a determination would be made as to the need for the land and the feasibility of further filling.

Ald. Sidney Small, speaking in favor of rejecting the 22-site restriction, remarked, "We spent $24 million for a lemon down the street (Newton North High School) and hundreds of thousands more on it. We've spent nothing at Newton South."

Ald. Stiller also favored rejecting the restriction to gain a six-month delay. Stiller said he did not think that state legislation would be written with the intent of damaging the city's chances of completing a school site.

The reason for the School Department's lethargy in not safeguarding its options for use of the land has never been made clear.

No one on the School Committee or in the School Department seemed to know of the imminent restriction on the property until alerted by Cohen.

With the possible switch to four-year high schools under consideration by the School Committee' there will be need for more playfields, School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell pointed out at Monday night's meeting.

Staniford Street parcel included among wetlands

One of the 22 sites being restricted by the state is the Staniford Street land, whose owner is seeking a comprehensive permit to build 140 units of low- and moderate-income housing.

The site borders the river in Auburndale.

Lawrence Shubow, lawyer for John McIsaac, said this week that his client never received notification of the restriction or the public hearing held at City Hall by the Department of Environmental Management. Legal action may be necessary, he said, if the DEM restriction prevents building.

The McIsaac project has been before the state Housing Appeals Committee for more than two years. The completion of an environmental impact statement, required at the last minute by Secretary for Environmental Affairs Evelyn Murphy, has delayed the HAC decision on whether to allow the project to be built.

The proposal was denied by the Newton Zoning Board of Appeals and subsequently was taken to the HAC under provions of the state "anti-snob zoning" act, Ch. 774.

The city wants only 20 units of housing built on the front two acres of the 10-acre property and has indicated a desire to take the rest by eminent domain for conservation land.

The land is already restricted by floodplain zoning.

Shubow also said he is "researching a suit against the city Newton's receipt of all federal funds, particularly those for housing."

"Newton is practicing a 'snob' housing policy in general," Shubow said.

TAX APPROVED

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri voters in 1976 approved an additional one-eighth of one per cent sales tax for conservation, expected to provide as much as $20 million a year to be used by the state Conservation Commission against fellow Democrats Joe DeNucci of Newton and William Stanley of Waltham.

In the probable new Newton-Waltham district there will be roughly 18,000 Waltham residents and 21,000 Newton residents, giving a Newton candidate a slight edge.

But if the vote goes along ethnic lines, DeNucci or another candidate of Italian extraction would have the advantage in the new district.

Harrington is starting his third term in the State House, while DeNucci and Stanley are starting their first.

Harrington will take a run at the mayoral election in Newton in 1977' he has already unofficially announced. Campaigning for that election could be carried over to the 1978 state election if he loses in his bid for mayor.

ARCHERY SEASON

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — During the first month of the 1976 archery deer season in Missouri, hunters took 1,235 deer.

The state Conservation Commission said the 1975 gun season set a record of 51,823 animals.

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The New Mexico Oil and Gas Association estimates more than 18,000 persons are employed in petroleum industry in the state.

New Mexico is ranked fourth in the nation in production of natural gas and sixth in production of oil.

Camp Fire Girls gave a holiday concert for senior citizens at the Mt. Ida Nursing Home last month. The fourth grade girls sang Christmas carols and presented homemade favors to the residents. 2500 people called for consumer help

More than 2500 persons have contacted the Consumer Affairs Self-Help Information Office at 727-7780 in its first month of service requesting information on topics ranging from tenants' rights to defective merchandise.

Secretary of Consumer Affairs Christine Sullivan, who opened the Self-Help Information Office in mid-November, said that a majority of questions and complaints dealt with automobiles, but next month's totals could show a different category receiving the most inquiries.

"Considering the number of gift exchanges that will be made after Christmas, I expect to receive many questions about refunds and returning merchandise, and that will probably be the most talked about consumer problem," she said.

Sullivan reminded consumers that under the Massachusetts Consumer Protection Act a store must clearly and conspicuously disclose to the buyer prior to purchase the exact nature and extent of the seller's refund, return or cancellation policy.

On the subject of recent complaints, Sullivan said, "Automobiles have a history for being the top vote-getter in consumer gripes and that tradition will probably remain until there is some regulation of the auto industry."

The Self-Help Information Office can answer a great volume of consumer questions because they do not mediate complaints.

"Instead of mediating all complaints," said Sullivan, "we help consumers help themselves by providing them with the information they need to solve the problem.

"This is beneficial to all consumers, as we are able to deal with more people than would be possible if we attempted to mediate each individual problem."

When Sullivan opened the office Nov. 22, 1976, she also released a copy of the Consumer Resource Guide. The guide, listing more than 1000 organizations that assist consumers, has been distributed statewide.

The Consumer Resource Guide can be obtained for a $2, tax-deductible donation to the Consumer Affairs Foundation, in care of Suffolk University, 47 Mount Vernon St., Boston, 02108.

Anyone with a consumer question or problem can call or write Consumer Affairs Self-Help Information Office, One Ashburton Place, Room 1413, Boston, 02108.

Swim lessons

There will be one 15-week session for swim lessons this winter. It will run from February to mid-May. Lessons for children will be Saturday and Sunday mornings while adult lessons and a water safety instructor course will be offered during the week.

The reason for the 15-week session is because the renovation of the pool over the past several months calls for intensive operational procedures concerning its maintenance such that the Recreation Department must adhere to all School Department regulations, which necessitates great flexibility by the Department concerning scheduling. This 15-week session gives that flexibility.

Registration dates

Registration for the swim lessons to be held at the North High Pool is Thursday, Jan. 27, at the Horace Mann School from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 29, at Newton North High School from 2 to 4 p.m.

Skating lessons

A new skating class for boys and girls in Grades 1 through 6 will be held at the Daly Rink beginning Jan. 25. The 10-week course will be held Tuesdays from 2 to 3 and 3 to 4 p.m. Each will include a half-hour lesson and a half-hour practice.

The fee is $15 and registration will be held Jan. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mason-Rice School. Instructors are Carol Butterworth and Rosemary Cloran

Skating classes

Registration for skating classes for Grade 1 through adult will be held Jan. 6 at the Mason-Rice School, also at 7:30 p.m. Classes will be held at the M.D.C. Cleveland Circle Rink from 5 to 6 p.m., Tuesdays beginning Jan. 18.

The fee is $15 and the instructor is Carol Butterworth

How to cure post-holiday blues

Got the January blues? It's not uncommon to get the all-over tiredness that seems to come after the hectic gifting-and-partying season is over. There's something you can do about it...treat yourself to a luxurious bath and massage experience.

Be good to yourself. Select a time when you can avoid the shrill call of the telephone or needs of children. One psychologist suggests that you turn on the hi fi to soft music, put a glass of wine on a chair beside the tub and discover how much a bath can do for the inner you as well as the outer you. It can soothe your mind and relax your body through the therapy of warmth, softness, quiet and the pleasurable scent of a capful of perfumed bath oil.

Here's how it goes: run a tubful of very warm water (not hot) then add a capful of your favorite bath oil. Its fresh, light-hearted or rich scent will lift your spirits. Climb in. You'll immediately notice the soothing effect of the moisturizing oil. Relax...lie back and place your head on a little bath pillow or a bath towel rolled up and tucked in back of the nape of the head...close your eyes and breathe deeply. Listen to the music and let the world glide by. A lovely sensation.

Just about everyone can indulge in the luxury of using a good bath soap. Available in all popular perfume scents, a good bar of soap offers a sense of well being as it suds-up fragrantly in the bath. Buy your very own bar of elegant soap and keep it in a soap container away from the children and husband who would not appreciate the qualities of this minor luxury–all your own.

After the tub, towel yourself dry and learn how you can be your own masseuse.

Ask any affluent woman how she gets that glowing complexion, that marvelous muscle tone and that head-to-toe tingle of well-being and she's sure to mention her weekly visit to a professional masseuse. You can be your own masseuse, giving yourself a simple but thorough massage with Estee Lauder's Maximum Care Body Lotion. According to Mrs. Lauder, your self-massage is most effective when it follows a warm bath. You'll be repeating on various parts of your body the three basic motions–wringing, sliding and knuckling. You'll finish with a fourth which needs little description, it's called spanking!

"We owe it to ourselves to treat our bodies as well as our faces," says Estee Lauder, famous beauty authority. Most women make face care a basic part of their daily lives, however, many women tend to neglect their skin and body from the neck down. Actually body skin needs special help. It's not the same as facial skin–body skin has fewer sebaceous glands, with the lowest number on the arms and legs. This means that the body has less sebum, or less of an emollient shield to protect it from the harmful effects of the environment. To keep body skin as fresh and supple as facial skin, a woman must supply this "protective shield" herself.

"Consider it your own protective environment to help combat your skin's adverse reactions to air conditioning, dry steam heat and extreme cold. While nothing can stop the natural aging process, Maximum Care Body Lotion is a serious body treatment that will help protect your skin all over and maintain its condition."

And now for the massage:

WRINGING

You begin in what may seem like a very ungainly position–sitting on a hard, straight chair with legs crossed–so that the right ankle rests on the left knee. Put some lotion on your hands. Grasp that ankle in both hands. Pull one hand towards you–push the other away–just as though you were wringing out a towel. Wring, wring, wring–all the way up to the thigh and down to the ankle again. One trip should be enough–using slow, strong twists. When you're wringing your arm you will, of course, be able to use one hand only. Use it to twist, twist, twist–from wrist to shoulder, then back again.

SLIDING

Now you can cross your legs in a more comfortable way–one knee over the other. Place your palms beside each other at the top of the leg-fingers pointing to the knee. Very firmly slide your hands down to the knee–then separate them and glide them back up again, along the sides of the leg. This you can easily do five times with one application of Maximum Care Body Lotion.

On your chest–rest your hands at the base of your neck, palms down and fingers pointing to your waist. (Your elbows will stick way out in the air.) Slice down your hands down to your waist–separate them–and glide them up along your sides.

For your arm–again, you must work with one hand only. Grasp your wrist and pull firmly up to your shoulder–open your hand and slide it gently up and down.

KNUCKLING

For those troublesome thighs–clench your hand into a fist–then press, press, press the fist into the thigh with a firm twisting motion. You can twist ten times on only one application of the body lotion.

SPANKING

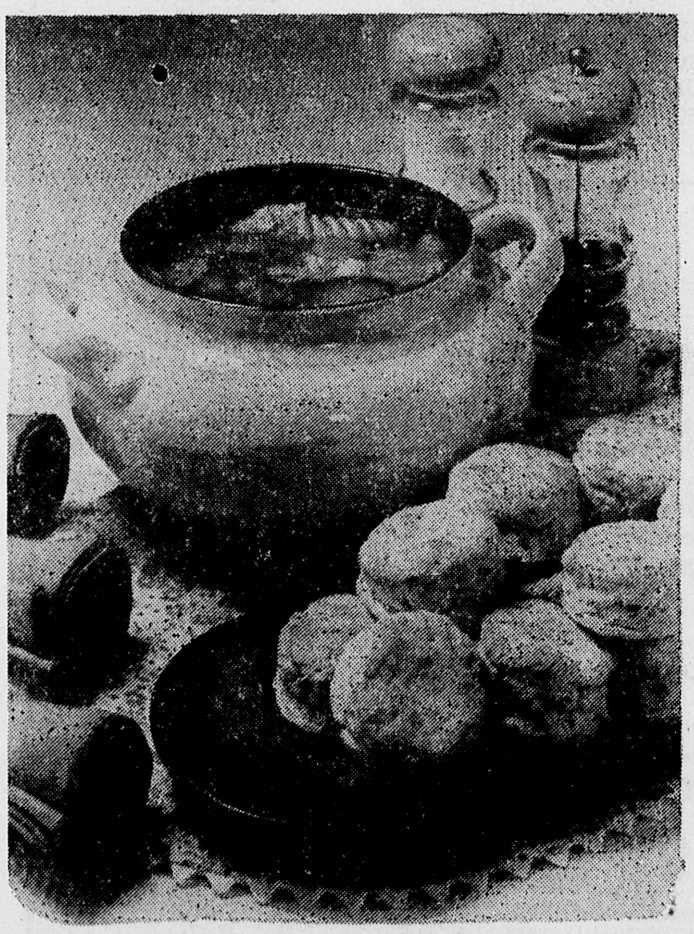
As we said, this needs no description. It's your easiest way of massaging your derriere. But not too hard, please–only until you tingle. Turn the spanking into slapping–firmly but gently, please! All over your body, to finish your self-massage.

And now it's time to lie down and rest, feeling all relaxed, refreshed and supple from your luxurious bath and massage. Because the body lotion is not greasy–it makes the skin feel silky–you'll want to leave it on throughout the day, feeling younger, healthier and more alive!

Your body requires special care all its own and pampering yourself with lightweight emollients makes your skin feel silky and you feel good!

Food and Fashion

by Ruth Lenson



A steaming bowl of chicken rotelle soup served with chive biscuits. The ideal winter treat!

Across the kitchen counter

When the weather is cold and blustery, nothing warms the heart and spirit like a bowl of hot, hearty soup. Though we've all resorted to canned soups on occasion, no canned or packaged product yet invented can match the flavor and aroma of soup that has simmered gently for hours over low heat.

Following are some soup tips: Pork is seldom used except in some oriental recipes, in which it is cooked separately and appears as a garnish. Lamb is traditional for a Scottish barley soup but rarely used in others because of its strong flavor.

You'll get more flavor and retain more vitamins from vegetables if you add them to the soup only during the last half hour of cooking. If the vegetables will be discarded after cooking, there's no need to peel the onions– just wash them and add. The skins will help color the broth. Some cooks prefer to add vegetables at the beginning, cook them until they fall apart, then replace them with fresh, raw vegetables 30 minutes before the soup is done. This provides extra vitamins as well as flavor.

Like stew, soup mellows if it's cooled quickly, refrigerated overnight, then reheated for serving. Contrary to popular opinion, hearty soups needn't be fattening. Most of the calories are in the fat, which rises to the surface and congeals when the soup is refrigerated. This solidified fat can be removed easily in large chunks before the broth is reheated.

A light hand is advisable with seasoning, which intensifies as the liquid cooks down. You can always add more seasoning at serving time. All vegetables are good in soup, but some are so strong that they're better alone than in combination: broccoli and cauliflower, for instance.

If you like thick soup, but don't want to use flour, figure on 1 teaspoon of either barley, rice or oatmeal to each cup of water that went into the pot originally; add the cereal an hour before the soup is done...or... puree the vegetables that were cooked in the soup.

For a change of pace, why not serve hot, thick soup with bread and butter at breakfast time! Europeans have thrived on a breakfast such as this and it's possible that your finicky breakfast eater will enjoy this change in menu.

CHICKEN ROTELLE SOUP

2 chicken breasts, split
¼ cup (½ stick) corn oil margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced celery
1 cup sliced carrots
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon thyme
2 bay leaves
4 envelopes (.19 oz. ea.) instant chicken flavored broth
8 cups water
2 cups rotelle macaroni
½ pound zucchini, sliced
½ pound mushrooms, sliced

Remove skin and excess fat from chicken. In Dutch oven, brown chicken pieces on both sides in margarine. Remove from pan. Saute onion, celery, and carrots in remaining margarine until onion is tender. Add parsley, salt, thyme, bay leaf, chicken broth, 4 cups water and chicken. Bring to a boil. Cover and simmer about 1 hour or until chicken is tender. Chill several hours or overnight. Skim off hardened fat from surface. Remove chicken from soup. Cut into cubes discarding bones. Add chicken and remaining 4 cups water. Bring to boil. Add rotelle, zucchini, and mushrooms. Cook until rotelle is done, about ½ hour. Makes 12 servings. Serve with Chive Biscuits.

OLD-FASHIONED VEGETABLE SOUP

2 pounds beef soup bone with meat
1 pound veal bone
2 quarts water
1 clove garlic, optional
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon salt
3 sprigs parsley
2 stalks celery with tops
1 large onion, chopped
6 carrots, pared and sliced thin
3 turnips, diced
2 potatoes, peeled and diced
1 cup canned tomatoes
½ cup cut green beans

Place soup bones, water, garlic, bay leaf, salt, parsley, celery and onion in a deep kettle. Cover and heat slowly until water comes to a boil. Skim off any scum, cover, reduce heat and simmer 3 to 4 hours. Remove and discard bay leaf, garlic and bones, reserving any meat. Skim excess fat from soup and strain stock. Combine stock with meat, carrots, turnips, potatoes, tomatoes and beans. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. (If soup is to be frozen, cook vegetables in stock about 15 minutes and finish cooking when heating to serve.

LENTIL SOUP

2 cups lentils
1 onion, diced
2 tablespoons margarine
1 carrot, diced
3 stalks celery, diced
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 quarts hot water
Minced parsley
1 pound frankfurters

Soak lentils overnight in cold water to cover. Drain and add diced onion browned in margarine. Stir over heat for 5 minutes. Add carrot, celery, salt and pepper and 2 quarts hot water. Simmer slowly until lentils are tender, about 45 minutes. Rub through a sieve; bring to boil and add frankfurters which have been sliced into chunks about ½ inch thick; lower heat and simmer 10-15 minutes. If desired a soup bone and 1½ pounds stew meat may be added with the lentils for a heartier soup.

CREAMY ONION SOUP

¼ cup butter or margarine
7 cups sliced onions (about 2 lbs.)
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 cups water
3 tablespoons beef stock base or 12 beef bouillon cubes
4 cups milk
CROUTES:
½ cup butter (1 stick)
1 small clove garlic, crushed
8 slices French bread cut 1-inch thick
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese

In 4-quart saucepot melt butter; saute onions until tender and lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Stir in flour and salt. Add water and beef stock base. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer 30-40 minutes. Stir in milk. Heat to serving temperature, DO NOT BOIL. To prepare Croutes: In saucepan melt butter; stir in garlic. Dip both sides of bread in butter. Place on a jelly roll pan and toast in preheated 325 degree oven 10 minutes; turn and toast an additional 5 minutes or until lightly browned. To serve: Place about 1 cup soup in each ovenproof soup bowl. Top each with 1 croute and ¼ cup Swiss cheese. Place in oven (375 degrees) for 10 minutes or until cheese melts. Serves 8.

Mrs. T. J. of Norwood shares with us her original recipe for Chocolate Chip Date Cake which she says is delicious without any need for frosting. Thank you!

1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup hot water
½ cup (¼ pound) margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1¾ cups regular all purpose flour, sifted before measuring
1 tablespoon cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 pkg. (6 oz. size) semisweet chocolate pieces
½ cup chopped walnuts

Add dry mixture to creamed mixture alternately with dates and water. Fold in vanilla, half the chocolate chips, and walnuts. Question: Would you please print a very good recipe for Irish Bread. Thank you kindly.

A Daily Reader Haeger

Answer: You did not specify which type of Irish Bread you desired–the Irish Soda Bread or Irish Sweet Loaf, and so we will include both–enjoy!

IRISH SODA BREAD

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 and one-third to 1½ cups buttermilk
1 tablespoon caraway seed (optional)

Sift the dry ingredients into a bowl. Make a hollow in the center and pour in 1 cup of the buttermilk. Mix with your hands and add enough more buttermilk to make a firm but not dry dough. Turn out onto a floured board and knead lightly. Shape into a round loaf and cut across the top so that it will not crack. Sprinkle with caraway seed if desired. Place in a buttered skillet and bake at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes. (This is the traditional bread of Ireland. It should be broken, not cut, and is usually served hot with tea, but is good, hot or cold, with anything.)

IRISH SWEET LOAF

4 cups all purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 cups raisins
grated rind of 1 lemon
2 eggs beaten
1 cup milk

Combine the flour, sugar, baking powder, raisins and lemon rind. Beat the eggs and milk together and add to the dry ingredients. Mix carefully until thoroughly moistened. Turn into a buttered 9x5-inch loaf pan and let stand for about 20 minutes. Bake in a 350 degree oven until done, about 1 hour to 1¼ hours. Turn out on wire rack to cool.

Question: My husband and I enjoy using seasoned salt and would like to make our own. Do you have such a recipe? Many thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. W., Dedham

Answer: This is a great combination of ingredients to be used on beef, veal and salads.

SEASONED SALT

6 tablespoons table salt, non-iodized
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon paprika
1 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon coriander

Mix all ingredients together until well blended. Pour into a bottle with a tight cover. Makes two-thirds cup of seasoned salt.

60 women gather, donate $35,000 for CJP and emergency fund

"If there had been a State of Israel then, there would never have been an Auschwitz. Israel's security is our guarantee that it won't happen again8," said Gerda Weissmann Klein. Mrs. Klein spoke before 60 women who gathered in West Newton for the Grand Gifts Brunch on behalf of the 1977 campaign of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston and the Israel Emergency Fund.

Mrs. Klein is the author of "All But My Life" and "The Blue Rose." She received the 1974 Woman of the Year Award from the National Council of Jewish Women, and in 1975 she was honored with a doctor of humane letters degree from Rosary Hill College in Buffalo.

Following the talk by Mrs. Klein, the women present pledged $35,000 to the 1977 Combined Jewish Philanthropies and Israel Emergency Fund campaign. According to Judy Slater, 1977 Women's Division campaign chairman, the total represents an increase of nearly 30 percent over gifts made last year.

The Grand Gifts chairmen are Hilda Berner and Zelda Rosenthal. Marjorie Marcus was hostess for the brunch and Frances Lerman was chairman of the hostess committee.

The Women's Division of CJP, of which Rhoda Sapers is president, strives to educate and inform area women about their community and about CJP and the 75 agencies it helps to support. The group raises money for the humanitarian programs and services which the agencies provide locally, nationally and overseas.

Mrs. George Jessup and Mrs. Victor Wallace are the hostesses for the event, and Mrs. Leslie McClaine will lead devotions.

Mishkan Tefila begins second Friday service

Temple Mishkan Tefila will hold a late Friday night service on Jan. 7 at 8:15 p.m. An early service will still be held at the usual time of 6:15 p.m., however a late Friday night service will be held periodically to offer the congregation an opportunity to add a sacred dimension to the traditional family Shabbat home atmosphere.

The late service will also offer an opportunity for creative innovation with an adapted service. An order of service has been prepared that eliminates all page announcements and is one continuous melody with a blend of cantor, choir, and congregation.

Familiar congregational melodies will set the tone of the service and an appropriate choral piece will add a blend of dignity to the familiar. This first service will feature a sermon in song that traces the development of the Yiddish folk song.

Cantor Gregor Shelkan and Rabbi Richard Yellin will officiate, with choir and organ directed by Carrol Hassman.

Following the service, the Sisterhood of Temple Mishkan Tefila will sponsor a sit-down Oneg Shabbat during which college students, home during their mid-winter break, will be welcomed.

A panel discussion is planned for the Oneg Shabbat and several students will share some experiences with the congregation and comment about life on campus.

The next late Friday night service will be held on Feb. 4, and will feature "A Sephardic Weekend."

French views to be shown at Waban branch

Without the need for a passport or ticket, interested citizens can see the highlights of several motor trips through France when George P. Knapp of Waban presents a slide talk at the Waban branch of the Newton Free Library, 1608 Beacon St., Thursday morning Jan. 13.

Knapp has visited and photographed some interesting out—of-the-way places, as well as the typical tourist stops.

Points of interest will include Vezelay, the Dordogne region, the prehistoric caves and the chateux of the Loire.

Waban Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde invites interested members of the community to come for coffee at 10 a.m. and to remain for the program at 10:30 a.m.

"Once every minute, I have to light my lamp and put it out," explains the lamplighter (Gerald Evans) to the Little Prince (Virginia Feingold) during his visit to the lamplighter's tiny planet. David Morse shines as the lamp. This fairy tale classic, adpted for stage and directed by David Zucker, is now playing at the Boston Repertory Theater, 1 Boylston Pl., Boston, every Sunday at 8:08 p.m.

'The Little Prince' to be staged by Rep Sundays

It can hardly be called the Boston Repertory Theatre's "premiere" performance of "The Little Prince," adapted from the fairy tale classic by Antoine de Saint Exupery.

But for the first time, the production will be playing in a theater it can call "home." The play is now underway in the Rep's newly-renovated and permanent facilities at One Boylston Pl. across from the Boston Common every Sunday evening at 8:08 p.m.

Since the play's first performance in June, 1972, when the Rep was working out of the basement of the Boston Center for the Arts, "The Little Prince" has become by far their most popular repertory piece.

The show enjoyed a successful run after the group relocated at the First and Second Church on Berkeley Street and later developed into a strong touring performance. It has been on the road twice yearly, delighting audiences of adults and children in Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis and in several smaller communities along the East Coast.

The new 230-seat theater seems the perfect place to enjoy this intimate theater experience. The adaptation for stage by David Zucker combines narration, dialogue and mime in story-theater style to make this fairy tale for grownups come to life.

Simply told, it is the story of a young man from a distant planet who brings a desert-bound pilot back to the spiritual freshness of childhood.

The aviator (Zucker) sets the tone. Dressed in coveralls, he begins the story of the Little Prince (played by Virginia Feingold), his small planet and his devotion to a single rose.

Zucker takes the audience on a journey through the universe, where the Prince encounters a variety of adults at work with "matters of consequence."

It takes the roguish, sophisticated wisdom of the fox (played by David Morse) to teach him that "what is real is invisible to the eye." The message is clear throughout the production, which is carried out with a fusion of innocence and understanding.

Don't assume this is a children's story. Although youngsters over 8 will find some meaning, the production is meant to inspire the child in any grownup presently preoccupied with "matters of consequence."

TRAVEL TRAILS

What held the neighborhood and parish people of Venice together as one creative community were their city-wide ceremonies. Venice is designed as a festive city, a city of public celebration, of color and vitality and music, of urban airs that could not help but produce great craftsmen. But now there are no more ship builders and glass blowers, and civic life, too, has irrevocably changed. There are new industries with new demands . . . And one of the more important industries — the tourists in huge numbers.

Permanent diaconate program has openings

The Permanent Diaconate Program for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston announces informational meetings for men interested in the vocation of permanent deacon.

A new class of candidates will be accepted for the program in September, 1977. Men interested in seeking application must attend one of the informational meetings to be held Jan. 9 and 16 at the Pastoral Institute (St. William's Hall), 5 Lake St., Brighton, on the grounds of St. John's Seminary.

Each meeting will begin at 2 p.m. and will last about two and one-half hours. These meetings are designed to give men a better understanding of the role of permanent deacon in today's church, and to discuss the nature, requirements and the training program for this restored ministry of service.

The new permanent deacon is neither a priest nor a glorified layman but is one who takes his proper place in this expanded ministry of the church serving the needs of people in a new dimension.

The permanent diaconate is open to men 32 years of age, married or single, who have a proved history of commitment to people in their parish or community, of good intelligence and who feel a desire to respond to God's call.

Married men interested in this vocation should bring their wives, as they must share their desire to pursue training for the permanent diaconate.

At the present time there are 38 ordained permanent deacons in the Archdiocese of Boston and 39 third-year candidates will be ordained next May. Presently, 31 men are in their first year of training in the three year training program.

Nina Nyhart of Brookline will teach "Understanding Contemporary Poetry." This class will closely examine a selection of recent poems and discuss such topics as the use of dreams, surrealism, the influence of translation, and the confessional voice.

Ms. Nyhart will also teach a workshop in "Poetry Writing," designed for those who wish to develop their poetry writing skills. That class will also examine model poems by established contemporary poets.

Ms. Nyhart, a Vassar graduate, is a former teacher for the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities poets-in-the-schools programs.

She has been a visiting poet in the Brookline Schools.

Susan Butler of Cambridge will teach two workshops: "Black and White Photography," a course in which participants will learn how to use a camera, process film, and make enlargements; and "Darkroom Techniques," a course for those already proficient in the use of camera and enlarger. The latter workshop will provide instruction in advanced darkroom techniques, including multiple exposures, blending negatives, solarization, toning, kodalith, and photo silkscreening.

Participants of both classes will have individual darkroom facilities.

Rachel Sachs of Watertown will teach beginning and intermediate calligraphy. The beginner's workshop will study the Italic alphabet, use of color, ruling pen, and French curves. Intermediate students will study various alphabets of their choice, learn to copy designs without tracing, laying gold, and simple mat cutting and framing.

Ms. Sachs, a member of the London-based Society for Italic Handwriting and the New York Society of Scribes, has had shows at the Boston Center for Adult Education, the Cambridge Society of Friends, and the Burlington Public Library.

Jane Appleton of Cambridge will teach "Adventure in Opera" a special opportunity to explore historic and contemporary opera. This eight-part series will examine the general history and production of operas and give special attention to four 1977 productions by the Opera Company of Boston.

Ms. Appleton, a graduate of Wheaton College and a student of the Columbia University Graduate School, was an instructor of film, opera, and music for eight years at the Newton College of the Sacred Heart. She is also a commentator on public television and a free-lance writer.

IRWIN SHULKIN (RIGHT) WHO LOST 21 POUNDS AND IS STILL LOSING, VISITS FRAMINGHAM'S DEAN PHARMACY PARTNER MORT ZUROFF (LEFT).

Several months ago, Irwin Shulkin, a local businessman, learned about NATURSLIM from his cousin who had just lost 35 pounds. Her praise of the product impelled him to try it out and within the past several months, Irwin (pictured right) has dropped twenty-one pounds. He has since discovered that word-of-mouth has created such a demand that he and Larry Tichnor — who lost fifteen pounds — are now distributing NATURSLIM to stores in Eastern Massachusetts.

Many thousands in Massachusetts have already been on the "NATURSLIM" program which requires no meetings to attend, no exercises, NO DRUGS, SHOTS, and best of all, NO HUNGER PANGS — SHOW IT TO YOUR DOCTOR

The unusual part of the program is that the third meal of the day, DINNER, is unrestricted. You can eat many of the so-called "forbidden foods" and regulate the speed of your weight loss by how much of them you take. The key to the program is NATURSLIM Powder, which when blended with low fat milk, ice and flavorings, provides a simply delicious high protein milkshake. NATURSLIM can also be blended with fruit juices and other non-milk products. Each NATURSLIM serving costs as low as 38¢ purchased in a 30-day supply

ADL explains effects of Arab boycott on Israel

At a Boston Council Anti-Defamation League-B'nai B'rith meeting on the Arab boycott Harold Band, Sol Kolack and Isadore Zack explained ADL's work to prevent the Arab nations from strangling Israel through this internationally illegal boycott.

Assistant Attorney General Richard A. Gross detailed the regulations of the new Commonwealth of Massachusetts antiboycott legislation.

The following information was pres8ented to the committee by the panelists: The Arab boycott is an integral part of the ongoing effort by the League of Arab States to destroy Israel. The boycott is an essential weapon in Ar8ab economic warfare aimed at the strangulation of the J8ewish state. The main instrument for carrying out the various boycott laws set down by the Arab nations i8s a series of blacklists of companies in countries around the world which have rejected the restrictions of the Arab boycott, refused to provide information sought by the boycott office or Arab League member states, or ignored requests to provide that information.

The thrust of the boycott is worldwide. Its essential characteristic is an Arab effort to pressure other countries and business firms located around the world to refrain from trading with Israel.

Through this secondary boycott, the Arabs seek to force other countries and their business and financial institutions to become economic allies of the Arab world and instruments of the Arab war against the Jewish state.

The Arab boycott also involves a tertiary boycott whereby an Arab state refuses to do business with a company which is not itself blacklisted or considered to be supporting the Israeli economy bu does business with others deemed by the Arabs to be supporters of Israel.

Another aspect of the tertiary boycott takes place when a company — for example, an Americ8an manufacturer having a prime with an Arab country — refuses at the request of the Arabs to do bus8iness with another company (for example, a potential subcontractor8) because that company does business with Israel.

Both the secondary and tertiary boycotts have been contrary to the public policy of the United States as set forth in the Export Administration and more recently by Executive Order. Both, likewise, carry with them an implied conflict with U.S. antitrust laws.

A second effort to put a federal antiboycott law on the books will be made early in 1977 and ADL and B'nai B'rith will play a major role in this effort.

B'nai B'rith will 8 conduct a second symposium which will bring the latest information on the proposed federal antiboycott legislation to the committee. This will take place Sunday morning, Jan. 30, at 9:30 a.m. at the 1200 Beacon Street Hotel, Brookline. All members and friends of B'nai B'rith are invited to attend.

Elbanobscot winter classes start

Start the New Year with a new interest — Elbanobscot's winter classes for children and adults begin the week of Jan. 19.

The Winter Explorer's class will have 6-8-year-olds out following animal tracks in the snow and watching for signs of spring. If your child is concerned with helping wildlife survive the cold, you can foster this sense of responsibility by enrolling him or her in Winter Wildlife. Experiences will include some wild animal interviews.

Third- to fifth-graders can take part in Adventures in Winter with Jim Armenti from our summer camp staff. The adventures will vary with what the season brings us for weather, but may include ice fishing, skating, tobogganning and outdoor cooking. Winter Survival will promote safety and comfort for winter campers as they learn shelter and fire building, compass use and winter first aid.

Opportunities for adults to learn to use the hiking boots and cross-country skis they received during the holidays will be provided in several classes. A unique program for parents and and 4- and 5-year-olds together will combine outdoor winter exploration with indoor projects, crafts and games.

For a brochure describing programs, call Elbanobscot at 443-9931 in Sudbury.

Soule hammers hard to protect Brandeis art

Walter F. Soule enjoys taking hammer and nail to a classic work of art by Monet.

But relax, the painting is safe and Soule is not a resident of the cuckoo's nest. He's building superintendent at Brandeis University's Rose Art Museum and a master carpenter with credentia in art history.

For the past 18 months, the Newton-born tradesman, who lives in Waltham, has fused his carpentry skills with an appreciation for works of art and successfully applied the two by crafting fail-safe crates for the transporation of valuable art.

To date, all paintings shipped from Soule's museum workshop have arrived unscathed at destinations ranging from New York to Los Angeles.

That's a lot of bumpy road miles, not to mention the number of truck tailgates encountered, a major threat to the paintings.

"It's not uncommon for paintings to be dropped from tailgates," explained Soule, "and if one lands on the corner of the frame it could mean serious damage."

Art scheduled to depart the museum is crated only by Soule and the steps taken are a craftsman's assurance that the object packed will withstand most disasters short of earthquake.

"I crate the painting in anticipation of the worst," he said. "So far, we haven't lost a painting."

The process requires the utmost in attention to detail, beginning with a protective covering for the face of the picture. A plastic wrapping, dotted with air-filled "bubbles" forming a cushion, covers the painting. This also keeps dirt out in transit. Next, the corners, labeled the "weakest links" by Soule, are reinforced with heavy cardboard collars stapled onto the frame.

"The painting must now be wrapped completely in corrugated cardboard to prevent penetration by sharp objects. Once this is completed then I crate it and, finally, box it in plywood."

Soule came to Brandeis in July, 1975, as a full-time employee after having worked part-time at the museum. Carpentry and art hardly seemed compatible in the career spectrum but the two have survived without conflict.

As a boy, Soule was exposed to carpentry by his late father, an engineer for a construction firm. The rudiments were deeply imbedded and as a teenager he worked at developing his craft.

The trade supported his studies at Newton Junior College, Boston University, and Nasson College in Springvale, Maine, where he was awarded a B.A. in art history in 1973.

His knowledge of art was proper leverage for accepting a superintendent's post at the museum, and he has enjoyed the varied work despite the major salary difference between Brandeis and what he could command as an outside carpenter.

"I like the people here," he said, "and I'm glad I accepted the job. It's interesting work and it's something not every carpenter has a chance to do."

Museum Director Carl Belz is impressed by not only Soule's work, but also the way he tackles the job.

"Walter's work is fine, excellent but it's his attitude that impresses me to no end," Belz said. "In the 18 months he's worked here, he has yet to ask 'Why?' or to tell me 'we can't do it.'

"Instead, he says 'Yes, I'm sure we can do it.' That's the kind of an attitude that means the difference between success and failure."

Soule divides his time between crating and preparing for museum shows, a weighty task by any standard. The advent of a new exhibition means long hours in anticipation of removing the outgoing paintings and the display of new ones.

When paintings are dispatched from the museum, they leave campus secured in a container prepared by Walter Soule. All during transit, the university's treasure is in good hands.

Library installs TV phone for deaf patrons

The Newton Free Library has received a special grant from the Massachusetts Bureau of Library Extension for the purchase of a tele-typewriter (TTY).

Called a TV phone, it is a new communications terminal designed expressly for the deaf and hearing impaired. Typed messages are sent and received via telephone lines thus allowing a wide range of service possibilities to the deaf.

The sending party types out his or her message and it is converted into impulses by a modulator and sent over the telephone wires to the receiver.

The receiver's modulator converts the impulses into signals which are fed into the tele-typewriter which types out the message. The TV phone is attached to a regular television set and displays messages in print on the screen.

The Newton Free Library has recognized this as a means to extend to the deaf community the same kind of telephone reference service we have been giving for years to others.

Not only are traditional library information services available but the library has decided to make the library TTY accessible for local use by patrons as well. Hearing and deaf people alike can take advantage of this.

Persons with similar equipment (the TV phone is completely compatible with all types of TTYs) may call the TTY phone number, 527-7106, to ask about library materials, services, and programs.

Information about a particular book, events in the community, and adult education classes for the deaf (sign language) will also be answered on the TV phone.

United Arab Front?

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The projected unity between Egypt and Syria will enable the two countries to present a united front at the Geneva peace talks with Israel. It was welcomed by Lebanon and the Palestinians, but has served to isolate Libya and left Jordan wondering about its possible impact.

Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat, who arrived in Cairo shortly after agreement was reached, described the unity scheme as "historic" and said it "carried the Arab struggle forward in face of the Israeli challenge."

Lebanese Premier Selim Al-Hoss said the agreement will have "positive effects" on the Lebanon situation.

A government announcement in Damascus said Jordan's King Hussein will visit the Syrian capital shortly for talks with President Hafez Assad. Diplomatic sources said Hussein will certainly seek clarifications.

The Egyptian-Syrian agreement said the two countries were setting up a joint political command, led by Assad and President Anwar Sadat, to work out the form of the envisaged union. The accord climaxed a four-day visit by Assad to Egypt —his first since the two countries ended a year-long rift last October.

The immediate and practical effect of the accord has been to forge a close political and military alliance between Egypt and Syria, aimed at concerted action in the conflict with Israel.

This will enable the two countries — the principal Arab antagonists against Israel — to present a united front at the Geneva conference or, failing this, on the battlefield.

Sadat and Assad called in a joint communique for an early resumption of the peace talks, with Palestinian participation. But officials concede the current cabinet crisis in Israel may delay the peace momentum and "half of 1977 may be wasted."

The Egyptian-Syrian agreement served to isolate Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan strongman, by sidestepping the so-called Federation of Arab Republics, a five-year-old arrangement grouping the three countries.

The federation has existed only in theory for the past three years, mainly because of sharp differences between Sadat and Khadafy

As one Arab diplomat put it, "Khadafy now has been left out in the cold. It is almost a snub."

On the other hand, Syria and Jces between Sadat and Khadafy

As one Arab diplomat put it, "Khadafy now has been left out in the cold. It is almost anion

When Hussein visits Damascus, he will obviously seek to find out what effect the Egyptian-Syrian alliance will have on the "special relationship" between his country and Syria.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam was asked a similar question at a news conference recently. "To the contrary," he replied, "any unity steps will be for the good n Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam was asked a similar question at a news conference recently. "To the contrary," he repliedo Damascus to discuss with Khaddam what government sources called the "outcome of the Cairo talks and their bearing on the situation in Lebanon."

Premier Al-Hoss was optimistic the unity scheme will have "positive effects and consolidate the efforts of Presidents Assad and Sadat to restore peace to Lebanon."

Arafat, whose troops fought the Syrians in Lebanon only three months ago, said a "military unity" existed already among Egypt, Syria and the Palestinians, and Egyptian War Minister Gen. Abdel Ghani Gamassy was the commanderin-chief of their forces.

But only time will tell how the unity scheme – if it sees the light – will affect other Arabs.

A New Year toast with a glass of sake

TOKYO (UPI) — About 112 million Japanese have just toasted in the new year with sake, but for most of them this isn't 1977.

In the Land of the Rising Sun, the year is Showa 52, the 52nd year in which Emperor Hitohito has reigned.

Japan is the only large industrial country that doesn't use the Western way of counting years from the birth of Christ. The age-old system of numbering the years by emperors' reigns prevails.

It stayed in use even after Japan adopted the Western calendar with its seven-day week and 12-month year back in 1972.

Of course, most Japanese know it is 1977 in the outside world. After all, 1977 is printed (in parentheses) just after Showa 52 at the top of the morning newspaper

But the Japanese don't think in terms of A.D.

For them, Pearl Harbor was bombed in Showa 16, not 1941. World War I ended on Nov. 11, Taisho 7, in the reign of the previous emperor, not in 1918. Abraham Lincoln was shot way back in Keio 1, the Japanese way of saying 1865.

A recent survey by the prime minister's office showed 87 per cent of adult Japanese compute years this way. Only a minority in international business think by the A.D. system.

All government records are dated in years of emperor reigns. A Japanese businessman who deals with foreigners this year will use 1977 in his letters to them. In correspondence with fellow Japanese he will use Showa 52.

Many of the Japanese who must flit between the two systems carry card-size conversion tables in their wallets.

For the first time in Japanese history, the idea of shifting to A.D. numbers is being discussed seriously. Emperor Hirohito now is 75. A minority of Japanese question whether the tradition should be prolonged after he dies.

The Communist and Socialist opposition parties, which got a combined 31 per cent of the vote in the December 1976 general election, both want to go to A.D. numbers.

Their reason is political. They think that counting time by imperial reigns tends to link the public's mind to the emperor's throne.

However, the reign year system will probably continue. A recent survey by the prime minister's office found that 80 per cent of the people favored it.

Although Emperor Hirohito's reign is called Showa, it is not part of his personal name. At the start of each reign, a committee of literary men is called together to choose a name for it. Showa or "bright peace" was chose for Hirohito. The first year in which he was on the throne, 1926, became Showa 1.

The reign of Hirohito's father, which lasted from 1912 to 1926, had the name of Taisho, which meant "great justice."

Before that came Emperor Mutsuhito, who reigned from 1868 to 1912. His period is called Meiji or "enlightened rule."

The rules for getting from emperor reign year to A.D. are easy—if you can remember them and are good at arithmetic. Just add 25 to a Showa year to get the last two numbers of the A.D. year. Thus Showa 16 becomes 1941.

By adding seven to a Taisho year, you get the last two numbers of the A.D. year. Taisho 16, the year of the great Tokyo earthquake, thus is 1923.

Ford: Active lame duck

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, from all indications, will go down in history as an activist lame duck.

Already Ford's last 79 days are being compared to Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days. And he still has a couple of weeks to go.

Since his defeat last November, Ford has proposed such far-reaching measures as gasoline price decontrol and statehood for Puerto Rico.

Some observers have expressed puzzlement over why he would bother making moves of this magnitude at such a late date. But I think I know the reason.

To me, it looks very much as if he is paying off campaign debts to the silent bandwagon.

In case you aren't familiar with ths type of political favor, I should explain that the silent bandwagon is composed of prominent or influential figures who support a certain candidate but who keep mum about it.

The muteness is the helpful part.

For were they to support him openly, it could cost him a lot of votes and possibly even the election.

A good example of the silent bandwagon rider is Bobby Seale, one of the founders of the Black Panther Party and a defendant in the celebrated Chicago Seven trial.

Once Jimmy Carter's victory had been safely confirmed by the Electoral College, Seale called a news conference to reveal that he had been a covert supporter of the president-elect.

"I wanted him to win, so I kept quiet," he explained.

Now that Seale has broken the ice, many others who rode the silent bandwagon probably will be coming out of the closet.

The next step will be for political analysts to determine how much impact these sealed lip stalwarts had on the campaign.

It is too late for loyal tongueholders to lay claim to a Cabinet seat. But with many sub-Cabinet positions yet to be filled, they may yet have a voice in the transition process.

If Carter had silent bandwagon riders such as Seale, it is logical to assume there also were covert supporters in the Ford camp.

One might have been an oil executive whose company had admitted illegal contributions to the Nixon campaign or undertable payments overseas. Another could have been a Puerto Rican statehood advocate who for some reason was held in low public esteem.

Let's say they pay a call at the White House during the campaign. With the following results:

"Mr. President, we're here to assure you that we're behind you 100 per cent."

The president blanches. "Would you mind keeping that under your hat?"

Even though he lost the election, a president would be an ingrate if he didn't seek some way to show his appreciation for their inau'58assistance.

Boys who make passes should switch to contacts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most teen-age girls believe boys who wear glasses should switch to contact lenses.

Their attitudes, implying a twist on "boys never make passes at girls who wear glasses," are revealed in a new survey of 1,300 girls ranging from 13 to 19 years old. They represent a balanced cross-section of girls from all parts of the country.

Of the total surveyed, 63.7 per cent wear some type of vision correction themselves — eyeglasses, soft or hard contact lenses. Of those, nearly half (48.9 per cent) wear contact lenses.

The study was funded by Bausch and Lomb, the company that first introduced soft contact lenses into the United States in 1971.

When the girls on the survey panel were questioned about boys and contacts, 77 per cent of the 1,300 teenagers said they believe boys need contact lenses just as much as girls do.

The contact lens wearers felt stronger about the question than those with eyeglasses. Ninety-two per cent of those with soft contact lenses and 86 per cent of the hard contact wearers felt boys should switch to contacts.

When asked if the boys prefer girls with contact lenses, they were less enthusiastic. Of the 1,300, 38 per cent agreed; 30.6 per cent were neutral; and 30.4 per cent disagreed.

Scott sets two mile record, North runners win

By RICH GROSSMAN

Breaking recordss is nice.

Smashing records is even nicer - just ask Duncan Scottl co-captain of the Newton North indoor track team. Last Thursday, the senior two-miler broke the Suburban League record in his event by 15 seconds. Scott's 9:28.4 broke Bart Petracca's (North Quincy class of '76) 9:43.4 record and led North to a 54-32 victory over Weymouth South, last year's Suburban League champs.

"I had the record in the back of my mind before the race. Once it was underway I knew that I would break it. I was hoping to run in the low 9:40's or the high 9:30's. I had no idea that I woul break 9:30."

Duncan was sure that the stiff competition gave him some help.

"George Rose (Weymouth South two-miler who placed second in 9:33.2) and I exchanged the lead once or twice and I knew that I would have to run an excellent time to beat him."

Duncan is looking forward to the rest of the dual meet schedule to run some more solid times, the Suburban league meet, and the Class "A" meet later onin the year, where he will again meet Rose and the state's best dostance men.

Senior Marc Laredo defeated the rest of the field to place third in the deuce with a personal best of 10:18.2.

All three of Newton's captains came up with important victories against Weymouth South. In the mile, Garde Wells, formerly of Weymouth South, defeated his ex-teammates to win in 4:39.5. Eric Moran ran a 2:28.2 to win an extremely hard-fought battle in the 1000 yard race.

Juniors Bill Peterson (4:59.8) and Mark Ross (3:32.4) placed third in the mile and the 1000.

Senior Reggie Price managed the Tiger's only place in the 600 yard race with a 1:21.8 time, which took the third spot.

Field Events

Newton field events personnel captured 17 out of a possible 18 points with another strong performance.

Bruce Weinberg came up with his best put ever (48'2") to grab the second spot in the shot. Junior Joel Dennis won the event with a 48'8½" heave.

High jumpers Bob Martin, Bill Rizetto, and Kevin Hinchey swept their event. Rizetto, competing with a shoulder injury suffered against Rindge Tch just three days earlier, won the 45-yard hurdles with Hinchey taking third.

The sprinters also fared well as senior Kevin Jones (a.k.a. 'Flash') won the 50 in 5.9. Bo Jackson finished a close second.

In the 300 yard dash, junior Wes Harris took second place in 35.8 while Mike Drew captured the third spot in 36.7.

North's victory over Weymouth was the team's third without a loss. The league's best two-miler best summed up the triumph, "This is the first time in four years that we have defeated Weymouth South. All I can say is — It's about time!"

In other track action, the Tigers faced North Quincy Tuesday.

Tomorrow, they send their best performers to the Coaches meet at Northeastern University.

The Orange and Black's next dual meet is Tuesday the 11th at 5:30 p.m., when they will host Weymouth North.

North cagers down Weymouth, 55-47

By BRUCE DANZIGER

The Newton North High basketball team, paced by Tom Morog's 20 points, played a very good all-around game and defeated Weymouth North, 55-47. The contest was very close throughout, and it wasn't until the final five minutes that the Tigers began to pull away. Once again, Newton was tough under the boards, which is a critical asset to have. The scoring went this way:

For Newton, Morog, 20 points; Quinlan, 6; Luchetti, 14; Russell, 4; Glore, 2; Proia, 7; Pendergast, 4.

For Weymouth, Tracy, 12 points; Holloman, 6; Burke, 19; Chuck Crowley, 4; Johnson, 4; Donaher, 2.

The victory lifted the Tigers' record to 2-3. (Earlier this week they beat Cambridge, but lost to Lincoln-Sudbury). In this game in particular, Newton played excellent team basketball. Whenever anyone got the ball and had a reasonable shot, he looked to pass the ball to someone who had a better shot. If coach Phillips employs this strategy regularly, the team could be very successful.

Lion skaters bow twice at home

By BRIAN J. KILEY

The Newton South Lions hockey team had a dismal week, losing two home games.

On Tuesday afternoon the Bedford Bucks embarrassed the Lions in an 8-0 drubbing. Thursday night South lost an exciting, fast moving game to the Lincoln-Sudbury Warriors (that's right, another Warriors) by a score of 4-1.

In the game against Bedford, South was totally outplayed, as an 8-0 score might indicate. Bedford didn't look that overpowering early in the game, but once they warmed up, they were unstoppable, as South goalie Dean Kahr soon found out.

The early play was rough, and for a while it seemed that the South defense could hold off the Bedford attack. However, with Howard Cooper in the penalty box, South didn't stand a chance. Assistant captain Jim Griffiths in the corner set up Dave Rollins goal that was neatly placed between the legs of a sprawling Dean Kahr.

A few minutes later, Jim Griffiths scored again on a slapshot from the blue line. His quick release caught Kahr offguard, and South was down by two. With one minute remaining in the period, a huge pileup occurred in front of the Bedford goal, resulting in an injury to Bucks goalie Mike Smith. Fortunately for Bedford, he was just shaken up and played the rest of the game.

The second period was all Bedford, and Dean Kahr was almost helpless. With 13:29 left in the second period, Paul Saimato stole the puck from a South defenseman and chipped it into the top righthand corner of the South goal.

A few minutes later during action in South's end, a Lion was called for a slashing penalty. With the penalty still in effect, Jeff Sow whirled behind the South net and popped the puck over Kahr's shoulder in the same place as the previous goal.

Again, Jim Griffiths was involved in a goal as he passed to a wide-open Pete Bilafer for an easy goal. That made the score 5-0 in favor of Bedford.

With a little more than a minute to go, Dennis Brady flew down the left side, then out into the middle and drilled a backhander past Kahr; 15 seconds later, Bedford scored again when Doug Sherman took a pass and dribbled it in.

Goalie Albert Pazos was in South's net for the third period.

The star of the game had to be Bedford winger Jim Griffiths. His fine play allowed the Bucks to roll all over South.

On Thursday night against Lincoln-Sudbury, in the first period a Lincoln-Sudbury defenseman scored a long goal. The play was ruled off-side. On the next play, however, Andrew Pace, off the faceoff, brought it into the South zone and drilled it past Dean Kahr.

A few minutes later, on a South break, Howard Cooper hit the goalpost and South wouldn't have a chance like that for the rest of the period.

Lincoln-Sudbury, however, would have chances like that, and at 5:24, when Kahr couldn't tie up, Peter Reed picked up the puck and had an easy goal. In the first period, South did a good job, but they were down by two goals.

The second period was also fast-moving and action-packed. Lion Howard Cooper, who seemed to be everywhere, almost jammed the puck in, but Joe Shultz stopped him. A few minutes later, Robert Ham took a shot and was immediately pounced on by two South defensemen. Kahr stopped that shot, but the rebound deflected right on the stick of Carl Lepordo and he had an open shot. His goal made the score 3-0, and South needed a spark.

The offense wasn't playing well and they had to rely on Kahr. Kahr, of course, couldn't do it all alone, and when he couldn't tie up the puck, Edward Magnuson lifted it over him and South was down by four goals. Neither team could do much the rest of the period, and Lincoln-Sudbury was content with their 4-0 lead.

The second period seemed like a replay of the first. The Warriors got two goals in each period. The first and third goals were scored by wrist shots. The second and fourth came when Kahr couldn't tie up the puck. Both periods had Lincoln-Sudbury slightly dominating.

The third period was very different because South now had the edge. The main problem with South was their lack of shooting.

Lincoln-Sudbury, on the other hand, shot as often as they could. Lincoln-Sudbury had a two-period total of 22 shots. South's total was six.

During the third period, Lion captain Bobby Tresca tested the new goalie, Tom Eadie, with hard slapshots. The South fans oohed and aahed at the excellent play.

Finally, with 4:39, Aaron Wasserman hit Don Moore with a pass in front and Moore blasted the puck by the Warrior goalie. Moore's slapshot ended a five-period "drought" of no goals for South.

Then the Warriors had a breakaway. Lion Nat Heard dove and knocked the puck away from the Warrior forward. Heard's play saved a probable goal. . The final minutes ticked away and South lost 4-1. South shouldn't be discouraged. They played well, the best they have all season.

After an 8-0 defeat, I'm sure they would welcome a 4-1 contest.

Newton Catholic five wins two

By CHRIS SWAN

The boys varsity squads pulled their act together this week and have two victories to show for it. One of those victories was against the St. Clements team from Somerville.

The Lancers started out strong and jumped out in front of the Anchormen of St. Clements. When the buzzer sounded, indicating that eight minutes had ended and the first quarter was over, the team representing Newton Catholic High School was in the lead by six points, 18-12. But the maroon and gold of the Anchormen wasn't about to throw in the towel. They came fighting back, and with good shooting, St. Clements pulled the margin to three, 30-27. During the intermission, St. Clements didn't lose their momentum as they came out fighting. But the Lancers (led by such people as Ron Moan and Len Conaughton) played their best defensive game of the year and allowed only 16 points. So, after three quarters, the score was too close for comfort, 44-43 the Lancers.

The fourth quarter was very exciting. Steve Shepard led the purple and gold offense in a quarter that was never dominated. The final score was Newton Catholic High 59, St. Clements High 55.

Steve Shepard once again was the one with the hot hand. He had 23 points. Others in double figures were Beatrice for Newton, 16 points and McCarthy 23, and Rizza for St. Clements, 10 points.

This game, which was held over one day due to the snowstorm on Wednesday, was one of the better played games in the Newton Catholic gym ever, and the best for the Lancers this year. To make this victory even more rewarding, not only did this mark the first victory of the year, this also was against a team that beat us in football this year and has always been a rival.

The boys also played Hudson. This game was also very close and couldn't be decided until after the buzzer sounded to end the game. The Green Wave of Hudson Catholic played well all game but couldn't break it open. The final score in this very exciting and rewarding win was 62-60 Newton Catholic.

Unfortunatelyfor Newton Catholic, the JV's were unable to beat the JV's from other schools, as they fell to defeat twice.

The scheduled game that the girls were supposed to play was deferred indefinitely. This will give our gals a few more days to practice before they meet the ever-powerful Mount Alvernia squad on Friday, Jan. 7. Before that, they will play the Anchormen of St. Clements on Jan. 5.

The next two games for the boys will be very important. They will be against Sacred Heart on Jan. 7 at 8:00, and against one of the hottest teams in the league, St. Mary's of Brighton, on Sunday, Jan. 9 at 3:00.

Now for my weekly prediction. I am willing to predict that NC will beat Sacred Heart, and the other is too close to call at this moment. Both will be played at the NCHS gym.

New Jets coach was a unanimous selection

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Never was the selection of a head coach simpler. Walt Michaels was everybody's choice to become the coach of the New York Jets.

"It was a strange selection of a head coach," said Jets' General Manager Al Ward Tuesday after naming the 47-year-old Michaels the team's head coach. "It was as much an election as a selection. And I'm not just talking about the board of directors, but the players, the people in the organization, the media and the fans.

Michaels, the son of a Pennsylvania coal miner, played linebacker for the Cleveland Browns from 1952 to 1961 and was named all-pro from 1955-58.

Newton's Paul Waters in final year at CM

Paul Waters of Newton Centre, former student at Mt. Alvernia Academy, Chestnut Hill, is now in his fourth year at Catholic Memorial High School in West Roxbury.

After playing football for Mt. Alvernia, Paul came to Catholic Memorial and played freshman football for a year and varsity for three. During this time, he has served as a defensive back and as a split end. As a result of his superlative performance in these areas, Paul plans to pursue football in college.

Paul has also participated in the well-organized intramural program at the school. In his four years, he has played basketball, softball and street hockey.

In addition to being involved in sports, Paul has also been involved in a number of academic activities. He was a writer for the school newspaper and this year he is president of the student government.

While participating in all these activities, Paul has still found time to keep up his academic record. He has achieved honors and was elected to the National Honor Society.

Paul plans to further his education by attending college. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waters of 24 Rotherwood road, Newton Centre.

North grapplers make turnaround

By STEVE KRUTT

The Tiger matmen have taken what began as a disappointing season and made a complete turn around. They started the season losing both matches of the opening squad. First, Needham nosed them out in a hard fought battle by the score of 27 to 21.

In the second match of the day, the Tigers, consisting partially of Varsity "B" wrestlers, fell victim to a strong Dedham leam 38 to 23.

The Newton North wrestlers retaliated with a spirited 38 to 14 victory over Medford the next week, and then proceeded to beat Melrose. The Tigers then went into their first Suburban League Contest against an immense North Quincy team, and were edged out 33 to 28.

On December 3o everything seemed to come together for the Tigers and they could not be denied. They wrestled in their second quad against two sectional opponents and one non-sectional opponent, and they could do no wrong.

First, they outlasted a tenacious Wellesley team by the score of 27 to 25. In the opening bout, 100 pounder Scott MacLean of Newton was pinned after a hard struggle. Junior Dave Gasdia, who had his finest day as a Newton wrestler, then pinned his opponent in the third period. Kevin Bengtson tied his match and the team score was also deadlocked at 8-8.

In the 121 pound class sophomore John Larkin wrestling in his first varsity match, came through with an inspiring 4 to 3 victory. Doug Cain was then beaten 7 to 1. Roy Hebard followed losing by a wide margin, but refusing to be pinned by one of Wellesley's toughest wrestlers.

At the 140 pound weight class the quickness of Ed Kim paid off as he won a decision 4 to 2. At 157 pounds, Co-captain Jim Acheson, wrestling in only his second match, after an injury, suffered a 10 to 5 loss; but the second half of the Larkin tandem came back with a thrilling 6 to 2 win, 187 pounder Tom Parker was then caught trying to roll and got stuck with a pin.

Everything depended on the outcome of the heavyweight class with the meet score 25 to 23 in favor of Wellesley. Peter Hiltz came through for the Tigers with a decisive 11 to 3 victory, and they won their first of three matches 27 to 25.

The Tigers then roared into their second match against a Framingham North squad who finished second to Newton North in the Division 1 central section last year. In a superlative effort, Dave Gasdia recorded his second pin of the afternoon. Roy Hebard, Dave Larkin, and Peter Hiltz pinned their opponents.

Also registering triumphs were Tom Parker and Neil Johnson, who remained the lone undefeated wrestler for Newton North. Kevin Bengtson received his second tie of the day and Scott MacLean, John Larkin, Doug Cain, Ed Kim, Jim Acheson all were defeated. Newton won the contest 33 to 25.

Still fired up from the other victories, the Varsity "B" went in and ate up Saugus by the score of 34 to 17. Victorious for Newton North were Greg Sotir, Steve Krutt, Tim Scarlett, Kip Chinian, Steve Bonazoli, and Ted Bresnahan. Norm Walker and Steve Rowland tied their bouts, while Dan Brown and Brian Bernard lost.

After that one day of wrestling the Tigers had quickly racked up three more wins. Coach Pat Coleman named the winners of the "Second Effort Awards" in each individual meet. The winners were: Ed Kim and Dave Larkin in the Wellesley Match, Dave Gasdia and Tom Parker received the award against Framingham North, and Steve Krutt was the recepient against Saugus. The Tigers Matmen are looking forward to their next four matches, which are all against league opponents.

South runners bow to Acton-Boxboro

By ROB MOREHOUSE

Vacation time: a time of joy and merriment, but also a pain for the Newton South track team and Coach Sutherland. This year was no exception as several valuable members were missing. Still, though weakened, South came through heavy snows to lose to powerful Acton-Boxboro, 51½-26½.

But while the team tried hard and the score was better than last year's, many people's time did not improve. It was not a very good week.

In the two mile, Eddy Konin (10:09) provided a bright spot as he took first with a great effort. Tim Williams (11:34) had cramps and though trying hard, did not place. The mile went pretty well as Jay Broadnax had a fine race but took third despite having second for most of it. Neil McManus and Mark Miller looked strong but did not score.

The 40 was a bit weak without Steve Kosowsky, but Fred Hochberger and Greg Jackson (both 5.1) made valiant efforts and ran well. Greg tied for first and Fred for third after a bit of a mixup complicated matters. South felt the absence of John Forti in the 300 as it got a third, thanks to a great run by Mike Goldstein (38.0). Johnny Zoll (39) ran well and was right behind Mike.

The 600 had a big deficit with Steve Shulman and Charlie Strange missing, but mighty Paul Daniels made it up somewhat as he took second in 1:21. Dan Alsup gave a fine effort but did not place. The 1,000 had strong Dave Arons, Frank Otten, and Tom Alsup missing, but John Fraser gave the race a powerful shot, holding second till the fourth lap. After that he could not keep up the pace, and unfortunately dropped out.

The hurdles, with Fred Amicangioli absent, did not go too well as Steve Hall (6.6), though doing well, tied for second. Frank Oglesby came down but did not score.

The field events did not go as well as expected as old reliables, though trying valiantly, did not do as well as they wanted. In the shotput, Adam Ostrach (44'3") took second with a fine throw. Kenny Green and Mark Kase (34') threw well but did not place. In the high jump Mike Westerkamp had a slight off day but still tied for second with great effort. Steve Hall, jumping for the first time, did a creditable 5' but did not score.

The relay was a strong win gotten by good effort from John Fraser, Paul Daniels, Steve Hall, and especially Adam Ostrach. Unfortunately, the win was diminished by the absence of Acton's best runners and fair times by everyone but Steve.

So, South lost, though it made a fine effort. Next week should be better, though the opponent is powerful Concord. The team should be at full strength; who knows what might happen?

Girl's track

The vacation and the snow didn't seem to bother the girl's team too much, which made Coach Blackburn happy. The girls came closer, but lost 40-37. Still, all the girls out on a great effort and did well. Next week should bring better results also.

The mile was stronger as Mara Seely (6:35) ran a great race and took second. Newcomer Sandy Calderone (7:20), looked strong and managed to finish third (helped unexpectedly by Acton).

The 40 remained a strong event as Wendy Shahon (5.4) and Marion Kirshen (5.9) placed as usual, getting first and third with superb efforts. Marion came off a hurt ankle to help the team. The 300 went well as Suzanna Newton (41.5) did her usual excellent job as she won. Leslie Propp (44.4) had an especially fine day as she got third, while Wendy Markoff (46.0) ran well but took fourth.

The 600 did nicely as Penny Shockett (1:43) took second with a fine effort. Ilene Tocci (1:59) ran a beautiful race as she got third, placing for the first time this year. The 1,000 went smoothly despite the absence of Steffie Jacobson as Joanne Pottey (3:21) ran a superb race and won.

The hurdles stayed strong but only Joanne Lefuere (7.9) placed, taking second with a mighty effort. Debi Spielman did well but did not place.

The field events went a bit better for the girls, but still not as well as expected. In the high jump, Suzanna Newton showed great form again as she won. Wendy Shahon (4'3") jumped very well and took third. Penny Shockett made a valiant effort but did not place. In the shotput, a disappointed Kathy Braunies was a bit off, but dig get second on a fine throw. Lianna Corbiere threw well but did not score. Sue Steinberg, who might have done something, was absent.

So, once again it came down to the relay, but this time, South was leading 37-35. It was very close, as Suzanna Newton, Marion Kirshen and Wendy Shahon all ran marvelously. Penny Shockett ran beautifully also, but just missed catching the Acton girl; South just missed winning by three points, 40-37.

The girls did very well and should do better next week at full strength. They are looking very strong now, and the future lies ahead.

Rookie goal gives Red Wings 2-2 tie

For rookies Dwight Schofield of Detroit and Bill Riley of Washington Tuesday night's deadlock in Landover, Md., will be easy to remember. Both scored their first NHL goals and Schofield's lifted the Red Wings to a 2-2 tie with two minutes to play.

"I just can't believe it's true," said Schofield, a 20-yearold defenseman brought up Monday from the International League and playing in his first NHL game. "Everyone dreams of scoring that first goal, but it was asking too much for it to mean that my goal would stop us from losing."

Riley took a centering pass from Gerry Meehan and beat Detroit goalie Eddie Giacomin with 8:02 gone in the third period to tie the score 1-1. Bill Lochead's first-period goal had given Detroit a 1-0 lead.

"It was set up just perfectly," said Riley, who assisted on the winning goal Sunday when the Capitals beat St. Louis for the first time ever. "Gerry waited just until I had come clear and he put the puck right in front of me. It would have been a damn' shame if I had missed such a perfect opportunity."

Riley, playing in his fourth NHL game, was brought up by Washington from the International League last Thursday along with Bill Marson.

Tony White's goal less than five minutes after Riley's score gave the Caps a momentary 2-1 lead. But Schofield stole the puck from two Washington defenders and beat Washington's surprised goalie, Ron Low, at 18:00 of the final period.

Raymond earns grid letter at Deerfield

Jonathan Raymond was awarded a varsity football letter at the annual Deerfield Academy football banquet.

Jonathan, a multi position player, took over the difficult assignment as the teams rover back on defense. Jon was one of two juniors in the starting lineup against Northfield Mt. Hermon in the seasons final game. Deerfield posted an excellent 5-2-1 record.

Jon, a six footer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Raymond of Newton Centre.

Former North girls on Bridgewater St. field hockey squad

BRIDGEWATER — Two former Newton North High School field hockey players, Linda Quintiliani and Laura Rice, held positions on the 1976 Bridgewater State College varsity field hockey team.

Under first-year coach Linda Sears, the Bears compiled a 4-5 record.

Bridgewater was invited to participate in the Northeast District Field Hockey Tournament of the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women and the United States Field Hockey Associationheld at Brown University.

In a field of 16 teams from New England and New York State, Bridgewater advanced to the quarterfinals before bringing the 1976 season to a close.

Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Quintiliani of 10 Rockland street, Newton.

A junior at Bridgewater, she played wing and inner for the Bears. Coach Sears considered her "...a very versatile player with excellent offensive work in the circle." Linda scored the lone goal as Bridgewater triumphed over UMass 1-0 in a very tense match. To make the victory a little sweeter, UMass was coached by Linda's old Newton North mentor, Judy Davidson.

Graduating from Newton North in 1974, she played field hockey, basketball, and softball — serving as softball captain her junior and senior years and field hockey captain her senior year.

Linda's sister, Doreen, is a 1976 graduate of Bridgewater State College in Physical Education. She also played field hockey at BSC and presently coaches junior varsity field hockey and basketball at Westwood High School.

Laura is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Davis of 1670 Centre street, Newton.

The BSC sophomore started at center forward for the Bears. Her position took advantage of her "...offensive, goal rushing ability and her quickness in tackling back," according to coach Sears.

A 1975 graduate of Newton North, Laura played field hockey, basketball, softball, and tennis. She was basketball captain her senior year.

Newton North was Suburban League Champions in 1974 and 1975, during the senior year of each.

Is Fran Tarkenton's arm in good shape?

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — "My arm is sore; I can't throw."

Fran Tarkenton said it strictly as a gag, and then as if to furnish indisputable, first-hand evidence of how utterly outlandish any report like that was, he uncorked a low, spiraling 25-yarder, with plenty of smoke on it, to a waiting receiver shortly before the Minnesota Vikings broke up Tuesday's photo session here.

For the past two weeks now, rumors have been circulating that Tarkenton's throwing arm isn't all it should be. It certainly wasn't in the Vikings' 24-13 victory over the Los Angeles Rams for the NFC title at Bloomigton, Minn., a week and a half ago.

Tarkenton didn't throw the ball well at all, completing less than 50 per cent of his tosses, only 12 of 27 for 143 yards. A number of those he connected with were little swing passes to some of the other Viking backs.

His passing performance against the Rams was so subpar, so sub-Tarkenton, that Tom Brookshier, the former Philadelphia Eagles' cornerback handling the TV coverage that day with Pat Summerall, wondered out loud repeatedly whether there was something wrong with Tarkenton's arm.

The Vikings are four-point underdogs for Sunday's Super Bowl meeting with the Oakland Raiders. Most of the Vikings' hopes are tied in with Tarkenton's arm. If there is anything wrong with it, and that fact became known, the Raiders might jump as high as 8 or 9 point favorites.

Tarkenton keeps insisting his arm is okay, that there isn't anything wrong with it, but he has been known to lay back in the weeds before this and not say a word when he actually was handicapped physically.

Two years ago, after Pittsburgh beat the Vikings, 16-6, in the Super Bowl, Tarkenton admitted his arm was bothering him for some time although he hadn't said anything about it before the game.

Now he keeps insisting the arm is perfectly all right.

"There's nothing wrong with it," he said during Tuesday's turnout for the media. "My arm is not hurt. Yeah, I know what Brookshier said when we played the Rams, but had he asked me beforehand I would've told him my arm was okay. It was my knee that was hurt. We've never made a secret of that. Besides, when the wind chill factor was 12 below, like it was that day, it's not a day for Fancy Dan passing."

It's possible Tarkenton's knee problem is preventing him from setting up the way he would normally, and that is affecting his throwing. Baseball pitchers periodically run into this trouble.

It's also possible Tarkenton is keeping a physical problem to himself, the same way he did two years ago prior to Super Bowl IX. He now claims the condition of his arm was reported to the league before that game but a league spokesman denies this.

The player with the Vikings who probably knows Fran Tarkenton best is veteran center Mick Tingelhoff. The two have been close friends nearly 15 years. They room together.

"He's a sloppy roommate," laughs Tinglehoff. "Throws his clothes all over. Plus I always have to buy the newspaper. He makes a million a year and I have to buy the paper every day. He never bought a paper in his life. He's a great guy, though, tops. We're always getting on each other about something."

Yeah, but what about his arm?

"I knew it was bad two years ago," says Tingelhoff. "He was hurting and never let on to anyone. But his arm is okay now."

If it wasn't would Tingelhoff say so?

"No," says the Vikes' center, laughing some more.

Woman to broadcast White Sox games

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Sports fans aren't accustomed to hearing a woman's voice at sporting events in an official capacity except, perhaps, for the singing of the National Anthem. And because of that, Chicago White Sox fans will be in for a big surprise this season when they tune into White Sox broadcasts.

A woman will be doing the broadcasts on radio station WMAQ along with veteran White Sox broadcaster Harry Caray.

Mary Shane, who has been reporting sporting events here for more than a year for radio station WRIT, has been tabbed as Carey's new partner on at least 20 White Sox broadcasts — and the Milwaukee resident hopes to do even more games.

Mrs. Shane, who may be the first woman to ever do play-by-play broadcasting for a major league team, first came to Caray's attention when he was in Milwaukee to broadcast a game with the Milwaukee Brewers.

He got to know Mrs. Shane and asked her if she would like to do some play-by-play announcing with him on White Sox games. She jumped at the chance and did three games last season in a tryout that led to her job this season. She will begin with spring training in Sarasota, Fla.

"After I did the games the letters I received were favorable though I didn't see the letters the station got," she said. "But they must have been good or they wouldn't have hired me."

Mrs. Shane, 28, is a 1970 graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison and she first tried her hand at teaching, though her heart belonged to sports all along. She has covered Milwaukee Admirals hockey and the Brewers along with the other major sports in the city.

A slim, blonde with a soft but throaty voice, Mrs. Shane says her sex hasn't been a big problem in covering sports. She has to wait outside locker rooms to interview most players but Alex Grammas, manager of the Milwaukee Brewers, allows her into his office for post-game interviews.

Designed to dampen the force of any sudden impacts, the hydraulic shock absorber works equally well whether being squeezed together or pulled apart. When the wheel travels over a bump, the lower cylinder moves with the wheel and is telescoped into the upper cylinder. A piston attached to the upper cylinder eases the telescoping action by plunging into thick fluid at the bottom of the pressure tube. The pressure slows the piston's motion and forces some fluid to flow upward through the compression valve and downward through the reservoir valve into the reservoir tubes.

Mrs. Glickman cited for Brandeis service

Citing her "devotion, loyalty, dedication and tireless efforts," Brandeis University has Sally Marshall Glickman of Newton Centre as winner of its 1976 Alumni Serviee Award.

Sally Glickman, a member of Brandeis' 1959 graduating class, has for 17 years been one of the most active alumni of the university.

Abram L. Sachar, first president of Brandeis and now its chancellor, made the presentation.

Mrs. Glickman has long been identified with alumni affairs at Brandeis. She was elected president of the Alumni Association in 1973, serving until 1975. Earlier, she had been its vice president, and since 1969 she has worked with the Alumni Fund Committee.

In 1972 she was named a president's councilor of the universit and in 1975 she was elected to the Board of Fellows. She has also been active with the Brandeis National Women's Committee, a nationwide volunteer group that supports university libraries, and the Louis D. Brandeis Club.

Following her Brandeis graduation, Mrs. Glickman did graduate work at both Tufts and the State Teachers College in Boston. She has taught at public schools in New Jersey and in Newton and Concord.

Her civic affiliations include Temple Shalom in Newton, Weeks Junior High School and the American Jewish Congress. She is a past president of the Mason-Rice School PTA.

Sally Glickman of Newton Centre shares a broad smile with Brandeis University Chancellor Abram Sachar at recent ceremonies during which she was presented Brandeis' 1976 Alumni Service Award.

Backman sees upturn in state's economy

"With the current upturn in the national economy, we may have also reached a turning point in our state's economic crisis," said Sen. Backman (D-Brookline-Newton) this week.

"As conditions have improved nationally, our own state's economic activity has increased. However, here in Massachusetts, for years we have ignored economic planning and just bobbed with the waves.

"In spite of the national economic upturn there are right now 200,000 people who need jobs in Massachusetts. The governor's proposal for this next session is for a meager program that will put 500 to 1000 people to work some time in the next year or so. This minor proposal will help one-half of 1 percent of those who need jobs. This proposal is unfortunately too minor, too modest," Backman continued.

"The state and national economic goal must be redirected toward a goal of full employment," he said.

"Our goal must be that every person has a right to a job opportunity at decent wages. For too long a time unfeeling political gamesters have been crying out 'make the welfare people work.' But they refuse to come up with programs where every person can get a job."

"Our political leaders are still fearful of biting the bullet of innovative economic growth.

"We must see to it that President-elect Carter sticks to the pre—election promise of his Democratic Platform which calls for a national job program which will solve the Massachusetts unemployment needs, the federal takeover of welfare, which would save Massachusetts

$750 million per year; national health insurance, which all by itself would save Massachusetts $350 million per year; help for our cities, which would eliminate the festering sores of urban decay. "However, until the federal government acts, Massachusetts must not stand still," Backman continued.

"During the coming year, I am hopeful that my recommendations adopted two years ago by the Joint Special Commission on Employment will be enacted. The legislation we introduced then is essential today.

"We need a Massachusetts Economic Development Bank to supply front-end money to new enterprises and for expanding present industry.

"We need a significant Massachusetts job program. We must restructure our Division of Employment Security which is supposed to find jobs but which both employers and employees ignore.

"We need an economic plan for Massachusetts for one year, five years and ten years. We need a crash program to develop the port of Boston and a foreign trade zone for Boston. The whole City of Boston must be rebuilt into a world city of first rate business and residential life," he said.

"With this economic rebirth must come proper health care for our people, early child care and day care for all children whose families desire it, mental health programs that promise relief rather than lockups, home care services for all the elderly who need them.

"Economic growth and human services can go together and grow together!"

Pines files legislative package to improve no-fault divorce

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) and the Family Law Committee of the Boston Bar Association have jointly filed a divorce-reform package for the 1977 legislative session.

According to Pines, current divorce statutes often give an incentive for the principals in a case to perjure themselves in order to avoid the excessive waiting period of no-fault divorce.

Under no-fault divorce, if a separation agreement has been worked out there is a 10-month waiting period before the court will enter a decree nisi and then another six months before the decree becomes final.

Where there has been no agreement, the waiting period is 24 months followed by a six-month decree nisi period. Thus it takes two-and-a-half years after the case first goes to court. The result of this has been that only 10 percent of recent divorces have been granted under no-fault.

"This frequently involves the embellishment or outright manufacture of evidence," states Pines. "An additional by-product is permanent emotional scarring of all parties, including children."

Two of the Pines bills will address the weakness of the no-fault law directly. One will reduce the waiting period from 10 months with a separation agreement or 24 months without one, to 6 and 15 months respectively. The other will reduce the decree nisi period for all divorces from six months to 30 days.

A fourth bill would abolish the action of alienation of affections. Pines believes that it is inappropriate for the court to be the final arbiter of such a vague and emotional issue.

In summing up the reform package, Pines described her bills as "a further attempt to bring Massachusetts divorce laws into the 20th century."

Mrs. Sobin to speak on trading with China

By MAXINE EFFENSON

The first American woman to trade with the People's Republic of China , Lee F. Sobin, will speak at Newton South High School on Jan. 13 from 10:05-10:55 a.m. She will discuss her career and her experiences dealing with China.

After the dissolution of the embargo act with China in 1972, Mrs. Sobin was invited to China to attend the Canton Trade Fair with her husband, Julian. Sobin, president of Sobin Chemicals Inc. and executive vice president of International Minerals and Chemicals Corp., was one of three men from the United States invited to attend the Canton Fair.

The Chinese, originators of women's liberation, were so impressed by Mrs. Sobin's economic knowledge from her extensive travels that they encouraged her to go into business for herself.

In 1972, Mrs. Sobin started the Friendship International Club, which deals in trade with China. The trading ranges from pharmaceutical products to tea to apparel.

The Friendship International Club brings approximately $10 million into the country annually.

She now has over 40 clients from some of the largest companies in the country.

She has been invited back to China 11 times. In addition to conducting business with China, she has attended tea ceremonies, a part of the Chinese tradition, and observed doctors conduct surgery using acupuncture.

Intrigued by the expressionless faces of the patients undergoing the surgery, Mrs. Sobin also tried acupuncture for her arthritic thumb.

A woman with many interests, Mrs. Sobin skis, plays tennis, collects early Chinese artifacts and 20th century German expressionist paintings, cooks, and gardens. She has twice been a member of a Harvard University Overseers Visiting Committee and has been active on the Ladies' Committee Affairs of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

This lecture is sponsored by Newton South's enrichment program. All interested students may attend.

Conservation program open to college, high school students

High school and college students who would like to spend three to 12 weeks next summer doing conservation work in parks and forests are prime candidates for the Student Conservation Program.

Student volunteers perform tasks which range from maintaining trails and constructing campsites to patrolling back-country areas, leading nature walks, and assisting in research programs.

The Student Conservation Program has positions available in 40 parks and forests across the nation, from the Maine seacoast of Acadia National Park to the forests of the Great Smokies, from the wilderness of Yellowstone to the great Northwestern fir forests and snowy mountains of Olympic National Park.

The goal of the program is to provide students with on-the-site training and education in natural-resource management, and in so doing, provide agencies hich manage public lands with volunteer labor to undertake activities they would otherwise not be able to do.

High school students at least 16 years of age are eligible to participate in work groups of 10-15 students each, under the supervision of trained personnel. The groups generally spend two to three weeks camping in backcountry locations while performing maintenance work for the park or forest. The group then goes for a week-long hiking trip through the area.

Some financial assistance is available to cover travel and equipment costs for participants who need it.

College students are eligible to be park and forest assistants. In those positions they have the opportunity to spend 8 to 12 weeks learning and performing the duties and responsibilities of Park or Forest Service personnel. Park or forest assistants receive grants to cover travel and living expenses.

Interested students should write to the Student Conservation Association, P.O. Box 550, Charlestown' N.H. 03603, for more information and an application form. A detailed program list with descriptions of the activities in each park and forest is available. Applications are due by March 1, 1977.

Holidays made happier by hospital helpers

To make the holidays a little cheerier for those hospitalbound, several groups and individuals contributed their talents and gifts to both children and adults hospitalized at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A stage complete with hand puppets was made and presented to the pediatrics unit by Brownie Troop 727 of Wellesley, and a large gingerbread house was homemade by Ann-Marie Jutras of West Newton.

Children on the pediatrics unit also received gifts from Lisa Karger of Newton Centre and from Pro-Am Sports of East Braintree.

Douglas Garron, representing the Wellesley Kiwanis, entertained patients with songs, accompanying himself on the guitar. He also distributed candy-filled stockings, donated by the Italo-American Club of Wellesley.

The Newton Jaycees added merriment with Christmas carols in the corridors one day, while the Newton-Wellesley Medical Explorers' Post brought gifts for pediatric patients.

The hospital was not, however, only on the receiving end at Christmastime. The nurses of the nursery and operating room organized and donated a basket of food to a needy Newton family amd the nursery nurses also made festive stockings large enough for the newborns to visit their mothers in on Christmas morning.

The hospital wishes a happy new year and extends a special thanks to all those who gave of themselves so that others could share in the holiday spirit.

Pines 'distressed' by court decision on pregnancy disability

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) has voiced her opposition to the Dec. 7 U.S. Supreme Court decision in the General Electric case which strikes down the mandatory compensation of absences from work due to pregnancy.

"The logic of Justice Rehnquist's majority opinion is as convoluted as any I have ever read," Pines, an attorney, stated. "It reverses the findings of every U.S. Court of Appeals that has heard such cases. The Appeals Courts have upheld the right to compensation for pregnancy on the grounds that its exclusion violates Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Supreme Court has now rejected this."

Pines believes that the ruling makes the enforcement of existing law, and the enactment of bills dealing with sex discrimination, all the more urgent. She has been a major legislative force in this area. Her 1974 law bans discrimination against women in the issuance of insurance coverage. She has filed a bill in each of the last four sessions of the General Court requiring that maternity leaves be treated as any other disability. Although the bill has met with defeat, it will be reintroduced in 1977. Pines feels that in light of the opinion, passage of the legislation has taken on a new urgency.

Rep. Pines expressed fears that this decision may have a disasterous effect on employment policies for women. "The majority opinion stated that unless the issue of pregnancy disability coverage could be conclusively proven as being used as a 'pretext' for discriminating against women, such discrimination was not illegal!" she explained.

The ramifications of the decision are far reaching, according to Rep. Pines. "The ruling makes little sense. It approves coverage for male disabilities due to vasectomies, circumcisions and prostatectomies, but denies coverage to women who have the sole responsibility for childbearing," she said.

"The Supreme Court ruled that the exclusion of pregnancy disability coverage was motivated by monetary considerations. It rejected the findings of the Federal District Court which found that General Electric's 'discriminatory attitude toward women was a motivating factor in its policy.'

"The decision of the U.S. Supreme Court is extremely distressing," stated Rep. Pines.

MGH personnel director retiring

Mrs. Ruth MacRobert, director of personnel since 1962, is leaving Massachusetts General Hospital in January to pursue a variety of professional and volunteer activities.

She plans to expand the consulting work she has already begun for small businesses and hospitals.

Among the new activities she would like to explore is teaching.

In her 15 years asdirector of personnel, Mrs. MacRobert developed a program of personnel policies, salaries and benefits.

Her career was marked by many "firsts." She was the first woman to elect all the courses in personnel administration and industrial relations at Cornell University's School of Hotel Management. She was the first female graduate whose beginning job, as personnel director of a knitting mill, was on the management level.

She has also held first-of-a-kind administrative positions in personnel management with the Reader's Digest Association, the Alexander Smith Carpet Company, R.H. Macy & Co., and the Eagle Pencil Company, all located in or near New York City. While living in that area, she held various civic posts in Westchester County.

She is the mother of one son, who is the 19th person in her family to graduate from Cornell University. Her husband is an author and editor of science textbooks. The family lives in Newton Highlands.

Forecast Better Health Care

NEW YORK (UPI) — Better health care for more of the nation's labor force was forecast by Sue A. Bill, president of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses, formerly the American Association of Industrial Nurses.

Mrs. Bill, supervising nurse, American Tele0hone and Telegraph Company, New Brinswick, N.J., based her prediction on the fact that on-the-job health care is expanding rapidly in both location and scope.

For instance, at the turn of the century workers employed by heavy industry were the main beneficiaries of a "company nurse." "But today," Mrs. Bill pointed out, "occupational health nurses are also available to employes in locations ranging from entertainment centers to department stores, from art museums to space laboratories."

Regular review of state boards proposed in Pines' legislation

State Representative Lois Pines (D-Newton) has introduced a bill for the 1977 legislative session which provides for the automatic termination of all state agencies unless affirmatively reviewed by the legislature.

Modeled after a bill filed in the U.S. Senate last year and legislation operating successfully in other states, the Pines bill requires that a thorough review of each state agency be conducted every five years.

"The taxpayers of the Commonwealth can no longer afford to pay the ever-escalating cost for services and programs that may well be unnecessary," Pines stated.

According to Pines, the trend during the previous 15 years to address every new problem by the creation of new legislative programs has led to a proliferation of government activity without any mechanism for evaluating their performance.

"There are dozens of boards and commissions that have little, if any, meaningful oversight. It is time we determine whether i or not they are dealing with the problems for which they were create2," she said.

The Pines bill additionally provides for a comprehensive review of government tax expenditures. The regular review of pro- i grams and legislation concerning such devices as tax credits and deductions, by analyzing all relevent data, will allow the legislature to determine how much money, in real dollars, is being spent.ii i

"The practical effect of many of these benefits is a publid subsidy of the groups involved. In many instances, such as the ' ii business investment tax credit, the cost of providing the benefit i i is more than justified. However, there are instances when a particular incentive was adopted to deal with a problem which no longer'i i exists," she said. i ii i i ii i i

The Pines bill also provides for public hearings on the annual reports which will be required of all agencies. Citizen input will help ensure that the legislature performs its oversight i duties. i i

These agency reports will evaluate their performance and i i must justify their existence from a budgetary base of zero. Under i i this system, all expenditures must be explained, including items i built in from previous budgets, not just new items as in the present! i system. i

Recognizing the increased workload that would be created for the legislature, the bill provides for a staggered review of allii agencies with the process to be completed by 1983.

In addition, the bill contains its own "sunset" provision, whereby the legislature would determine at the end of the zero-base ' review process whether any modification or termination of the proces itself is required.

Tracing family roots as hobby

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Joseph Van Sickler of Cape Coral, Fla., peering at a screen, found something she had been seeking for 14 years — a trace of her father's mother's parents.

"I found them in Chicago, in the 1900 census," she said. "It showed they'd been living in the United States for 15 years. Once I had that, it was easy to go to ship passenger lists from 1885 until I found where they'd all come over."

Mrs. Van Sickler is an amateur genealogist. She was doing her research on microfilmed records at the National Archives, storehouse of government records.

Across America, tracing family roots has skyrocketed as a hobby.

At the National Archives, where amateur genealogists are called "geanies," the number of research passes issued to visitors has doubled in 10 years, and is no longer the avocation of those seeking to qualify for membership in some blueblood organization.

A staff of 60 is required to handle the 4,000 letters that arrive every week seeking help. If the writer can fill out a form to pinpoint what he needs, he can obtain photocopied records for $3 a sheet.

About 70 per cent of the 20,029 passes issued last year went to people who came to the archives to seek out their family histories in the archives' military service and pension records, immigrant ship passenger lists and census records, which are kept secret for 70 years.

These records are kept under the direction of Texas-born Bill Linder, whose wife claims George Washington as an ancestor and who found, in researching his own family, that his great grandfather was a convicted murderer.

Linder's interest in his own ancestry caused him to give up a career in aerospace and get into archival work.

He believes national interest is high because of the "extended family" that rarely exists any longer.

"In Kenedy, Tex. I grew up with grandparents and great uncles and third cousins," he says. "We all had Sunday dinner together. My kids don't have that. If they're going to know anything about their family, they're going to read it."

The Bicentennial also spurred interest, Linder said. "Roots", Alex Haley's account of how his search for ancestors carried him to Africa, has been a recent runaway bestseller.

In Mrs. Van Sickler's case, religion was the motivator. The Van Sicklers are Mormons and practice baptism by proxy of deceased ancestors.

When she located her husband's immigrant great grandparents in the Chicago census, she learned much: that they owned a house with a mortgage, that they had 11 children, one of whom died at sea, that one son peddled meats and another was a printer, that all the children except Gustov, 9, were born in Germany, that an apartment in the house was rented to a married daughter, whose mother-in-law lived there, too, and that the mother-in-law had had five children.

"My mother died when I was a child, and when I used to ask my father about his ancestors, he would say, 'Why don't you let the dead rest?'" Mrs. Van Sickler said. "But this brings you closer to your family. Your eyes get tired, but it's worth it."

Mrs. Van Sickler's husband, operator of a dry cleaning shop, has traced his family to the 1600s. He suspects he may be a descendant of Millard Fillmore, 13th U.S. president. His mother's maiden name was Millard.

Also working in the archives' research room was Joseph Coulter, a bearded retired Army colonel who traces other peoples' ancestors for a fee. He works by the hour.

Of his 12 steady clients, one is a Civil War buff in Alabama, who collects old uniforms and likes to know the war records of the men in blue or grey whose names are attached to the uniforms.

In eight years, Coulter has traced his own family through eight generations to a British soldier who fought in the French-Indian Wars and was discharged in 1763. At his home, family records fill seven file cabinet drawers.

Archivist Linder says most Americans, because of intermarriage, can find ancestors from colonial or revolutionary war days. Only relative newcomers, or persons whose families married only within their own ethnic groups, are unlikely to have such a link to the nation's past, he says.

"After all," he says, "after 21 generations you have over one million ancestors."

"Of course, records rarely go that far back. English parish registers go back to 1538. Before then, if you didn't have money, land or position, you didn't make the records."

He says the news from the past isn't always happy news. "But people aren't so narrow any more," he says. "An illegitimate birth in the family background doesn't bother most."

Amateur genealogists need not come to Washington to dig into their pasts. Census record microfilms are stored in 12 regional centers and in many state archives.

Courthouses are a storehouse of deeds, marriage records, wills and court records — all fertile territory. Church records shed much light. Most localities have historical and genealogical societies.

The Mormon Church, with the biggest genealogical library in the world and a microfilming program that even reaches behind the Iron Curtain, maintains records in branches in large cities across the country.

The National Archives (Zip: 20408) offers a one-page guide, "Genealogical Research — How to Begin."

N.Y. library is big help to 'Geanies'

NEW YORK (UPI) — One woman researching her family's history at the New York Public Library almost screamed when she found evidence of an ancestor who was a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Her reaction was unusual, but many of the thousands who use the genealogy division at Fifth Ave. and 42nd St. each year become so excited about their findings that they confide in the librarians, says Timothy Beard. He is one of three full-timers on the staff of Gunther E. Pohl, chief of the Local History and Genealogy divisions.

In an interview, Pohl said so much correspondence comes from all over the world that the staff, which also includes a half-timer, cannot undertake extensive research. So they answer most queries with a form letter.

The 80 or so persons who show up on a typical day get all the guidance they want on the spot, but have to do their own research, Pohl said. He added that a good percentage but not a majority are from out of town.

Helping many of the amateurs isn't simple.

"We have to pry information out ... Some people are very secretive. They don't want to reveal skeletons in the family closet," Pohl said.

"If young people are looking for their biological parents, they tend to be shy about asking."

In beginning a search, Pohl said it helps to have such clues as the birthdate of your first child or naturalization records if you or a member of the family emigrated.

It also helps to know the smallest political subdivision in which an ancestor lived: the town or city or county.

The rest depends on perseverance, time, discipline, coordination and considerable imagination in asking the right questions, Pohl said.

He credits "the definite climate of nostalgia" with expanding Americans' interest in the subject.

"We had one woman here doing genealogy from postcards. She had met her husband in a railroad station in Wisconsin or Minnesota. She was looking for and found postcards of that station and other places that figured in their life together: where they'd married, honeymooned, vacationed and lived."

In addition to the amateurs, the division draws a lot of authors, particularly biographers, but also novelists looking for historical background.

"I came in early one morning and found (historian) Samuel Eliot Morison sitting at that table reading the city directories," said Beard, gesturing toward one end of the room.

Other authors who have made extensive use of the division include biographer Ralph Martin, author of "Jennie."

School tailors study to oldsters' needs

The road to the fountain of youth may be paved with books.

That's a hunch advanced by Dr. Robert W. Adamson, founder of The College at Sixty at Fordham University's Lincoln Center Campus in New York City.

"There are no scientific studies or statistics yet to support this claim of increased longevity and better health for older scholars," says Adamson. "but I personally have seen many an oldster sprout some fresh blossoms soon after trudging along the academic trail.

"It gives them a reason for living."

The College at Sixty tailors its outlook and curriculum to the older student.

"We say 'sixty' but the age range is anywhere from 50 through the 80's," Adamson said.

"In this way, the older student functions at first in an academic environment of peers.

"Later, when they become confident, have achieved an academic toehold and have sharpened their learning skills, we encourage them to move into the liberal arts college, attending class with students a generation or two younger.

"They make that step in groups of three or four and don't seem like oddities in the younger classes."

The hurdle in getting the older student conditioned to studying again, according to Adamson, is building confidence.

"In most continuing education programs, retired citizens are thrown in with students many years their junior. While at first this may appear as a challenge, often it turns into devastating cultural shock."

Study at The College at Sixty consists of four nonpressured seminars chosen from philosophy, art, literature, science, economics and psychology.

Each student takes one seminar per semester. Upon completion of four seminars, a certificate is awarded. This entitles the holder to enter Fordham's liberal arts college without meeting additional admission requirements.

Adamson sees the Fordham program as more than an alternative to retirement.

"It is a constructive way to avoid 'mental poverty' in older persons," he said.

"As persons retire their options shrink. Over the years many have lost the skills of the life of the mind. It's our aim to help them regain and increase those skills."

Adamson says there are many myths about older persons.

"They do, of course, decline physically," he said.

"But a number of studies have shown that they definitely do not decline mentally over the years.

A mind of 80 can be as sharp as one of 18. Actually, it's mostly the lack of proper use of their mental capabilities that makes older persons appear less keen."

Adamson, whose doctorate is in psychology, has studied extensively in aging and psychology. His interest in education for the elderly goes back to 1940 when his widowed mother, now 94, felt the need to return to college when the last of her four children left home for college.

An empty-nester and Smith College graduate, class of 1904, she had no trouble getting into courses in Russian history at Radcliffe.

Jennifer Bagley of Newton Highlands is exhibiting prints at the West Newton branch of the Newton Free Library, 25 Chestnut Street, Jan. 4-31.

The woodcuts in the show, some of which are multicolored, include a series of Scottish landscapes. Bagley spent a year in Scotland where she worked in a cooperative printmaking studio doing etchings and woodcuts.

Bagley's interest in woodcuts is twofold. She is intrigued by the possibilities offered by the grain in the wood and the techniques of screen printing, and she wants to sell her work at modest prices so it can be available to more people.

A member of the Boston Visual Artists Union, Bagley works in the Newton schools through the PTA Council's Creative Arts Committee. She is also working on a masters degree at Boston University.

Glenn Ralston will show his photographs during January at Newtonville Branch Library, 345 Walnut St. His photographs of nature, people and animals are done both in color and black-and-white.

At the Auburndale branch on 375 Auburn St., Robert Seavey, a Newton resident and MIT graduate, is exhibiting oils and pastels. The show will be up until the end of January.

Branch hours vary. Call the individual library to check hours of opening.

A one-women show of sculpture by Polly Egelson of Newton is on view at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, through Jan. 30. A reception for the artist will be held at the library, Tuesday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m. All are welcome.

'The Window' by Polly Egelson. Mrs. Egelson of Newton Lower Falls, is having a one-woman show of sculpture at the Newton Free Library Jan. 5-30. There will be a reception for her Tuesday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m., at the Main Library on Centre Street in Newton Corner.

Sculptor guest of Art Assn.

The Newton Art Association will welcome Lloyd Lillie, nationally known sculptor, Thursday, Jan. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the Newton Highlands Women's Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands.

Lillie, born in Washington, D.C., received his art education at the Corcoran School of Art, Washington, D.C., 1952-54, at the Skowhegan School of Painting and Sculpture in Maine, 1955-57, at the Boston Museum School, 1957-59, the Clarissa Bartlett Traveling Fellowship in 1959 and the Academia diBelle Arti, Florence, Italy, in 1960.

He has been a teaching professor at Boston University since 1961. His prizes include First Prize, Corcoran School of Art, 1955, Skowhegan School Purchase Prize in 1955 and 1957, First Prize Boston Arts Festival, 1964, and the Edward Boit Prize for Sculpture, Boston Museum of Fine Arts, 1959.

Lillie has been involved in many one-and two-man shows in and around Boston.

Most recently he completed a life-size bronze of Thomas Jefferson for the Saaranen Arch, St. Louis, Mo. He has served as a consultant for the U.S. Dept. of the Interior, National Parks Services since 1956.

Lillie will render a model of a running horse for the Newton Art Association's members and guests, plus exhibit other sculptures he has recently executed.

Members and guests are invited, there is a guest fee of $1.

Ms. Daner to explain enameling techniques

The Enamel Guild of the Wellesley Arts and Crafts Guild announces a program to be given by Judith Daner of Newton, nationally known enamelist, on Sunday, Jan. 9' from 3-5 p.m. at the Village Church in Wellesley Square.

Ms. Daner will show slides and actual demonstration pieces of techniques, application, and contemporary use of enamels.

She graduated from Pratt Institute and started her career in enameling as designer of enamel giftware for Bovano of Cheshire, Conn. She is currently on the faculty of the DeCordova Museum and the Worcester Craft Center.

Ms. Daner has exhibited widely in the United States and Canada, and has been in many juried shows, most notably "Craftforms," Brockton Museum Art Center; The Biennale International; Concord Art Association; and DeCordova Museum Expo.

Her invitational shows include the Ledgemont Kennicott Copper Exhibit, "Ten Talents at Tufts University," and American Enamelists, Worcester Craft Center. She has also had several one— and two-person exhibits.

Ms. Daner's special commission pieces can be seen at the Union National Bank in Watertown, the Leominster Savings Bank in Leominster, and the First National Bank in Boston.

Refreshments will be served after the presentation and admission is free.

Greater Bostonians hosting auditions

Auditions for instrumentalists and vocalists for The Greater Bostonians will be held at Northeastern University beginning Saturday Jan. 8 at noon.

Auditions are welcome from students attending all high schools in Boston and suburban Greater Boston.

The Greater Bostonians will rehearse each Sunday at Northeastern University from January to June, 1977. During June, the group will produce a television special and appear in a number of public performances including a special concert in Symphony Hall.

This will be the ninth season of The Greater Bostonian under the direction of Jerry Boisen, acting chairman music department, Boston Latin School; and Richard Laman, director of music, Wakefield Public Schools.

The Greater Bostonians are honored to have the support of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Boston Public Schools, Northeastern University and Television Station WNAC-TV.

'P.S. Your Cat is Dead' opens at Boston Rep

James Kirkwood's comedy "P.S. Your Cat is Dead" opens Jan. 12 at the Boston Repertory Theatre, One Boylston Place, Boston. It will run through Feb. 20.

James Kirkwood, author of several novels including "Good Times-Bad Times" and "Some Kind of Hero," is probably best known as the co-author of last year's Broadway hit, "A Chorus Line."

"P.S. Your Cat is Dead" was written originally for the stage and later adapted as a novel. It is a zany, offbeat comedy about a struggling actor whose life is beset with disasters.

On New Year's Eve he discovers a burglar under his bed, and the evening progresses in a series of bizarre and unbelievably funny events.

"P.S. Your Cat is Dead" previews Jan. 12-16. All seats for previews are $2.50. Performances are Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m. Saturday at 6 and 9 p.m., and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $4.50-6. Student rush $1 off. For reservations and group rates call 423-6580.

Poets to read work at Waban branch library

Domenic Falcone, Kenneth Johnson, Noreen Kimball, and Antonia Phillips Rabb will read their poetry Monday, Jan. 17, at 1:30 p.m. at the Waban branch of the Newton Free Library, 1608 Beacon St.

Rabb, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College and Boston University, studied poetry with John Holmes at Tufts University. Under the name of Jan Novakoff she has written two books of poetry; "Rascal Cadence" and "Three Looks."

Noreen Kimball, the assistant manager of the Unitarian Universalist "World," is a Newton resident who has been writing poetry for four years. She is on the Board of Directors of the Stone Soup Society in Cambridge and has given readings at Stone Soup, Radcliffe, and the University of Vermont.

Kenneth Johnson, a professor of English at Suffolk University, has had work published in many reviews and quarterlies including "Nimrod," "Epos," "The New Poetry Review," "Flame," "The Readers Round Table" and others. He received a B.A. from Hofstra University, an M.A. from Cornell University and a Ph.D. from Denver University.

Domenic Falcone of Lexington was a co-director and founder of the Sun Gallery in Provincetown where many of his poems were read. Some of his poems are being made into animated films at the Yellow Ball Workshop in Lexington.

Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde invites all those interested to attend the poetry reading and remain for refreshments.

MUSE concert to be Jan. 21

Paul W. Wiggin, director of MUSE, Inc. (Music Serving the Elderly) will present a concert featuring German lieder ballads and classical folk music at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Friday, Jan. 21, at 10:30 a.m.

The concert series expands the library's outreach programs and service to shut-ins in their homes, who, by prior arrangement, request the service at a time and date of their own choosing.

Transportation will be provided from the city apartments for the elderly. For more information contact the Social Services Librarian, 527-7700.

Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian invites patrons to come for coffee at 10 a.m. and to remain for the concert.

Dana Hall recital set

Dana School of Music presents Lucienne Davidson, pianist at Beveridge Hall, Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. on Dana Hall campus.

Ms. Davidson returns to Dana Hall this year in a solo recital, following her highly successful performance of "Peter aad the Wolf" last year. She has continued to be active this year as soloist and chamber player in the Boston area, appearing twice at the Gardner Museum, at Marlboro College in Vermont, as well as touring the New England area with a flute and piano program.

Ms. Davidson's future projects include a solo recital at the Longy School in March, as well as a two-piano recital at Harvard's Kirkland House.

The recital is open to the public free of charge.

Dance course offered

"As well as learning the basic dances such as foxtrot, waltz, cha cha and swing, we learn the latest dances such as the hustle and the bus stop," says dance instructor Joanne (Patriarce) Langione of her ballroom class beginning Monday, Jan. 17, at the Newton Community Service Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

Ballroom dancing is coming back in full swing being taught at community centers, colleges, and evening schools everywhere. People are returning to social dance simply because it's fun and good exercise.

The course is designed for the beginner who has perhaps studied a little dance or even none at all. One may come alone or with a partner. The class will meet on Monday evenings at 7:30 p.m. on a regular basis for 10 weeks. The fee will be $25 per person for the 10-week session.

If you have any questions about the course or if you would like to pre-register, call the instructor evenings at 964-4629.

Stargazing is warm fun at Hayden Planetarium

Do your stargazing this winter in the warmth and comfort of the Hayden Planetarium at Boston's Museum of Science.

The next program at the planetarium, "Stars of Winter," points out the stars and planets visible to the naked eye this season, and tells what time of night they appear. The program runs from Jan. 4-17.

The celestial highlights simulated on the planetarium's high dome include the planets Venus, Jupiter, and Saturn seen in the evening sky; the variable star Mira, which brightens and then dims over an 11-month period; and the constellation of Orion, the Hunter, symbol of winter. Others are Sirius, the Dog Star, and Betelgeuse, the red supergiant star.

Earth is closest to the sun of Jan. 3, not at a date in summer as many people believe. Despite the closer relationship, the season is cold as a result of the tilt of Earth's axis. The sun's rays hit our northern hemisphere at a slant instead of with the direct intensity of summer, and the shorter days and longer nights of winter do not give Earth much time to warm up.

"Stars of Winter" is given Monday at 11 a.m., Tuesday through Friday at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., Saturday at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m.; Sunday at noon and 2 and 3 p.m.; and Friday at 8 p.m. The fee is 50 cents in addition to Museum of Science admission. Children under five are not allowed to attend.

Israel Projects Recor Winter Fares

Israel expects 1976 to be the record year ever for tourism. Over 800,000 tourists are expected to arrive in the country by December 31, surpassing the 1972 record of 728,000.

Factors contributing to the increase include the improvement both in the security situation in the Middle East and the financial climate in the United States. A major reason for the unprecedented upsurge of tourists are the comparatively inexpensive cost of hotel accommodations in Israel, as well as seasonal reduction in all fares: the lowest of the winter fares is the $571 4 to 9 day tour-fare, compared with the lowest summer fa tra it ch de wi na pr $6 to

"THERE IS NOTHING THAT CAN BE SUBSTITUTED FOR SEEING ISRAEL FOR YOURSELF."

—Yitzhak Rabin, Prime Minister of Israel

"I don't believe that there is a better way to express your feelings than to actually go to Israel....There is something special about the Holy Land....Those who go, come back entirely different. They see something that no words can describe."

So spoke Yitzhak Rabin, Prime Minister of Israel, at the beginning of this Solidarity Pilgrimage Year. Yet, what Rabin said is an echo of what every person has felt who has ever visited Israel. You know this.

If you don't you'll learn it at Pesach, when, sitting at the Seder in Israel, every symbol of this festival of freedom will take on richness that almost aches.

You'll know the feeling when you join the crowd and dance through the streets on Purim or Independence Day.

You'll feel it on Shavuot, as the First Fruits are paraded through the kibbutz with so much bursting pride. And at the Western Wall, where the ancient chanting through the night seems to make centuries melt away.

You'll know what "no words can describe" when you walk through the streets of Israel at Sukkot, and find yourself surrounded by beautiful Sukkot booths in every yard and on every balcony.

You'll feel it at Chanukah, at the candle lighting ceremony atop Mount Zion.

But you don't need a celebration to share these experiences. Because every day of Solidarity Year is a celebration of your partnership with Israel.

And once you go and feel these things for the first time, as many times as you return will never be enough.

Snow money gone, $745,000 sought

Floods

After the snow came the rain Monday and everyone's worst fears were realized when low-lying areas began filling with water. Motorists in Newton encountered anywhere from a few inches on some streets to upwards of three feet on others. Pictured above, one driver waits to try his luck passing three cars stalled in water on Centre Street near the Boston College Law School. (Williams photo)

Winter delivered a one-two punch to Newton last weekend and early this week, leaving the city ill-equipped for the third blow expected Friday.

A fire at 22 Cottage Place, West Newton, and the death of a Michael D'Angelo of Nonantum were attributable to the storm.

Last Friday's storm dumped 14 inches of snow on the foot or so of snow already accumulated, and more snow plus warm temperatures Monday caused serious flooding.

Many streets remain ice-covered hazards, despite almost round-the-clock work by the Public Works Department.

The Public Works Department has used up all its snow control money, and Commissioner Gene Larson has requested an additional $745,000 appropriation from the Board of Aldermen. A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held tonight (Thursday) on the request.

Larson estimated Wednesday that he spent $70,000 in overtime and $100,000 on hired equipment for the Friday-to Tuesday operation.

The snow started at 3:15 a.m. Friday. According to Larson, sanders were out at 3:45 a.m. and plowing began at 4:15 a.m.

About an hour later, Larson said, the hired equipment started coming. By 9 a.m., the combined city and hired equipment totaled almost 150 pieces on the job.

Equipment breakdowns had depleted the rolling stock severely by Tuesday, with only three sidewalk plows usable by then.

About nine rubbish packer trucks were still in service. Larson announced that residents should wait until their regular collection days next week to put rubbish out.

Severe street flooding occurred Monday, as heavy rain and warm temperatures made streets into rivers, with no place for the water to go.

Catchbasins were covered by plowed snow, and city workers had difficulty locating them to clear the drains. After the rain stopped in midafternoon, temperatures started going down. Half-plowed streets and huge puddles began to freeze and made further plowing almost useless.

Sanding trucks have been on the job almost constantly. On Tuesday 11 sanders were out.

The Monday flooding caused flooded garages and cellars in all parts of the city.

Sewer division pumps were called to help homeowners.

Mayor Theodore Mann called a state of emergency at about 3:10 p.m. Monday, and the emergency was still in effect Wednesday at noon. A state of emergency gives wide power to the chief of police and the mayor regarding public safety.

Residents were asked to keep their cars off the streets when possible and to uncover catchbasins near their houses to let the water drain off the streets.

Motorists were trapped in floods on Commonwealth Avenue, Beacon Street, and other locations as their cars stalled in water that sometimes reached a depth of 3 ½ feet.

The Newton Fire Department responded to one fire during the four-day storm and its aftermath. A fire at 22 Cottage Pl., West Newton, was believed to have been caused by an overturned candle. The house was without electricity because of the storm.

The Charest family, of the Cottage Place address, was aided by the Red Cross and located in a motel for three days.

According to Lt. Frank Howley of the Fire Department, firefighters responded to more than 30 calls about short circuits due to leaking roofs or water in electrical fixtures.

The Fire Department had about 50 calls for leaking roofs and flooded cellars, Howley said. The Fire Department cannot handle such matters, he said, and refers the callers to roofing contractors and to the city's sewer division for pumping.

Police reported 21 motor vehicle accidents on Friday and fortunately no one was injured. There were three accidents Saturday, six Sunday, and seven reported

City worker Kevin Fraser, 25, of Newtonville, was uninjured when his bombadier sidewalk plow tipped over Sunday night while he was working on Grove Street in Auburndale. The plow was righted by a city crane truck, and work continued. (Williams photo)

John Lacy of 200 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, was one of many citizens who helped city workers in a their concerted, day-long attempt to free storm drains so that rainwater could drain during Monday's storm. His garage, he said, was flooded by 6 p.m. (Williams photo)

City workers toiled endlessly to free city

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

Newton public works employees are the heroes of the storm.

On the public works radio Monday:

"Where are you?"

"Carlson Road—there's a big flood here."

"This is the supper hour."

"We can't leave here now."

Such exchanges were common during the four days Newton was trying to dig, and then bail, out of the results of two major storms in four days.

Work began in the pre-dawn hours Friday when blizzard number one struck. Plowing and sanding went on all day long in an effort to keep up with a 14-inch snowfall.

That was only the beginning.

Friday night, forecasters were grimly predicting a combination punch of snow and rain, expected to begin late Sunday night.

Crews worked Saturday, continuing to plow and remove snow in preparation for the next onslaught.

Snow began to fall again after midnight Sunday, and communters awoke to find several inches of snow Monday morning.

Plowing was full steam ahead Monday morning, but the worst was yet to come. As predicted, the snow changed to a relentless downpour, and it was time for the city workers to switch gears again.

The order went out to begin work on freeing storm drains, a frantic effort to ease the tide of rising flood waters.

Motorists found themselves afloat on city streets and high surrounding highways. A Dedham Street resident called to report her basement "half full" of water.

On Commonwealth Avenue in West Newton, the water was deep enough to come in the car doors.

One call was received of an adventurous resident canoeing on his West Newton street.

Four Corners filled with water; City Hall almost became an island. Adams Street in Nonantum, at one point, contained at least one foot of water, while on Highland Avenue the depth was reported to be two and a half feet. Tuesday afternoon, all the beleaguered crews had to look forward to was predicted subfreezing temperatures, which would freeze all the water in the streets.

Crews all over the city met each report of a new problem without complaint.

The 250 men on the city labor force worked for four days and nights with only a few hours' sleep when they could catch it.

Friday morning on the radio:

"There's a man in an iron lung on Boulder Road. "

"We'll get it done right away."

People all over the city needed special attention and got it.

There's always the one who wants to take advantage, though.

The public works commissioner looked up one person claiming to be a doctor, who needed plowing out immediately in case of emergency. He wasn't a doctor.

As the cold and snow wore on, breakdowns of equipment began happening. On the radio: "We've been broken down for an hour. We'd like to get back for a while and get warm." Said matter-of-factly, not complaining.

On Monday, during the long, soaking rain, city workers, including Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson, were out trying to clear the catchbasins to prevent flooding. Over the radio: "The catchbasin cover is gone. I just stepped in the hole — right over the boot."

At the height of the flooding problem Monday, Larson got on the air:

Freddie and all of you—I want you all to keep on doing a fantastic job. We'll bail the people out. Then maybe we can let all the people know. . . "

An announcement was made over the air that the Red Cross had come to the Crafts Street yard with coffee. One wistful reply: "We're soaking wet, we're cold. Got any booze? I haven't had a drink in 20 years, but I'd like one today."

Larson worked right along with his men. After he had cleared a drain at Quinobequin Road Monday night and was heading toward the other end of town, one of his men called in that another drain on Quinobequin Road needed attention.

The conversation went like this: "Let the drain people do it. Why are you telling me?"

"I thought you liked doing them, Commissioner."

Shouted out over the air was the call to a piece of equipment: "Can you come back right now?"

"It'll take a couple of minutes."

"No supper hour." No complaint.

Accidents

Marjorie Kaplan of Linwood Ave., Newtonville, was among 21 drivers Friday who had minor accidents due to snow. Pictured is one of two accidents at the same corner Friday morning. Officers Charles Doucette and Richard Murphy were on the scene at the intersection of Forest and Walnut streets in Newton Highlands,. (Williams photo)

Reorganization of assessing dept. recommended by new chairman

A single principal assessor responsible for functions of the Assessing Department and at least two subordinate assessors has been proposed by Leonard Aronson, new chairman of the Board of Assessors.

Aronson, who assumed the chairmanship after the resignation of Assessor Joseph Cosgrove, presented his proposal for the reorganization of the department to an aldermanic subcommittee Tuesday night.

The Board of Assessors is faced with having to implement revaluation by July, 1978. It will be short one of its three assessors when Cosgrove leaves at the end of January. Even before his resignation the Board made no progress toward reconciling the problems posed by revaluation.

Assessor resigns

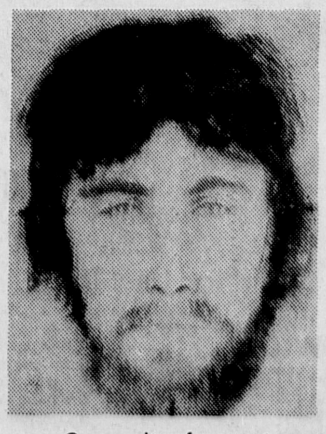
Philip Waterman Wednesday became the second of Newton's three assessors to submit his resignation.

Joseph Cosgrove, former chairman of the assessors, submitted his resignation late last year, effective the Jan. 31.

Waterman's resignation is effective Feb. 11.

Waterman, in his letter of resignation to the mayor, said a Board of Assessors must function free of political interference.

"The present political climate" makes it impossible for him to function, Waterman said, or to a "adhere to his professional code of ethics."



Composite of suspect

Police getting 'tips on suspect' in murder case

Newton police detectives have received about 50 tips from people responding to publicity of a composite picture of a man for questioning regarding the murders of William and Julia Herbits on Dec. 28 in their Chestnut Hill home.

Some passers-by on Ward Street in Chestnut Hill told Newton police they saw this man driving a 1970, 1971, or 1972 dark green Oldsmobile Cutlass.

The man sought for questioning is described as about 30 years old, 5-foot-7, 160 pounds, with black hair. At about 2 p.m. on the day of the murder he was

Thieves get $80 plus goods in five robberies on weekend

Three armed robberies and two unarmed robberies netted thieves about $80 and an undetermined additional amount of money over the weekend. Two Newton men were arrested for a kidnapping and robbery incident that started at the Marriott.

Thomas D. Haggie, 19, and Michael I. Siegal, 21' both of 67 River St., West Newton, were arrested for kidnapping and robbery late Sunday night by the Watertown Police.

Newton police booked the men who had allegedly approached a man in a parking lot and asked him as he drove in, "Do you know what a thirty-eight Magnum is?"

The men allegedly forced themselves into the car and ordered the driver to go to Norumbega Road in Weston. When two men discovered the driver had only $2 in quarters, they walked away from the car. The victim drove back to the Marriott and told police.

From a description of the suspects given over intercity radio, the Weston police reported seeing two men fitting the description at a Gulf station, and their car was stopped in Waterown at 7:45 p.m., about an hour and a half after the man was held up.

In other robberies, three Newton men had their wallets with about $10 in them taken by two men, 18-25, in the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge garage Saturday at 10:45 p.m.

The thieves drove away in a grey 1976 LTD down Washington Street. The car was stolen from the victims and theyreported seeing it on Washington St. after they were ordered by one of the robbers to run up the ramp in the garage.

The man with what appeared to be a .32 caliber pistol was about 6-foot-1, 170 pounds, with long black hair and a thin mustache. The other man was described as being 5-foot-6, of medium build, and with dark brown hair.

$115,875 collected in license renewals

A total of $115,875 was received by the City of Newton for 1977 license renewal fees, according to Carleton P. Merrill, administrative director of the Board of License Commissioners.

Heading the list of total receipts was $46,500 received from licensees holding restaurant, all-alcoholic, seven-day licenses. The second highest category was the 17 all-alcoholic package stores within Newton, with a total of $25,500 received in fees.

Along with the various alcohol and wine and malt licenses, the commission also reviewed and issued renewals for 108 holders of common victualler licenses.

During the current year the commission will continue to review license applications as well as to initiate on-premise inspections with assistance received from Det. Sgt. Arthur Fryar of the Newton Police Department and sanitary inspectors from the Newton Health Department

The commission is presently requiring all food establishment in Newton where sandwiches are made and sold to file an application for a common victualler license

Burglar alarm ordinance explained by police chief

Police Chief William F. Quinn this week explained provisions of Ordinance 178, chapter 17 of the revised ordinances of the city of Newton, which mandates penalties for repeated accidental, false or faulty security alarm systems.

The New ordinance makes provisions for the types of alarms which are permissible and their restrictions. Under the new ordinance certain types of alarm system will not be permitted. Automatic dialing systems which transmit a signal by telephone to Police Headquarters will not be permitted, and those presently in operation must be disconnected within six months.

Audible alarms must be provided with an automatic device to shut off the alarm within 10 minutes after activation. In the event an alarm is activated between the hours of 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. and the Police Department is unable to contact the alarm user in order to secure the alarm, the Chief will direct a certified technician, police officers, or a member of the Fire Department to disconnect the alarm from the exterior of the building. The owner of the alarm may be assessed up to $50 for cost and service.

According to Chief Quinn, every alarm ower or user is required to submit to his office, the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of at least two persons who may be reached at any time of day or night who are authorized to enter the premises to secure the alarm system.

Chief Quinn added that copies of the new ordinance will be mailed within the next few days to all alarm holders and alarm companies. Any person who fails to receive a copy or has any questions regarding the ordinance should contact Capt. John Bartinelli, Newton Police Department, at 244-1212.

Chief Quinn pointed out that the ordinance details all requirements that alarm users must meet and the attendant penalties.

The new ordinance will in no way lessen police protection for the many alarm holders in the city of Newton, Quinn said.

The ordinance has been implemented to afford better protection through more efficient use of police personnel and the reduction of faulty alarms, Quinn added.

Seminar hears recommendation for federal takeover of welfare

State Sen. Jack Backman (D-Brookline-Newton) chairman of the Senate Human Services Committee was among the participants of a seminar for journalists Monday, Jan. 10, launched by the First National Bank of Boston on the subject of national welfare reform.

The source material for the meeting was a 200-page volume compiled by the bank on "Federal Welfare Reform: An Examination of the Issues and Prospects for Change."

Backman stated, "This excellent study by one of our country's leading financial institutions clearly illustrates the need for an immediate rethinking of this nation's economic and social policy. No longer is welfare being considered as in the exclusive realm of so-called social reformers or political activists for social change. What every taxpayer of Massachusetts must finally recognize is that aside from the toll of poverty upon our children and our elderly, the burden of welfare upon our state directly affects the property taxes we pay, the rent of middle class families, the fiaancial stability of our state and its industrial and financial institutions. This burden must be assumed by the federal government.

"Every contributor to the volume, Republican, Democrat, conservative or liberal, recommends some kind of federal takeover of the welfare burden of our states.

"It was estimated that the 1976 welfare burden of all the United States could have been fully assumed with $7.5 billion federal dollars. If this had been done last year the fiscal problems of the Commonwealth would have been solved.

The rising tax rates of cities and towns would have been immediately halted and reduced.

"If as the figures compiled in the book bring out, federal welfare takeover were to be coupled with national health insurance, our state would have close to a billion dollars of surplus in our budget.

Backman stated, "For over six years I have fought for the recognition of this essential concept. Our Human Services Committee staff has compiled reams of material that illustrate the urgency of federal action on the welfare problem. At last, opinion makers of our largest national financial institutions are beginning to recognize that federalization of welfare and health care is a practical necessity.

"Overshadowing the whole problem is the fact that a full employment policy for the state and nation is also required in order to minimize the cost of welfare and maximize the manpower and women— power resources of our nation.

"Every day we delay the implementation of these concepts, the fiscal problem of our cities and towns and states increase."

Sled used to take school equipment

Thieves apparently used a sled to take audio visual equipment away from Weeks Junior High School Friday or Saturday morning after the storm, police said.

Police reported seeing sled marks from room 106 of the school on Hereward Road in Newton Centre.

The custodian of the school discovered windows in an adjacent room smashed at 8:45 a.m. He told police the school was secure at noon Friday. A tape recorder and cameras were known to be among the items taken.

Bowen and Mason-Rice schools in Newton Centre were also entered and vandalized over the weekend but it was not known if anything was taken.

PTA Council hosts forum on curriculum

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Individual school PTAs were called on by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink and members of the PTA Council to take an active role in communicating curriculum to parents last week.

"If parents want to talk about program, the best place to do it is in the schools," the superintendent said last Thursday at a PTA Council meeting on curriculum.

Some of the approximately 60 parents at the meeting complained about the lack of textbooks and poor ditto copies in schools, but Superintendent Fink said he'd rather see the parents watching curriculum "than buying equipment that should be in the school budget."

PTAs have not been known yet to buy textbooks for schools, but they often purchase audio-visual equipment, carpets, and other supplies for their individual schools.

Michael Trachtenberg said his child at Bigelow Junior High School was asked to copy pages from textbooks in two classes, and in one class the teacher received new texts but decided to send them back to the publisher.

Last year the School Committee tied in the amount spent for texts and supplies in each school to the enrollment, somewhat reducing the allocation per school.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell, who attended the meeting, said afterwards that the School Committee should not be blamed for the lack of texts.

Mandell said, "Errors in judgment of those who held the past educational philosophy which decided that textbooks were no longer appropriate has now resulted in the lack of textbooks.

"It's not School Committee members that should be faulted, but the people in education who now realize that texts have always been important and still have a definite place in education," the chairman said.

While reading his prepared remarks on curriculum at the start of the meeting, Superintendent Fink said, "We have learned that we don't have to design programs that are available elsewhere."

Curriculum charts

Several parents at the meeting called for a chart or description of what their children should be studying in each grade so they can monitor and help with their studies at home.

One woman wanted such a guide to contain answer to simple questions, such as, "Is my child supposed to learn vocabulary and conjugate verbs in French class?"

Henry Atkins, assistant superintendent for program, is now preparing such a chart for the whole school system which will be sent to the individual schools to adapt and make available to parents.

Most people seemed pleased that a chart was coming, but Fink said, "I hope the people here don't let us off with a simple chart of topics."

"Given time most kids will learn anything. The essence of education is, 'What is the school doing for my child?'"

Fractions

Coordinator of Mathematics Arthur Short answered what has become the annual inquiry about the teaching of fractions in elementary school.

Children are exposed to fractions as early as kindergarten with the idea of ½ of an apple, he said.

By the end of sixth grade Short expects most students to master addition and subtraction of fractions, and, in advanced classes, multiplication and division.

Louis Martin, president of Carr Schoool PTA, asked, "What if students haven't even seen them by the end of sixth grade?"

Short said that should be looked into, and it might be a matter that could be resolved if parents talk to teachers.

Martin also claimed that his school received no extra services when test scores were going down for three to four years in a row.

"Why do parents have to call a meeting? Why weren't the students helped?" he asked.

When the meeting was held, "The answers we got almost makes you cry . . . it's so ridiculous."

Superintendent Fink acknowledged the criticism by saying, "I'm sure there are times that we miss or put every resource available into it (a problem) and we don't get anywhere."

Mastery level

Math Coordinator Short said that, by his standard, a listing of expected mastery levels of math skills in any grade would generally mean "85 percent of the children in a class would be able to do or understand a question or problem 85 percent of the time."

The superintendent openly disagreed with the coordinator, citing the differences in schools and individual learning rates.

The problem, Fink said, is develOping a continuity of skills and having teachers know at what level each child is learning.

Fink also announced that curriculum guidelines for all subjects for grades K-9 are complete and available for parents and the public to examine at schools and in the Education Center.

April 1 deadline for South football field

A delay in implementation of the state Inland Wetlands Act until April 1 allows time for the city to determine whether it needs any of the land adjacent to Newton South High School for future development of athletic facilities.

The delay was granted by Commissioner of Environmental Management Evan Dobelle, after Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen learned that the land may be put under permanent restriction.

A plan has been recently presented for building of a football field and track that would require the filling and use of some of the land.

The Board of Aldermen voted Jan. 3 to adopt the state restrictions, which apply to 22 sites in Newton, but with a resolution asking for a delay on the Newton South site.

After a letter was received from Dobelle delaying the recording of the restriction until April 1, reconsideration of the vote, filed by Ald. Robert Stiller, was felt unnecessary and was disapproved by the Board.

Between now and April 1, the decision can be made as to whether any of the land is needed, whether the proposed field can be situated differently, and whether the facility will be built at all.

NTA opposes new pumper ordinance

The Newton Taxpayers' Association is opposed to a proposed redraft of a city ordinance that would set the number of fire pumpers at "at least 10 engine companies."

The proposed ordinance will be discussed tonight (Thursday) at a meetinq of the Legislation & Rules Committee at City Hall.

Lorenz Muther, executive director of the Taxpayers' Association, wrote the Board of Aldermen that the directors of the association oppose the measure on two bases.

"We believe the preponderance of expert evidence supports the position of the city's management" (to discontinue the use of one pumper).

Muther pointed out that two successive fire chiefs have accepted the view of the Insurance Services Office (an insurance rating firm) that fewer than 10 engine companies are necessary.

Muther's second point is that fixing the number of engines at 10, before obtaining the full report from the Insurance Services Office, is "doing exactly the same thing which some of the Board are complaining the mayor is doing . . . jumping the gun on the full report."

Massachusetts8 will have a three-part exhibit, which will show a town meeting, the Minuteman, and a printing press. Sheehan was appointed by Fourth District Congressman Robert Drinan to represent his district in the town meeting.

There will be 14 members of the town meeting, one from each Congressional district and one each appointed by Sen. Edward Brooke and Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Sculptor's entire work destroyed by vandals

Vandals who entered the Newtonville branch library last weekend destroyed 30 pieces of sculpture, representing two years' work by young sculptor Basil Racheotes.

"They wiped me out," he said.

Racheotes, 23, had had an exhibit of stoneware figures of animals and people and several portrait heads on display since early December.

Neither he nor the library is insured for loss of his work.

Racheotes said Tuesday that the collection was worth at least $5000.

The sculpture was broken with such force that woodwork was gouged where the pieces hit. Racheotes tried to salvage some pieces, but found one head in 50-60 fragments, he said.

The incident occurred some time during the weekend, and was discovered Monday morning. Racheotes was notified Tuesday.

Pedestals on which the sculpture was displayed were broken and smashed, he said. Beer was poured on books, and bookcases overturned, in addition to the destruction of the sculpture.

Racheotes hopes that someone can provide information on the vandalism to Newton police.

X-rate film show cost Paramount $3000 fine

The parent company of Paramount Theatre in Newton Corner pleaded guilty to showing an obscene film and agreed to pay $3,000 in fines in Newton District Court Friday.

Newton police seized the X-rated film "Baby Rosemary" on Dec. 16 from the movie house at 299 Washington St. In addition to the charge of disseminating an obscene film, the theater owners were charged with two counts of allowing minors to see it.

Joseph Matzkin, a lawyer who represents Cate Enterprises of Cambridge, the parent firm, said this week that the firm agreed to stop showing X-rated films.

Chief William Quinn said that since the film was seized other movie houses in the city have stopped showing X-rated films.

In a letter written to Newton District Court Judge Paul Chernoff, Chernoff the vice president of Cate Enterprises, Phillip Meadow, agreed that the theater would play only movies "that are suitable to family entertainment or have social or artistic merit," the lawyer said.

The company which owns about 40 movie houses throughout New England also agreed that if they break their promise an injunction would be served against them' lawyer Matzkin said.

The $3,000 fine is based on $800 for the charge of showing the film, $1,600 for allowing two minors to view it, and a $600 surcharge on the fines according to state law.

By comparison a flaming liberal

The U.S. Senate is regarded as a more liberal body than the national House. That was not indicated, however, by the election of the top Democratic leaders in the two congressional chambers.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill is a political moderate who embraces the bread and butter issues and is deeply concerned about curbing inflation, reducing unemployment and providing jobs for the people of his district and throughout Massachusetts.

But O'Neill is a flaming left-wing liberal by comparison with Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia who was chosen majority Leader of the Senate. Byrd, who has consistently voted against civil rights, will never be mistaken for a liberal.

It was apparent that Byrd had the votes sewed up to become Majority Leader long before the actual election was held on Tuesday of last week.

How the conservative Byrd managed to muster enough support from his colleagues to force the withdrawal of Senator Hubert Humphrey from the contest for the Majority Leader post is not easy to understand.

Byrd not only will be out of political step with many of his fellow Democratic Senators during the months ahead, but he also probably will march at times to a different tune than Jimmy Carter, himself a moderate on some issues and a conservative on money matters.

Capitol Hill observers point out that Byrd will not exercise as much influence in the Senate as O'Neill will in the House because he does not command as much support as does O'Neill.

But Byrd can and probably will cause some problems in the Senate for both Jimmy Carter and his liberal Senate colleagues.

If you liked the swine flu program ...you'll love federal health insurance

Commentary by John D. Lofton

WASHINGTON — For nearly a year, the Executive Office of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability (CWPS) has been investigating the extraordinary inflation in the health care sector of our economy. After sifting through volumes of complex data, supplied by hundreds of consumers, providers, insurers, government officials, and industry and union leaders during the course of hearings in six cities across the United States, the CWPS concludes:

"It is all too apparent that right now, with the current reimbursement programs and the ubiquitous and often conflicting morass of regulations, that the federal government, instead of being part of the solution, is part of the problem of rising health care costs."

Says acting director of the CWPS, William Lilley III: a federal takeover of health care through a national health insurance program would be "a recipe for disaster."

In its report, "The Complex Puzzle of Rising Health Care Costs: Can the Private Sector Fit It Together?," the CWPS says that the private sector can because it is motivated by economic incentives which the government will simply never share. The Council report observes:

"We have seen, in every phase of our investigation into this problem, that cost-control incentives proposed by the private sector — that is, by industry and labor — promise to be more effective than those imposed by the multitude of government agencies which have attempted to tackle the problem . . . Full federal financing would do nothing to alter the fundamental problems existing in this sector which are largely responsible for the current inflationary spiral...a federal takeover would result in national expenditures of truly astronomical proportions, even compared with what we are spending today."

In its nationwide investigation of rising medical costs, the CWPS learned that the most commonly expressed concern of institutional health care providers is bureaucratic red tape — the time, effort and cost of dealing with governmental officials. Council staffers heard numerous witnesses complain that such regulations have become confusing, onerous and counterproductive.

George Billington, president of Elizabeth General Hospital and Dispensary in New Jersey, told how in his facility they were forced to hire four additional people just to handle Medicare paperwork. If these individuals were paid $8,000 per year, this adds $32,000 to the budget.

Multiplied by the 100 hospitals in the Garden State, this adds up to $3.2 million in extra costs hospital patients must pay in clerical time alone!

More broadly, Roger Lipitz, of the National Council of Health Care Services, testified that compliance with over 1,000 federal and state standards for staffing, services, building construction, etc., has resulted in the higher rate of $21.17 per patient day at Medicare and Medicaid certified nursing homes versus $14.03 per patient day at noncertified homes.

Another member of Mr. Lipitz's Council estimates the cost of preparing forms at $1,000 per year per facility.

Assuming that each of the 12,000 nursing homes which participate in Medicare and Medicaid prepare 1.86 forms annually, the total cost of just paperwork alone tops $22 million.

Another problem caused by Medicare and Medicaid is that these programs pay less than their full hospital costs, necessitating hospitals to increase their charges more than they otherwise would. Harry Frishman, vice president of Memorial Hospital Medical Center in Long Beach, Calif., testified:

"Today, at Memorial, the average patient has a 'surtax' of $392 added to his or her bill to pay for government underpayments. The nongovernment patient is taxed twice.

He pays a tax to support the Medicare and Medi-Cal programs and then pays a second tax to make up the deficit they create."

Says James Whitman, national treasurer of the Hospital Financial Management Assn.: "The subsidization of the Medicare-Medicaid patient is by itself one of the major causes of the 'inflationary spiral' of health care costs."

Yet still another problem created by government intervention in the private health care sector is the problem of excess hospital capacity and beds. Several analysts told the CWPS that the federal Hill-Burton program had created this monster resulting in overexpansion and misallocation of resources raising total medical care costs and encouraging overutilization of the health care system.

In its conclusions the CWPS report says: "The goal of quality health care, at reasonable costs, is attainable within the context of a largely private disciplined system. Indeed, we feel it is only within the context of the private system that it is attainable...To add yet another layer of cost-raising regulations, which would inevitably accompany any federal effort, would only be to compound the existing problem."

In other words, if you liked the federal government's swine flu program, then you'll love national health insurance.

Ford's parting shots

Commentary by Joseph Kraft, Washington columnist

"How are you going to like eating grits?" a Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts was asked last week. "Better than the stuff we're eating now," he replied in somewhat more colorful terms.

That comment expresses the mood in Washington as the transition draws to a close. The orthodox Republican proposals now being advanced by President Ford have stirred partisan resentment among Democrats. Which gives President-elect Jimmy Carter great leeway for the economic stimulus package he is now devising.

Several of Mr. Ford's parting shots show the prevailing attitude in the White House. The tax proposals released last week would provide for zero stimulus to the economy, reductions in corporate payments, and increases in the Social Security taxes which workers shell out. Then there is the intention to decontrol gasoline prices and the proposal for Puerto Rican statehood.

The White House thinks of these measures as bitter medicine administered now to make the patient much healthier in the long run. But the Democrats see favors to business and to the oil companies and to some Puerto Rican lobbyists close to Mr. Ford. As a result, the mellowness of the post-election period has been broken, and partisan spirits move strongly in the Congress.

Mr. Carter, accordingly, enjoys an extraordinarily favorable climate among congressional Democrats. His problem is economic, not political. The problem is to frame the best economic package, and it is not simple.

The latest set of statistics suggest there is less danger than most people thought of another downturn. But there remains great need for measures to promote jobs and investment, and room to do it without inflationary consequences.

So it is not immediately apparent how big a stimulus is required. Neither is it clear which group in the economy ought to be favored.

Consumers are, of course, the driving force of the economy. That argues a quick tax rebate to get people buying more goods so industry can produce and hire more workers. But any quick rebate needs to be eventually accompanied by measures which hold down big wage and price increases and a new inflationary surge.

The unemployed are the most needy group in the economy. That suggests public works programs which provide both jobs to those out of work and goods and services to society as a whole. But such programs need to have a cutoff date tied to the period of economic difficulty.

Business investment is the weak spot in the economy—far below what it has been at the present stage of any previous postwar recovery. The businessmen would like an investment credit and, even more, a permanent cut in corporate taxes to build confidence on a longterm basis. But such cuts might limit the public funds available for future programs to which Gov. Carter is pledged.

As yet, Carter is not truly in a good position to sort out these intrinsically difficult alternatives. The Ford administration has denied the Carter people access to much of the material that goes into the expenditure side of the new budget.

But what if Nixon accepts?

WASHINGTON — It's going to be wonderful if Richard Nixon accepts Jimmy Carter's invitation to the Inauguration. Carter may get into the tenth paragraph of the stories about the affair, and squeeze out a few seconds on television if he sits close enough to his guest.

The idea of Richard Nixon sitting up there on the stands will really freak out a number of people. He'd be on the steps of the Capitol in the presence of the Congress that was set to impeach him. Who could notice a Georgia peanut farmer in that company? What's an inauguration compared to a resurrection?

Carter apologists say that Carter really had no choice but to invite a former president, even one who was an unindicted coconspirator in the worst presidential sandal in history.

Research, the say, showed that any former president who is receiving the full emoluments of his former office is entitled to be asked.

"But if the Republicans could leave him out of their convention, couldn't Jimmy Carter have left him out of the inaugural?" asked a dismayed Carter transition worker.

Carter's move was explained as an act which reveals his profound faith in redemption.

Carter can begin to pray that Nixon will not feel up to the trip, or that some impulse toward seemliness will overtake him as he ponders the invitation.

The hermit of San Clemente must be terribly pleased at this chance to be born again. Last year he made a journey to China, which was supposed to restore him to public esteem — and didn't.

"It borders on a religious concept of forgiveness," explained a Carter defender. "Also he understands that the inclusion of former presidents is the most sacred item of protocol in inaugural tradition. Carter was just not prepared to change it."

The fact that Nixon was the only chief executive to resign from office in disgrace was not, of course, covered by protocol. And despite the high crimes and misdemeanors voted by the House impeachment committee, the pardon has wiped the slate clean. It supposedly extends forward to his recent conviction, in effect, as a wiretapper. While waiting to hear the amount of damages he must pay to Morton Halperin, Nixon must have been delighted to find a special inaugural invitation in his mailbox.

Carter never could quite find fault with his pardon. He always gave Ford the benefit of the doubt. His running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, took the opposite view.

In a campaign speech about lawlessness in government, Mondale defied his principal and severely criticized the pardon.

"No act," declared Mondale, "more perpetuated Nixon's own dangerous doctrine that a president is somehow above the law."

And Jimmy Carter, be treating him like any other president who left at the end of his term, is perpetuating "Nixon's own dangerous doctrine" of reverence for the presidency.

It doesn't really sort well with Carter's strenuous efforts to be a common man, and to de-imperialize the presidency. He is putting on a public relations campaign which is aimed at proving that presidents are ordinary mortals, and citizens are being encouraged to write or phone in their suggestions to help him remember. But the invitation says that presidents, even the criminal kind, are a breed apart.

Opinions

Murley farm development

To the Editor:

Enclosed find a copy of Stephen Hopkins's letter to homeowners of Ward 8. Our neighborhood association has drafted the attached letter to be printed on your opinion page.

Dear Mr. Hopkins:

In your recent letter to the homeowners of Ward 8, outlining both your proposal for development and possible alternatives for the Murley Land, you have inadvertently deleted a number of crucial factors in your presentation. I should like to enumerate those considerations for your benefit.

The current zone law under which development can proceed on the Murley Land allows only single-family homes, and will not permit the construction of luxury garden apartments, not permit high-rise apartments, not permit attached low-income housing and will not permit the construction of "exclusive" townhouses.

It would take a specific change of the zone, approved affirmatively by at least three quarters of the Board of Aldermen to permit any of these developments. The current zoning requires (A) the building lot to have a minimum of 25,000 sq. ft., and therefore 40 to 50 homes could be constructed on the Murley site.

This zoning is in keeping with the entire surrounding neighborhood, and with the recent development of the large, adjacent Volante Farms land parcel, now Countryside, Rachel Road area.

A number of important demographic facts were stated in your letter. However, these facts were either misquoted or qualifying factors were left to one's imagination.

For example, you have misinterpreted the data presented by the Newton Planning Department in estimating the number of children living in 40 single-family homes. They projected approximately 25 to 40 school-age children while your figure of 120 school-age children obviously includes not only the children but also their parents as well.

As a matter of fact, the estimated total population for 40 single-family homes is approximately 150 people. It would have been more equitable in your letter to have mentioned the anticipated population living in the 121 garden-apartment units as approximately 300 to 350 people. The in density, that is, units per acre, will be 300 percent greater under your plan vis a vis current zoning.

In addition, you failed to mention the traffic impact that your project will have, anticipated 10 to 12 percent increase in traffic, or, stated another way, 1200 additional car trips in and out of the project daily. Certainly everyone in Ward 8 and the surrounding neighborhood would be interested in these facts.

It is reassuring to me as a Newton taxpayer that each time you present a development proposal whether for 194, 156, or now 121 units, you keep using the same real estate tax bill of $600,000. It is remarkable how close that figure is to the Marriott's tax bill, perhaps implying that your project will be similar in impact on the Oak Hill area as the Marriott project was to the Auburndale area. By the way, a realistic appraisal of the expected tax bill of 40 single— family Residence A homes is $200,000 to $300,000. As you may recall, a number of real estate professionals have publicly stated that if these garden apartments are constructed, it is likely that the surrounding neighborhood real estate values will suffer. This may mean that these same neighbors may have a legitimate claim to a tax abatement resulting in an overall reduction in real estate taxes to the city.

I regret that you have found it necessary to raise the issue of low-income housing in the context of it's bringing, perforce, high-rise apartments, and inordinate numbers of children and therefore school expense to the community.

I would have preferred not to dignify your obvious threat by rebuttal. However, it must be mentioned that federal and state funds have not been available for this type of housing and, historically, the Planning Board has not approved this type of proposal.

I recognize that there are substantial economic gains in developing 121 garden-apartment condominiums which far outweigh the development of 40 single-family homes. Nevertheless, please try to present a more balanced picture when requesting public sentiment on the issue.

Nuts

To the Editor:

I think Fred and Mario (owners of Fred and Mario's on Lincoln Street in Newton Highlands) have done such a nice thing for the Highlanders they deserve a write-up.

NUTS

Two cheerful men stood behind the grill, giving up their Christmas Eves to make Highlands Square a bit happier. They roasted chestnuts and gave them away with hot cups of coffee to passers-by.

What fun! The spirit that slowly erodes while shopping and running and shopping some more returned in the form of roasted chestnuts.

My husband asked if he could buy some; what a mistake! He was given a bagful to take.

Fred and Mario, two big nuts in the Bob Hope tradition.

Extra hands

To the Editor;:

One can appreciate those missing extra hands from the crew of Engine 8 during the present snow emergency.

Just in the area of shoveling out hydrants these men are sorely missed. Their hydrant district will be taken care of, of course, although it will take longer.

Fire fighting, at best, is a difficult job but with snow and ice on the ground, response is necessarily slowed, which, in effect, is the same as greater traveling distances.

Sometimes during routine fires, although the potential for greater alarms is always there, we firefighters are apt to get in each other's way because of ample manpower for that particular emergency.

However, during a serious fire where life is at stake, there are situations, because of the many simultaneous jobs that have to be performed, that there never seems to be enough help.

Lt. Richard F. Hay,
Fire Department

MBTA to introduce new pass

A 25-cent local bus pass, good for unlimited rides on buses with 25-cent and 30-cent fares, will be introduced by the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) in the spring.

This pass is one of two new features of a revised pass program approved by the board of directors and forwarded to the advisory board for approval.

The other new feature is a 95-cent system pass that will be good for all MBTA services, including express bus service, but excluding commuter rail service. This "buy-the-system" pass is specifically designed for those distant commuters who now have a 95— cent or more bus ride or a combination bus and rapid transit ride costing 95 cents or more one-way.

Boston and Maine commuters will have printed on the back of their monthly commuter tickets, a 25-cent rapid transit pass that will permit them to transfer to the "T" at North Station.

The revised pass program, which provides unlimited riding for a month in the category selected, is scheduled to become effective April 1. It is designed to incorporate changes suggested by present pass holders who asked for a more flexible program with a better discount built in. Under the existing unlimited riding program, the pass holder is paying the equivalent of 19 round trips per month while under the revised program, the pass holder will pay the equivalent of 18 round trips a month.

The pass holder also has the option of dropping out of the pass program during the month in which he or she takes a vacation.

Ernest Deeb, manager of the pass program, said: "For the first time, we will have a pass for almost everyone from a 25-cent bus pass to a 95-cent system pass. The pass is available through employers who enroll in the program. The employer deducts the money from his employee's paycheck and the employee never has to worry about having the exact fare for transportation."

wearing dark pants and a pea green jacket with a fur collar.

Police said the man is possibly the driver for the two or more persons who shot, knifed, and beat the 82-year-old lawyer and his 72-year-old wife.

The passers-by noticed the car because it made a U-turn and parked facing tbe wrong way on the part of Ward Street that is one-way, police said.

Police have pinned down the time of the murder as between 1:35 and 2:15 p.m. on Dec. 28, the time during which the car was spotted parked behind the Herbits home at 249 Commonwealth Ave.

Detective Sgt. Gerald Marchand said Wednesday morning that four persons have come into Police Headquarters in West Newton saying they look like the man in the composite picture. Those men were ruled out of being involved in the murders.

The other 50 or so tips are being investigated, he said. A check with the Registry of Motor Vehicles turned up nothing suspicious about any green Olds Cutlass, Sgt. Marchand said.

Regarding the ongoing questioning of hundreds of persons involved in the eight most recent cases that the real estate lawyer was involved in, Sgt. Marchand said, "Nobody is really a prime suspect, but no one was eliminated."

Police are still speculating that the motive for the murders was somehow connected to the legal practice Herbits was engaged in at 44 School St., Boston.

His wife often served as his personal secretary.

between Monday and Wednesday, with only minor personal injuries, the Traffic Bureau reported.

By Monday morning 302 cars had been tagged for blocking snow removal, and 81 cars were towed. From Monday to Wednesday about 100 more tickets were given out and 11 cars were towed.

Owners of towed cars have to pay the $15 ticket for impeding snow removal and a towing charge of $25 to $30, Capt. John Bartinelli said.

During the floods Monday the tow trucks hired by the police often pushed and pulled stalled cars at no cost to get to the ones they were assigned to tow, police said.

Police extended their thanks to all the towing services in the city for their assistance.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink used up the last of four snow days of the school year when he called off school for Friday Monday and Tuesday.

Although many sidewalks were unplowed by Tuesday and the ice was thick everywhere, Fink decided that conditions would not get any better during the week.

He advised parents to use discretion in sending children to school.

"If parents have any concern, they are advised not to send their children," he said, noting that conditions varied throughout the city.

New England Telephone reported problems all over New England but no particular problems in Newton.

Scattered power outages occurred in Newton, affecting about 325 customers, Boston Edison public information spokesman Ben Kilgore said Wednesday. All service has been restored to normal.

Edison crews received calls for 315 instances of "line damage," which includes tree limbs on wires and other problems as well as downed wires. Most calls were not for downed wires.

The rain Monday, while playing havoc with underground cables, was beneficial in Newton by clearing wires and trees of snow and preventing snow damage. Most of Newton's electrical service is above ground.

The longest loss of service was at 148 Walnut St., where one customer was without electricity from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. Most outages lasted less than an hour and a half.

Aronson has been an assessor for about a year. Before coming to work for Newton he was in real estate management.

Aronson's proposal creates, he said, "a second level of responsibility," which never existed in the Assessing Department.

In addition to the three assessors, Aronson wants to create two new positions, research assistant and administrative assistant, who would do statistical work and keep up with new laws besides doing some of the day-to-day work, such as abatements.

Ideally, he said, one of the two "assistant" assessors would have a legal background and the other would have a business background.

The budget for the department as it is now set up is $140,340. The new departmental budget would be $172,080.

Under Aronson's proposal, the chairman would be paid $28,000, the other two $23,000 each. All three now receive $21,000.

The two assistants would receive $15,000 each, and there would be one less senior clerk. There are now five senior clerks and two junior clerks.

Aronson took a dim view of professional assessors. "Give me someone with common sense and I'll train him. Give me someone who's been an assessor for 20 years and I'll give up," he said.

Aronson sees many improvements that must be made in the Assessing Department, but primarily the department needs a head "to stand up to political pressures."

There must be one person, at department-head level, to be responsible and accountable, Aronson feels, not a board of three men of equal rank.

The subcommittee, an outgrowth of the Finance Committee, consists of Ald. Richard Bullwinkle, John Stewart, Joan Saklad, who were all present Tuesday night, and Edward Richmond.

The subcommittee agreed that advertising for Cosgrove's replacement and review of resumes submitted previously should be undertaken as soon as possible.

The next meeting will be Jan. 27 at 7:45 p.m. at City Hall.

Nursing School sets open house

An opportunity to learn about Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing will be available Thursday, Jan. 20, when the hospital hosts an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. in the school's dormitory, Allen Riddle Hall.

A slide show of the school's facilities will be presented, and refreshments will be served.

Swim Lessons

There will be one 15-week session for swim lessons this winter. It will run from February to mid-May. Lessons for children will be Saturday and Sunday mornings while adult lessons and a water safety instructor course will be offered during the week.

The reason for the 15-week session is because the renovation of the pool over the past several months calls for intensive operational procedures concerning its maintenance such that the Recreation Department must adhere to all School Department regulations, which necessitates great flexibility by the department concerning scheduling. This 15-week session gives that flexibility.

Registration

Registration for the swim lessons to be held at the North High Pool are Thursday, Jan. 27, at the Horace Mann School from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 29, at Newton North High School from 2 to 4 p.m.

Rep. Pines reviews findings of commission on asbestos

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton), House chairman of the special legislative commission investigating the dangers associated with the use of asbestos in schools and public buildings, announced the filing of the commission report on its first six months' activities this week.

Noting that the publication of the report coincided with the closing of eight elementary schools in New Jersey due to feared asbestos-induced illnesses, Pines underscored the urgency of the Commission's task.

"This commission is the first of its kind in the nation, and has made tremendous progress since formally convening in June, 1976. Its purpose is basically three-fold: to identify those structures that were constructed using spray-on asbestos; determine the level of contamination, recommend corrective action (including assessment of economic impact); and identify long-term effects of exposure," said Pines.

She stated that a common construction technique in the 1950's and '60's (a booming construction period) has applying asbestos fireproofing and insulation by spraying. In due course, this material detaches to the point where airborne asbestos fibers circulate in the air and are inhaled.

"Respiratory, cardiac, and cancerous illnesses are the documented result of long-term exposure to these fibers," she said. "However, there has been little, if any, comprehensive study of the potentially deadly effects of exposure to asbestos in schools. We simply do not know what can happen to children continually exposed to airborne fibers during their formative years," she explained.

What conventional medical thought that does exist holds that illnesses resulting from exposure may take 20 to 30 years to develop. However, the New Jersey situation may radically change this thinking. One 13-year-old boy is acutely ill due to exposure to asbestos in his school, according to his pediatrician. Other children have complained of inexplicable sore throats, headaches, and respiratory congestion.

"There is abundant cause to attribute these symptoms to short-term exposure to airborne asbestos fibers. Every year, so—called 'safe' levels of occupational exposure to asbestos fibers are lowered as new evidence becomes available," she explained. "The fact that children may experience serious and immediate results of exposure makes it incumbent upon us to move quickly to alleviate the danger."

In Massachusetts alone, there are hundreds of schools in which asbestos may have been sprayed on during construction. The arduous task of searching for these schools and contacting their architects was a major priority of the commission.

Results from the study indicate that approximately one out of every five schools built in the Commonwealth during the 1950's and '60's contain asbestos. Another significant accomplishment of the Commission was the collection of a comprehensive bibliography of the literature (both medical and architectural) on the subject. Both projects are in their final stages, despite being hampered by a lack of funds.

"The burden of conducting an intensive investigation is tremendous. In order to acquire the necessary funding, grant proposals are being prepared for submission to the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation. It is critical that the identification studies be completed as soon as possible in order that corrective measures be implemented," she stated.

Pines' interest in the dangers of asbestos has been long—standing. She first proposed the establishment of the commission in 1974, when the new $18 million Newton North High School was discovered to contain sprayed-on asbestos. She fought for the corrective action which isolated the hazardous material. She was naned the house chairman of the commission in 1976, after tenaciously laboring for its creation.

The commission's membership includes experts in the fields of health, science, architecture, and construction. Among them are Dr. Jonathan Fielding, the Massachusetts commissioner of public health; Dr. Raymond Murphy Jr. of Wellesley, director of pulmonary services for the Lemuel Shattuck and Faulkner Hospitals; Dr. Othar Zaldistani of Chestnut Hill, president of Nichols, Norton and Zaldistani, Inc., Engineers, and Yu Sing Yung of Wellesley, principal member of Jung-Brannen Associates, Inc., a Boston architectural firm.

Pines concluded by stating that "Without the presence and work of the commission, the dangers of exposure to asbestos may never be fully known. This makes it all the more urgent that the commission be given the resources and support to complete its task. Otherwise, we will be forced to payfor our neglect in increased health costs, human suffering and death."

Telephone excise tax drops again

Beginning this month, the federal excise tax on telephone service dropped from 6 to 5 percent. Telephone customers will notice the change on bills received after Jan. 1.

Newton telephone manager Paul Duncan said that the original tax of 10 percent was reduced to 9 percent in 1973 and will drop 1 percent each year until Jan. 1, 1982, when it will be eliminated.

The 11 Newton store managers who were cited for violatinq the state's blue laws had their cases continued to March 1.

Assistant Clerk Peter Miranda said that the 10 managers who appeared in Newton District Court Monday pleaded innocent to the charges that were filed by police on several Sundays before Christmas.

CAR CORNER

Proper maintenance, including well-spaced tune-ups, will make a lot of troubleshooting unnecessary by heading off malfunctions before they reach the critical stage. Remember that there are some factors that may make the engine seem to be manfunctioning when it is not. Tire pressures that are too low, for instance, besides being harmful to the tires themselves, can result in decreased performance. Dragging brakes, including the parking brake, can have the same effect; so can faulty wheel alignment.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors inspires envy

The leonine hair style, violet blue eyes, perfect smile and lythe body of Farrah Fawcett-Majors have made her the envy of women everywhere!

She's been called the "world's most beautiful blonde" and is said never to have known a single blemish. Imagine... all that and married to television's Six Million Dollar Man, handsome bionic Lee Majors!

Hair stylists everywhere have been asked to copy that famous mane of hair. Easy? Not really. It's a look that has to be worked at to achieve its casual appearance. Does she wear hairpieces? It's rumored she not only wears them but also has to part her hair in back and bring her hair forward to create the illusion of fullness around her face, neck and shoulders.

Proudest of her fame are the Wella hair care people who want everyone to know that Farrah's hair care revolves around Wella Balsam Shampoo and Wella Balsam Conditioner.

If your hair is long and you would like the Farrah hairdo, ask your hair stylist to follow these simple instructions:

The Farrah haircut is layered on long hair. To give the cut, ask your hairdresser to start at the top and, holding hair straight up, cut to the desired length (about 3 inches). Using this length as a guide, pull each section of hair straight up, measure to the cut strands, and snip off. You will note that hair is almost at a 90 degree angle when it's cut.

To set: Set section of hair across the top in 3 big pincurls (you can vary the style by setting the top in rollers). Use the 1½ inch size rollers and set the sides going backwards. The crown, back and nape area rollers are all going down.

The Comb-out:

Take out the rollers and pincurls. Relax the setting pattern by brushing the hair into the desired lines. The top section is very lightly teased and smoothed into soft waves. The hair on the sides and in the back is lightly teased close to the scalp to obtain a firm foundation. The ends are left free to form airy bouncy waves and curls.

Wella, one of the largest manufacturers of professional hair cosmetics in the world, considers the Farrah mane a close tie-in. When Time magazine featured the famous blonde and she made numerous public appearances, each comment and compliment regarding her spectacular hairdo was a plug for Wella Balsam products.

The Company pioneered in hair research the use of the technique called Scanning Electron Microcopy which can magnify a strand of hair hundreds of thousands of times. It's then easy to see the difference between hair that is healthy, smooth, and manageable as opposed to hair that is dry and damaged from improper care and handling.

Their conditioning cream remains one of the best remedies for the problems of dry scalp and dry, brittle, badly damaged hair. Whether your damaged hair is a result of exposure to the elements, the dry heat of our homes and offices, blow-styling, or of haircoloring or perming, this concentrated cream will work wonders as it lubricates scalp and hair.

Treatment timing depends on how badly damaged the hair is--one could apply the cream to freshly shampooed hair for up to 15 minutes (speeding up penetration by wrapping the head in a hot towel), Hair is then rinsed thoroughly, but not shampooed again.

Because Farrah's feminine hair style has a soft, romantic look, brides-to-be have been asking their hair stylists to experiment with the cut and set.

Some of the leading hairdressers at a recent convention offered these tips to the prospective bride:

Be sure to visit your beauty salon well enough in advance of the wedding to plan a hairstyle to complement the veil selected. Smartest move is to bring the bridal headpiece along so the stylist can get a better idea of how best to style the hair. It is also advisable not to change the bride's look totally for the big event (or make drastic changes in haircolor unless it's done well in advance of the wedding date) when a hair color or cut has an opportunity to "grow out".

Subtle highlighting is natural-looking and shows off a hairstyle to best advantage in the many bridal formal and candid photos the bride will treasure the rest of her life. And this too can be done far in advance of the last two weeks before the wedding, since the color lasts for weeks and months.

If you would like to have a free copy of Wella's diagram of Farrah's haircut that you can bring to your hairdresser, write to: The Wells Corporation, Dept A-Farrah, 524 Grand Avenue, Englewood, New Jersey 07631

PORK AND PEANUT CASSEROLE MADE WITH COCKTAIL PEANUTS, A GEORGIA FAVORITE

Peanuts are more popular now than ever before because of President Elect Jimmy Carter. However, nutritionists have long considered them one of nature's most perfect health foods.

In addition to contributing rich flavor and crunchy texture to foods, peanuts are an excellent source of high quality protein. A pound of peanuts would supply one and one-half times the recommended daily protein allowance and enough calories to fulfill the daily energy allowance for a grown man . . . Cenerous amounts of the B-vitamins are also found in peanuts.

A good source of food energy (furnishing 585 calories per 100 grams as well as offering a bonus of many other nutrients) unlike many snack foods eaten, they cannot be considered as "empty calories."

It was Dr. George Washington Carver who first appreciated the nutritional benefit of the peanut. Working in his laboratory at Tuskegee Institute on the problem of finding more uses for some of our food plants, this noted black scientist did many experiments with the peanut plant. In addition to discovering over 200 uses for the peanut, he found nutritive qualities that had not been realized fully before.

When baking cookies, cakes or casserole, try adding a handful of chopped peanuts — you'll be adding good flavor and nutrition at a low price!

Following are new and interesting peanut recipes for your recipe files·

Question: I've searched through many cookbooks looking for two special recipes one is for buttermilk biscuits and the other for a bread pudding that is similar to one my mother used to make. Hers called for, as I recall, grated orange rind, cinnamon, raisins and, a little bit of nutmeg on top. Just thinking about it makes my mouth water. I really do hope you have these recipes.

C.D., Walpole

Answer: Roll up your sleeves and into the kitchen with you, I think the following will conclude your search!

SOUTHERN STYLE BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups buttermilk

Sift the dry ingredients together into a bowl. Cut in the butter, and chop with a pastry blender or 2 knives until flour and butter are the size of peas. Add the buttermilk, and stir just until the mixture is moistened thoroughly. Turn onto a lightly floured board and knead very lightly 10 times only — not more, not less. Pat to a thickness of about ¾ inch. Cut with 2½ to 3-inch cookie cutter, and bake on an ungreased cookie sheet in a 350 degree preheated oven for about 20 minutes or until golden in color

BREAD PUDDING

8 slices white bread with crust removed
1½ cups milk
½ pound butter (1 stick) or margarine
½ cup sugar
4 egg yolks
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup seedless raisins
4 egg whites
¼ cup sugar

Cut crust off the bread, place into a bowl and add milk. In another bowl, cream butter until light and fluffy. Add sugar and beat until smooth. Add yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add orange rind, nutmeg, cinnamon and the raisins, and the bread. Blend with a wooden spoon. Beat the egg whites until soft peaks appear and add the ¼ cup sugar and beat very stiff. Fold into the bread mixture. Butter well a square baking pan about 10x12 inches and sprinkle with sugar; pour the mixture into the baking pan. Place the baking pan into another pan ½ filled with warm water. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 45-50 minutes or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serve with light cream or ice cream.

Our thanks to Mrs. J. M., Canton who writes: "I had a gang of teen agers to entertain over the holidays and I used a great recipe. Pizza Franks given to me by a friend — it's a pizza-flavored biscuit dough wrapped around cut up chunks of hot dogs. They were a treat for the kids and the recipe produced dozens and dozens of snacks. Perhaps your readers would also enjoy these unusual treats.

PIZZA FRANKS

2¼ cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon onion salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
¼ teaspoon dried basil leaves one-third cup shortening
one-third cup milk
one-third cup tomato paste
1 egg, unbeaten
1 pound hot dogs, cut in ½ inch pieces

Sift together flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, garlic and onion salt and sugar. Stir in cheese, basil and oregano; cut shortening into flour mixture to make coarse crumbs. Add milk, tomato paste and egg; stir with fork until dough follows fork around the bowl. Knead on floured board five or six times. Roll dough ½-inch thick. Cut into 1-inch rounds (you can use a doughnut hole cutter); press dough around piece of hot dog to form cups. Bake in preheated hot oven, 400 degrees for 13-15 minutes until they are nicely browned and puffed.

TV profile
New York City country boy

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carmine Caridi, the stalwart supervisor on the "Phyllis" series is proof enough of the homily that you can take a boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy.

In Carmine's case he is unvarnished New York City country boy.

Born 43 years ago in Manhattan and raised on the lower east side, Caridi carries his dialect with him like a gold pass.

Carmine moved to California a year and a half ago, following the general exodus of actors from New York. In the throes of a divorce, he moved into a furnished apartment in West Hollywood, bringing along only television and stereo sets, along with some odds and ends of housewares.

The apartment house is a good place for young singles, although Carmine doesn't quite qualify on either count.

There is a swimming pool, sauna and whirlpool bath. Kids and big dogs are verboten, which suits the big, 200-pound, 6-foot-4 New Yorker just fine.

Caridi's place has a couple of bedrooms and a kitchen which he doesn't use often. He does have a more-or-less steady girl who cooks dinner for him now and then. They are both health food addicts.

"I haven't eaten any red meat in a year," Carmine boasts. "But it's tough having spaghetti without meatballs."

Carmine is an educated man who devotes many free hours to reading. He is a New York University graduate who taught English at the junior high level for three years in New York's Spanish Harlem section.

He wandered into acting as a youngster in 1950, taking drama classes in the Boys Club of New York. He did some amateur acting in college and joined Dorothy Shay's summerstock company in Cooperstown, N.Y. He made his television debut in a 1962 episode of "Naked City."

An imposing man physically, Carmine exercises every morning. He plays catcher for one of the teams in the Universal Studios softball league.

Usually his muscular frame is encased in leather or soft suede mod outfits, in contrast to the conservative duds he wears on the CBS series in which he costars with Cloris Leachman.

Actor Caridi is usually out of his apartment and at the studio by 9 a.m. Most often he is home by 6 p.m., to relax, shower and change. He likes to have dinner at 8 o'clock or later, long after most Southern Californians have dined. He is a familiar figure at many restaurants within a few blocks of his apartment.

He likes to visit friends at Malibu on weekends to sop up the sun.

When he has time, Carmine is off to Las Vegas and a little action at the tables. He's also a pal of comedians Freddie Prinze, Dave Brenner and Gabe Kaplan. Carmine is sure to be on hand for at least one performance when one of them is appearing in the gambling oasis. Another friend is Bette Midler.

Carmine's four-year marriage was childless. He is content to remain a single man in the foreseeable future.

"Marriage isn't necessary to lead a happy life," he says.

Exhibit of 19th Century Scenes

MYSTIC SEAPORT, Conn. (UPI) — "The Past in Focus: Early Photographs of Mystic by E.A. Scholfield," an exhibition of 1865 to 1912 carte de visites, cabinet photographs, stereographs and other photographic prints of 19th century Mystic scenes, will open Jan. 15 and continue through April 17, at the R.J. Schaefer Building, Mystic Seaport.

Scholfield, one of Mystic's first photographers, made the earliest existing photographs of the historic shipbuilding community where he spent most of his life. The exhibition will focus on his treatment of Mystic, and on the development of his career, in a period when photography was a young artscience and the new photo technology was rapidly evolving

America's first woman reporter

"Margaret Fuller, Rebel for Female Rights," is the subject of a talk to be presented at the Thursday, Jan. 20, evening meeting of the Reserve Officers' Ladies' Club at the home of Rosetta Lohan, 87 Charlmont St., Newton, by Mark Finley, Chestnut Hill playwright.

Finley has written a one-woman play on America's first female newspaper reporter who later became the first female war correspondent when she reported war news to Horace Greeley's "Tribune," then took part in an Italian Revolution herself. Her controversial book, "Woman in the Nineteenth Centrury," led to the first sufferage convention at Seneca Falls, N.Y.

She drowned at age 40 in a shipwreck off Fire Island in 1850. She was educated at Concord, daughter of a Massachusetts Congressman.

Professors among contributors to referece book on the Bible

Four professors from Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, were among 271 scholars from around the world chosen to contribute to the recently published "Supplementary Volume of the Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible."

They are: Charles E. Carlston, Norris professor of New Testament interpretation; William L. Holladay, Lowry professor of Old Testament; William C. Robinson Jr., Taylor professor of biblical theology; and Phyllis Trible, Hitchcock professor of Hebrew language and literature.

First apepearing in 1962, "The Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible" has since become a standard reference work. The new supplementary volume is designed to update and supplement the earlier entries, taking into account recent archeological discoveries and new trends and developments in biblical scholarship. It is cross-referenced to the original.

Carlston's articles are "Parable," and "Form Criticism, New Testament."

Holladay has written "Jeremiah the Prophet," "Grace in the Old Testament," and "The New Covenant."

Robinson contributed "Gospel of Luke," "Acts of the Apostles," and "Genre of Acts," and Trible's contributions were "God, Nature of, in the Old Testament," "Woman in the Old Testament."

Bryn Mawr alumnae hold career program

Three Newton women will be among thirty participants in a day-long career planning program for women sponsored by the Bryn Mawr Club of Boston on Saturday, Jan. 15.

Claire McGuire, Dr. Carolyn Cohen, and Mary Albert, all alumnae of Bryn Mawr College, will share their career expertise with local Bryn Mawr alumnae and undergraduates hoping to find jobs in the Boston area.

The program has been organized to introduce alumnae from eastern Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire, and Rhode Island to a newly formed alumnae career network. This network is a supportive job service providing a working reference file of local alumnae in various occupations willing to offer career information to job seekers in their particular fields.

The meeting will take place at the First and Second Church, Unitarian-Universalist, on Marlborough Street in Boston. It will include a morning panel discussion titled, "Tooling Up for Job Hunting," and an afternoon session of informal workshops on job opportunities in business and finance, computers, education, library science, law, health and social sciences, journalism and publishing, the arts and museums, and science.

15 months membership for a year's club dues

Any new members who join during these months can get up to 15 months of membership for her year's dues. This offer is valid in any of the 25 chapters comprising the Greater Boston Council according to Mrs. Judi Raphael, membership vice president

Community service is where the action is, and it's also where you will find members of B'nai B'rith Women. Students discuss blindness with Carroll Center staff

"When someone cannot see with their eyes they learn to 'see' things with their other senses.'' This was part of a presentation made to a group of third and fourth grade students at Newton's Oak Hill Elementary School.

The students are learning about blindness, about how the blind are not helpless and how they can do things independently. Carla Ross, a communications and Jill Manee, an orientation and mobility specialist, both employed at the Carroll Center For The Blind in Newton, gave the demonstration. Accompanying them was Janet DuBois, a client of the Carroll Center who has been blind since birth.

Ms. Manee discussed how the blind learn to travel independently she and Ms. DuBois demonstrated the sighted guide technique - a method of leading, rather than pushing blind people, as well as the use of a cane. Legal blindness was discussed and the children were shown low vision simulators to demonstrate what some blind people see.

Ms. Ross discussed how the blind can use sound and touch to learn what is around them. She and Ms. DuBois demonstrated braille, the abacus, eating techniques, labeling clothing and various games (cards, Monopoly, checkers, etc.) that the blind play with sighted friends.

The children were blindfolded and played a game with a ball that has an electronic beeper inside.

Series on dying continues at Temple Beth Avodah

The feelings and concerns of the dying and those who care for them - family, friends and professionals, - will be the topic of the second program of the four-part series "Learning to Live with Dying," sponsored by the Emma Lazarus Chapter of American Jewish Congress and the Adult Education Committee of Temple Beth Avodah in Newton, announced Mrs. Beri Shostack, chapter president.

Ms. Sandra Bertman, associate director of Equinox Institute, will lead the program participants in talking about the many aspects of dying in the session on Tuesday, Jan. 18, 8 p.m., at Temple Beth Avodah, Puddingstone Lane, Newton.

Ms. Bertman, a resident of Newton, has done extensive work in areas related to the psychological and social aspects of crisis, loss and communication; moral decision-making; and medical humanitites. She has served as a consultant to the Newton school system and conducted seminars and workshops throughout the country.

At the Tuesday evening workshop entitled "Dying: A Family Affair," Ms. Bertman will use video vignettes to prompt group discussions. Death and dying will be viewed from the perspective that they are experiences affecting more than the dying person.

Other topics to be dealt with in subsequent sessions will be talking about death with children, and burial and mourning customs within the Jewish tradition.

The series, open to the public, is free. For more information, call the A.J.Congress office, 542-0265.

South grapplers win three; stay undefeated

By GREG SOYKA

The Newton South Lion wrestling team has continued to perform well. In the last three matches, Catholic Memorial, Lincoln-Sudbury, and North Quincy have fallen victim to an excellent squad.

CATHOLIC MEMORIAL SMASHED, 51-12

Despite the lop-sided final score, C.M. actually had the lead after Bob Wilcox was pinned in the 100 lbs. bout. After a C.M. forfeit at 107, Captain Ron Lombardo took the mat for Newton South. Lombardo, even though wrestling a weight class higher than usual crushed his opponent and gave the Lions a lead they never lost.

At 121 and 128 lbs. two fine wrestling matches took place. Doug "Booker T" Washington overcame a three point deficit to win his match against a high-spirited C.M. captain. Greg MacDonald wrestled flawlessly at 128 lbs. MacDonald soundly thrashed his C.M. rival who had beaten him last year.

Paul Butters walked off the mat after his match, blue in the face, and with a one point victory.

From here Lion wrestlers exploded with a barrage of pins. Captain Greg Soyka and Dan Picard came through with very quick back to back pins. In the heavy weights, Brian Buffington and Rafi Krasa pulled out pins. Heavyweight Lance Servais added the finishing touch to the match by pinning his opponent also. The final score was Newton South 51, Catholic Memorial 12.

LINCOLN-SUDBURY PUTS UP GOOD FIGHT

Five days later the Lions met Dual County League rival Lincoln-Sudbury high school. L.S. surprised many Lions by keeping the final score a surprisingly close 35-21.

Bob Wilcox started things off right for the Lions; the 100 pound sophomore picked up his first varsity victory. Ron Lombardo had no trouble at 107; pinned his opponent, and made the match score 9-0.

Not wanting to give away six points for a forfeit at 114 lbs., South coaches sent 100 pounder Ron Krassin to fight. Krassin wrestled an opponent who outweighed him by fifteen pounds, and finished the match by losing only one point.

In the 121 pound match Jeff Groper destroyed his counterpart, collecting a pin with ease, Greg MacDonald, previously undefeated, wrestled a very dissappointing match and lost 8-3.

AT 134 lbs. Lee Schiff was overmatched to give L.S. three points. Greg Soyka at 140 lbs. then defeated his L.S. opponent for the second time. Last season the match was close, this year Soyka won 10-2. Dan Picard followed and came through with his fourth pin of the season by overpowering his foe.

LIONS UPSET NORTH QUINCY, 26-22

The Lions were 5-0 before coming into the North Quincy match, however, the outlook for the match was gloomy. North Quincy has a fine team this year, they beat both Brockton and Newton North high schools. When the match was over, the score was Newton South 26, North Quincy 22. The lineup was responsible for the win; each team member wrestled well. With each team winning six matches, the key to the outcome was the Lions who lost, did not get pinned, and the Lions who won, won big, giving the team extra points.

After the first three matches, the Lions trailed 9-0. 100 pounder Ron Krassin lost a heartbreaking 6-5 decision. Ron Lombardo and Jeff Groper met excellent opponents but managed to keep the matches close.

At this point, things looked bad, but four straight Lion victories put them into the lead. At 121 lbs. Doug Washington put in an outstanding effort by picking up four team points for a superior decision. At 128 lbs. Greg MacDonald bounced back after his only loss to win a 6-3 decision over a fine opponent. 134 pounder Lee Schiff overwhelmed his foe with a superior 13-4 decision. This gave the Lions four team points also. Greg Soyka was next and set out to pin his opponent. When the match was over, Soyka had come within a fraction of an inch of collecting a pin three times, but had to settle for an 11-4 decision.

Dan Picard simply did not wrestle up to his capabilities and lost an 8-7 decision. 156 pounder Art Kojoyain was mismatched, but fought the pin throughout the match. His foe settled for a 10-0 superior decision.

Although down by only two points, the Lions were in deep trouble. The North Quincy heavyweight placed third in the state tournament last year and he has pinned everyone in sight this year. This meant the Lions needed more than a six point lead before the final match.

This put a lot of pressure on Brian Buffington and Rafi Krasa. The pair responded with clutch back to back pins to assure a Lion Victory. After the havyweight match the score was Newton South 26, North Quincy 22.

Newton Catholic basketball

By CHRIS SWAN

Along with 89 other high school hoop games, Newton Catholic's game with Sacred Heart of Weymouth was postponed on Friday. This game will be made up on Wednesday, February 16. The girls game against Mount Alvernia was postponed indefinitely.

In games that were played this week, Saint Clements and Hudson Catholic beat the girls, and the N.C. boys beat Saint Marys, Brookline.

The game against Saint Clements of Somerville was played at the Newton Catholic Gym. The Anchor men of Saint Clements proved too tough for our gals and they fell to defeat. The final score was Saint Clements 40, Newton Catholic 23.

The girls J.V.'s won their first game of the year against the Saint Clements J.V. It was N.C. 17, Saint Clements 8. The Lancers were led by one of the many good looking future varsity players, Fabien Anselme, with a total of 8 points.

On Sunday the girls lost to the Green-Wave of Hudson Catholic by 10, 35-25, in a low scoring affair. Sheila Daley had a good game in the losing effort.

The J.V.s made it two in a row by beating Hudson Catholic's J.V., 13-7. Carmel Connaughton was high scorer for Newton Catholic with 5 points. Congratulations are in order to the coaches of these girls Joanne Kearney and Brian Stanton, who have done an excellent job.

The Varsity boys won their third straight game, bringing their record to three and three in the league. They beat one of the better teams in the league, St. Mary's of Brookline. They did this without the services of star Steve Shepard. "Shep" was taken out of the game with an injury. The slack was taken up by Ronny Moan and Jeff Beatrice, who were outstanding in this winning effort.

The Junior Varsity beat Saint Mary's by a score of 39-31. Timmy Hoban was high for Newton Catholic with 22 points. Mark Waters had four points and a good game.

Next week's games for the boys will be against Mission at Mission, and St. Patricks of Watertown at Newton Catholic. For the girls, it will be Saint Peters at home, and Sain Columbkilles away in Brighton.

Tiger runners down No. Quincy; prepare for Brockton showdown

By RICH GROSSMAN

For all intents and purposes, the Suburban League's indoor track championship will be decided this Saturday at 11:30 a.m. at Newton North when the two remaining undefeated teams, Newton and Brocktonl will face off in a head-to-head clash.

The incentive for the Newton squad will be revenge. Last season the Tigers (whose team was composed mainly of underclassmen) lost five of their nine meets. They have avenged four of these defeats, the most recent coming last Tuesday when the Orange and Black defeated the Red Raiders of North Quincy, 64-22. (The Tiger's other victories came against Waltham, 62-24; Rindge Tech, 61-25; and Weymouth South, 54-32.

Sprinters Strike

The Tigers' sprinters, who have been consistent all season did not disappoint them against North Quincy. Both 50 yard dash man Jones and 45 yard high hurdler Bill Rizetto are undefeated in league competition. Flash Jones won the dash in 5.8 while Rizetto took the hurdles in 6.3.

Chris Cato and Chris Flaherty rounded out the Tigers sweep in the hurdles while Greg Kasabian took third place in the dash.

Senior Bob Jackson came up with an impressive 35.8 to win the 300 yard dash while Mike Drew placed third in 37.0.

Newton Field events once again had the better of their opponents scoring all 18 of the possible points.

High jumpers Rizetto, Bob Martin, and Kevin Hinchey swept their event as did the shot putters. Senior Bruce Weinbergwon the event with a 46'7½" toss. Ralph Berry placed second with a 42'1¼" heave while Al Leone captured the third spot with a throw of 39'5½".

Distance Events

Newton co-captain Duncan Scott almost made it two records in two meets as he missed breaking the Suburban league record in the mile be less than 2 seconds. Scott's time of 4:29.6 just missed Bart Petracca's 4:28.4 time set last year. Last week the Newton captain cut 15 seconds of Petracca's 2 mile record. Third place in the mile went to Newton's Mario Sante who ran a 5:06.2.

Junior Wes Harris is proving to e a very versitile sprinter-short distance man for the Tigers. Wes has run very successfully i the 50 and 300 and surprised many people by winning the 600 yard race in 1:23.2. Steve Riviere placed third in that race in 1:24.8.

In the 1000 yard race captain Garde Wells ran a 2:27.5 which was good for second place. He was followed in third place by junior Mark Ross (2:32.9.)

In the 2-mile Newton's Marc Lredo and Bill Peterson tookthe second andthird spots.

The Newton 4x440 relay team won a close one. defeating North Quincy 3:47.4 to :50.2.

North sextet coming on strong

By JIM WILLIAMS
Sports Editor

After losing its first three games, you might figure Newton North's hockey team would be in for a long season.

There was that 6-3 loss to Waltham on opening night, then a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Brockton, and a 5-3 loss to Weymouth South.

Coach Don Crowley's skaters, however, had other ideas. The team has since grouped together and you'd never think this is the same club. Newton has won four games in a row to boost its record to 4-3 going into last night's game with Cambridge Latin.

"Last year," explained Crowley of the slow start, "We did the same thing. We had a bad start, but then we finished 10-8-2 in the Suburban League."

Actually, the loss to league leading Waltham was tougher to take than it would appear. Newton held a 3-2 lead going into the final period, but then the Waltham sextet scored four unanswered goals to win it in the third period.

"I've been really pleased at the way we've come together now," said Crowley. "Our inexperience hurt us at the start of the season."

Captain Joe Calabro has done a big job in the Newton transformation. Joe is coming back off a bad knee ailment but doesn't seem to have lost any of his skating ability, according to Crowley.

"He's been shooting pretty well," Crowley noted, "and I hope the goals start falling in for him now.

Joe's linemates are senior Jack Bellevue and sophomore Jim McHale. The trio is just starting to play as a unit.

Newton's big scoring line of a year ago is back intact. The good news is that all are juniors, too. Center Glenn Buckley is between wingers Lee Waxman and Tom Hagerstrom.

This threesome accounted for all of the team's scoring vs. North Quincy, a 4-0 victory, while Hagerstrom got the hat trick in a 5-1 victory over Weymouth North on Saturday, Newton's last game.

Two more juniors are goalie Felix LiDonni and defenseman Gordie Moore. LiDonni already has a shutout to his credit over North Quincy and has been making the big stop. Moore helped carry the Tigers through their first few games.

Since bowing in their first three contests, Newton has reeled off victories over Quincy (5-1), Brookline (4-3), North Quincy (4-0), and Weymouth (5-1).

The Tigers get their second crack at Waltham this Saturday at 3 p.m. at Charles River. Newton will visit Brockton next Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

The Dec. 29 game with Rindge Tech has been rescheduled for Thursday, Jan. 27.

Crowley is looking forward to Saturday's contest. "I would hope this is an outstanding game," he said. "I just hope we have three good periods and not two this time around."

Lee Levison gets Amherst grid letter

AMHERST—Lee Michael Levison, a senior at Amherst College recently received his varsity "A" for his performance on the Amherst College football team.

Coach James Ostendarp said of him, "Lee played first string tackle for three years and did an outstanding job. His graduation will leave a big gap in the offensive line."

Although the football team finished with a disappointing 3-5 record, the last game of the season brought a 16-0 shut-out of arch-rival Williams College that put the Little Three in a triple tie and gave Amherst its first victory over Williams since 1970.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. Levison of 38 Cabot Street, Newton, Lee is a 1973 graduate of Newton High School.

Lion quintet bows to Lincoln-Sudbury, Medway

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

On Tuesday, Jan. 4, at Newton South High School the Newton South Lions were thoroughly outplayed and beaten by a strong Lincoln-Sudbury team 85-55. Sudbury came into the game with a 2-1 overall record, but this was the first Dual County League game for each team.

The Sudbury team featured All Stars Joe Streater and Tim Chase who are also their team's co-captains. South, however, was missing one of its co-captains as Michael Stollar was out of action with a sprained ankle. This put a heavy burden on Sophomore Mike Buchsbaum who was to start in place of the injured Stollar.

Through the first 3 minutes of the first quarter the teams exchanged baskets. But then Sudbury exploded as Joe Streater stunned the crowd by picking up an offensive rebound and going up over everyone and dunking the ball, which was indicative of things to come.

From then on Sudbury totally dominated as Streater, Chase and Dave Robinson combined for 22 out of 27 first quarter Sudbury points. South, however, could manage only 10 points and as the first quarter ended they were already down by 17, 27-10.

To prove how well everything was going for Sudbury, with only 3 seconds left in the first quarter Tim Chase took a shot from half court; and you guesed it, he made it.

The second quarter proved just as disheartening for South fans as Sudbury continued their dominance with Tim Chase scoring 10 out of their 27 second quarter points. Throughout the second quarter Sudbury used a full court press which worked very well through the end of the first quarter, and it was just as effective throughout the second quarter as they limited South to only 15 points, with Stu Taylor getting 8 of them. The half ended with Sudbury on top, 54-25.

The third quarter was by far South's best quarter of the game. They scored only 17 points, but they also held Sudbury to only 17 points. Two people were by far the standouts of this quarter, for Sudbury. Joe Streater had 12 of their 17 points, and for South, Stu Taylor had 11 of their 17. The third quarter ended with South still down by 29, 71-42.

In the fourth quarter Sudbury could manage only 14 points but their defense held the Lions to only 13, thus making the final score 85-55. This was the most points scored by a team against South this year. But if Michael Stollar hadn't been injured it might have been closer. Only one person for South really stood out; hhat was Stu Taylor who had 21 points and 7 rebounds.

Lose to Medway

On Wednesday, Jan. 5, the Newton South Lions traveled to meet the Medway Mustangs in a re-match of a game played two weeks earlier in which the Lions won a squeaker by 1 point. Again in a squeaker, the Lions came out on the short end, 60-56.

In the first quarter the Lions were unable to contain Medway's stellar forward Steve Johnson, who scored 18 of their 25 first quarter points. The Lions could manage only 14 points in the quarter with Gary Simon getting 6 of them.

The second quarter was relatively close with Medway outscoring the Lions 18-14. Again Steve Johnson dominated for Medway scoring 9 of their 18 second quarter points.

Through the first half Johnson was virtually unstopable as he shot 11-12 from the floor and 5-6 from the foul line. He had 27 out of Medway's 43 first half points, and South left the floor down by 15, 43-28.

Coach Walker must have said something to the Lions at halftime, because they completely turned the game around in the third quarter as they were able to contain Steve Johnson and the whole Medway team. While limiting Medway to 5 points in the third quarter, the Lions were able to score 18 points to close the gap to two, 48-46 at the end of the quarter.

Gary Simon, Stu Taylor and Mike Buchsbaum each scored 6 points to account for the Lions 18 third quarter points. The loud support of a small contingent of fans from Newton South spurred the Lions on during their spurt.

Tight defense by both teams in the fourth quarter kept the scoring low. With 40 seconds left, South had pulled to within 2 points, but Medway had the ball. South's strategy at this point called for a deliberate foul in order to try to regain possession of the ball. However, they wasted 30 seconds before committing a foul; and even then they fouled the wrong player, picking on Johnson, the best shooter on the floor. He made both free throws putting the game out of reach with 3 seconds left, 60-56.

These two games dropped South's record to 1-4 overall, 0-1 in Dual County League play. Their record could easily have been 4-1 since 4 of the games were decided in the final seconds. So far this has been a very exciting season.

Newton girl earns field hockey letter

AMHERST—Elizabeth Ann Ryan, a freshman at Amherst College, recently received her first varsity "A" for her performance on Amherst College's first women's intercollegiate field hockey team.

Coach Christine Zampach said of her, "Beth has the ability to get the defense working together. Her sure tackling and agile movements made her invaluable. The sweep position she plays gives her the chance to roam where she is needed. Her teammates named her the most valuable defensive player."

In their first year of competition, the Amherst women improved considerably during a season that ended with a 3-5-3 record. Playing 17 freshmen out of a squad of 21, Amherst often was at a serious disadvantage in terms of age and experience. For a first year program, the Amherst field hockey team proved it can compete on its level in New England and with all but one player returning next year, the Lord Jeffs will be even stronger.

The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Ryan of 46 Vista Avenue, Auburndale, Ms. Ryan is a 1976 graduate of Newton North High School.

Tiger matmen top Weymouth but lose to Waltham, 28-18

Still hot after a qreat week of wrestling, the Newton North Tigers went into Weymouth South and took the place by storm. The Tigers quickly added some excitement to the otherwise dead atmosphere in the Weymouth South gym. In the process, they also put on a fine exhibition of wrestling, and were clearly the dominant team.

The 100-pound weight class, luckily was not a sign ' of things to come, as Newton North's Greg Sotlr was pinned in the first period. Dave Gasdia then started the onslaught as he won a decision 4 to 1.

Kevin Bengtson followed with a pin at 1:16 of the third period to give Newton North a lead which just kept expanding. John Larkin outmuscled his opponent very quickly, and pinnedhim in the first period. Roy Hebard then won 12 to 0 in a lopsided battle.

Kip Chinian, at 134, was next in the parade of winners, as he was victorious 10 to 2. Ed Kie won by default as the Weymouth South co-captain injured his shoulder. Neil Johnson recorded his fifth pin out of seven victories to stay undefeated.

Co-captain Jim Acheson lost a heartstopper to the Weymouth South co-captain. Dave Larkin won his third straight match, at 169-pounds, by a pin to raise the team score to Newton North 42, Weymouth South 9. Bill Kerr, who has been . plitting the duties at 187 with Tom Parker, was next with s yet another pin, followed by heavyweight Peter Hiltz being pinned.

The final varsity score was 48 to 15 in favor of the Tigers. The JV's also gave Weymouth South a lesson in wrestling as they won nine matches and tied the remaining three to win 48 to 6.

The Tigers were obviously happy with their first Suburban League win, which evened them off at 1-1, but lurking in the shadows were the Waltham Hawks who have always been a strong rival. There are many reasons for this fierce rivalry. Waltham shared the honor of Suburban League Tri-Champs with Newton and Brockton last year.

They are also the only Suburban League in Newton North's section, and the cities close locations adds cOal to the fire. This set the scene for the battle which was to take place Friday. An ill-timed snowstorm forced the meet to be delayed to the following day. The one day layoff undoubtedly hurt the Tigers, who were psyched and ready to go on Friday. ULC JV's Bow

The JV's opened thing up with a 29 to 21 loss, which was nip and tuck all the way. Steve Krutt and E. A. Morgan both registered pins for the Newton North JV's. ScOtt MacLean, Kip Chinian, and Shota Aki won, while Dan Brown, Brendan Underhill, Ted Rich Bresnahan, Harry Shanian, Steve Wasson, Kent and Jeff Parker also suffered defeats at the hands of Waltham.

After a brief intermission, the moment of truth was near and fate could not be avoided. The Waltham team took their warmups in a carnival-like atmosphere, which they provided. Rock music and red, white and blue strobe lights were just part of the show which seemed exceedingly out of place just prior to a high school wrestling meet.

The Tigers forfeited the 100 pound weight class. Despite some great chain wrestling, Dave Gasdia lost a remarkably close match at 107 by the score of 7 to 6. Kevin Bengtson ventured out with his unorthodox stance, and took his Waltham opponent down with a head and heel. He was quickly rolled for the reversal and then yielded another reversal in the second period to lose 4 to 2.

The game but inexperienced John Larkin suffered another setback for Newton North as he was defeated 9 to 0. Senior Roy Hebard was the unfortunate victim of Waltham as he took on one of Waltham's toughest wrestlers. He fought off a multitude of chicken wings, and eventually lost 5 to 0. Tim Scarlett then entered the match and displayed animal-like movements throughout the scoreless first period.

There was no score in the second period, but in the third, Scarlett was put on his back by good arm control and a chicken wing, which has become a trade rk of the Waltham Hawks. He lost 7 to 0.

Big Deficit

Everybody, especially the wrestlers in orange and black, were shocked. Already Newton was down 22 to 0. Ed Kim, who has been brilliant at 140, did manage to come through for Newton North in a great match. He took his man down in the dying moments of the first period and went ahead 2-0.

After two periods, he lead 3 to 2, and in the third, his persistent movement and stamina aided him as his opponent couldn't keep up with the pace. Kim pinned him at 5:48 to obtain the Tiger's first win.

The next match was billed as the battle of the undefeated. Both Neil Johnson of Newton North and Bob Calnan of Waltham had not lost a match, so something had to give. Johnson nearly took Calnan's head off with two consecutive pancakes, and he was quickly ahead 4 to 0, putting Calnan on his back.

The Newton North co-captain overdrove in his attempt to pin, and he was consequently put to his back. He fought off a pin for the remainder of the period and trailed 5 to 4. After a scoreless second period, Johnson gave up a reversal and eventually lost 7 to 4.

Co-captain Jim Acheson, who has wrestled some stiff competition second period, was hungry for a win and he delivered second with an explosive flying chin pull in the period. He won 7 to 3.

The meet score was now 25 to 9 in favor of the Waltham Hawks, and the Tiger's hopes looked dim. Dave Larkin then entered and came out the victor 4 to 0. We exhibited great intensity. At 187 pounds, Bill Kerr used some basic hip roll wrestling, but he couldn't contain his opponent as he lost 7 to 3. Waltham had already clinched the victory, but flamboyant Peter Hiltz took the mat as if the outcome of the match rested on his shoulders. He got the pin for Newton and the final score was 28 to 18 in favor of Waltham.

This was undeniably a tough loss for Newton North to bear, but come sectional time, the Tigers will have the opportunity to get revenge. Quincy and Weymouth North, both path. They will be harsh tests for the Tigers, who will n hopefully bounce back and stay in contention for the Suburban League title.

North hoopsters down Weymouth

By BRUCE DANZIGER

The Newton North Basketball team won its second straight game, 57-51, Tuesday over Weymouth South. The game, like a couple of previous games, was close through three quarters but the Tigers pulled away in the fourth.

The scoring was as follows:

Newton
Morog	19
Quinlan	3
Luchetti	13
Russell	2
Glore	12
Proia	6
Pendergast	2
	57

Weymouth South
Porter	14
Crook	12
Mills	8
Powers	6
Bellafato	5
Sugar	4
Connolly	2
	51

As usual, Tom Morog led the scoring for both teams. Mario Luchetti was his usual consistent self with 13 points. He has been in double figures almost every game.

The win improved Newton's record to 3-3. The team has been playing well lately, recuperating from the early season losses.

South girls' five tops Lincoln, 50-45

By ELLEN KORELITZ

On Tuesday, Jan. fourth, the Newton South Girls Basketball team travelled to Lincoln-Sudbury High School for their first Dual-County League game. The game was very exciting and probably one of the best girls' basketball games in South's history as South won, 50-45.

Newton girls dominated the whole game beginning in the first four minutes. Lincoln controlled the tap, but suddenly Newton stole the ball and was on its way to victory. The new offense that Newton used was clearly a main factor in the victory. The girls worked together as a team as they sunk every basket.

The first quarter went well for Newton. They always kept about a 5 point lead over Lincoln. The second quarter also went well until the last minute when Lincoln sunk a few quick baskets bringing the score to 20-19 in favor of Newton at the half.

After the half time strategy and pep talk, the Lions were ready to roar back on the floor.

The third quarter really could have gone to either team but Newton completely wrapped it up in the fourth. Three plays by the duo of Ellen Koulitz and Kerry Wilcox just about put the game away. But, with 2 minutes left, Lincoln threatened and coach Atori called a time-out.

With 30 seconds left, the score was 47-45 and Newton had the ball on the side. Kim Sesborn passed it in to Ellen Korelitz, who was fouled and given 2 shots. Ellen hit one out of the two. Lincoln controlled but could not score.

A key defensive rebound was grabbed by Karen Bilsky and an outlet pass was made to Judy Koffman, who was fouled as she brought the ball up court. Judy missed both her shots but the team was still confident of a victory.

The Lions once again got possession of the ball and Ellen Korelitz was fouled for her 2nd time at the free throw line.

Ellen sunk both hoops bringing the score to 50-45 with six seconds left. Excellent defense by Judy Koffman, Karen Bilsky, Kerry Wilcox, Kim Seaborn and Ellen Korelitz kept Lincoln from scoring and the Lions clinched the game.

Sophomore Kim Seaborn played an excellent game at the wing position. Kim was hitting shots from all over the floor which made her high scorer with 11 points. Everyone on the team played. Coach Atori believes that having a strong bench can make or break a team.

Co-captain Mindy Kingston played a good game right up until the last half of the fourth quarter, when a scoring error was made that said Mindy had 5 fouls when she really had only 4.

Mindy left the game with her head up and a smile on her face knowing that her teammates would wrap up the gme. Barby Long also played a very good game and she was among the high scorers. Ben Antonellis is a very strong post player who comes off the bench in times of trouble and always comes through like the rest of the Lions' fantastic "77" team.

South six falls to Acton; comes back to beat Weston

By BRIAN J. Kiley

The Newton South Lions were bombed by Wednesday by the Acton-Boxborough Colonials, 9-0. On Saturday, South bounced back to win easily against Weston 6-2.

It is very rare for a team in any sport to have its worst game, then three days later have its best game. How did South do it? Well, for one thing, South played away on Wednesday and home on Saturday. Normally, the back-up goalie, Albert Pazos, played the whole game doing a great job. I'm sure a few hard practice sessions helped a little, too.

The game against the Colonials was played in Assabet Rink, a much smaller rink than Charles River and the atmosphere was less than a normal high school game.

In the first period before anyone knew the game had started, Brad Feltus drilled the puck past Dean Kahr. Five minutes later Jon Davis, during a scramble in front, slipped a dribbler in. After assisting on that goal Brad Feltus made a great play moving by the South defense and firing a wrist shot by Dean Kahr.

A few minutes later, a colonial forward held Bobby Tresca enabling Deron Barton to pass to an open Steve Rhodes in front. Rhodes' goal put South down by four. Later Rhodes returned the favor by assisting on Barton's goal. Rhodes took a hard-angle, slap shot stopped by Kahe, but the rebound popped high in the air landing on Deron Barton's stick.

Twenty-four seconds later, during a mix-up in front, Bob Brooke put a wrist shot in the net. Kahr did make a great save when Pete Johnson had a breakaway, but for some reason that wasn't going to be enough to change the momentum. When the buzzer sounded, it was clear that South wasn't going to get back in the game.

The only incident of interest in the second period occurred when Brad Feltus scored, giving him a hat trick, and putting South down by 7. For the record, Bob Brooke and Steve Ward scored in the third period.

When South played Weston, things were different. South had one thing that they didn't have against Acton-Boxborough, LIFE. Right from the start things looked better for South. They behaved like a team. Albert Pazos was in goal, and he proved to be the right choice.

The game got underway with the two teams feeling each other out. However, when Yanni Alphas and Joe O'Brien were in the penalty box, South got its chance. Wild Cat goalie Scott Page couldn't handle Peter Cappadona's hard slapshot allowing Lion Howard Cooper to knock it in.

A few minutes later while Cooper and Edward McCarthy were passing the puck back and forth until Cooper brought it in front and caught Page off guard for an easy goal. Cooper scored twice giving South a 2-0 lead.

The first period wasn't over although many people thought it was. Joe O'Brien took a slapshot in the screen and Albert Pazos never saw it. That goal came with 13 seconds left in the period.

The second period was all South's. Dave McKinnon's shot deflected in front by Mike Mosca and made the score 3-1.

Scott Page hadn't seen the last of Howard Cooper, as Cooper scored his hat-trick goal giving South a 4-1 lead.

Then at 6:34 Howard Cooper who never seems to tire, passed the puck to Edward McCarthy and McCarthy fired it by Page. Weston finally managed to get the puck by Pazos when Ken Harris scored but South went into the locker room overjoyed with a 5-2 lead.

With Cooper's offense and Pazos in net, South was having no problems. South came out in the 3rd period knowing that no one was going to take a win away from them. Al Pazos stopped Weston star Mackie Wyman on a number of occasions with great saves.

Then with another Weston man in the penalty box, Bobby Tresca rung the goal post with a hard shot. The rebound deflected to...who else?...But Howard Cooper! Cooper had 4 goals in one game.

When the game ended, the players jumped all over Cooper and Pazos. They looked as if they had won the Stanley Cup instead of a win making their record 1-6, but that is a lot better record than 0-7.

Newton's Ed Tompkins voted "Athlete of Fall" at Deerfield

Ed Tomkins, son of Dr. and Mrs. William D. Tompkins, 355 Upland Ave., Newton Highlands, and a 1976 graduate of Rivers Country Day School, received his second acclaim of the season when he was voted "Athlete of the Fall" at Deerfield Academy.

He had previously received the Most Valuable Offensive Player Award.

(The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Deerfield Scroll, Deerfield Academy's school newspaper.)

While the varsity team rambled to an outstanding 13-0-1 season and received most of the school's attention, varsity football rebounded from a disappointing 1-2 start to finish with a very respectable 5-2-1 slate. Much of the impetus behind this resurgence can be attributed to one man — Athlete of the Fall Ed Tompkins.

Tomkins' final statistics speak for themselves. He rushed for an impressive 789 yards, over half his team's total rushing yardage, on a mere 132 carries. His 5.9 per trip average is most impressive, especially when one considers that most of his running, out of the tail-back slot, came between the two tackles.

Tompkins tallied three 100 plus yard games (Vermont, Exeter, and Mt. Hermon), and was never held under 55 yards in any given contest. His lowest individual game total came against Lawrenceville (57 yards) in the first game of the season. Facing Vermont, Tompkins achieved his finest single-game rushing total, as he slipped and slid for 167 yards amidst a game-long torrential rain.

In addition to Tompkins' aforementioned exploits, his 10-touchdown total is surpassed by only one other athlete in the history of Deerfield football, namely Ralph Polillio '75.

Football Head Coach James Smith calls Tompkins "an accomplished runner. He ranks among the best backs we've had at Deerfield."

Most observers will best remember Tomkins for his habit of twisting and churning for that all-important extra yardage. Mr. Smith elaborates, "Eddie reads the holes well. He's quick-footed and has an extraordinary sense of balance."

Tomkins' finest effort of the season came against probably the toughest defense the Green faced — Mt. Hermon — where he rushed for 104 yards and two touchdowns on 21 carries. "Eddie had quite a day," Mr. Smith remembers. "And he had quite a lot of pressure on him, too. The real test of a great athlete is his performance under pressure. Eddie didn't let it bother him — most of that running we saw was all inside, against a very tough defense."

Funding for anti-drug programs available

Money for drug treatment and prevention programs is available from the Division of Drug Rehabilitation of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Mental Health. Guidelines and applications can be obtained Jan. 17 from the Newton-Wellesley-Weston— Needham Area Office, 1001 Watertown St., West Newton 02165, (telephone; 969-3360).

Both residential and nonresidential programs qualify for funding with state money. In addition, federal funds will be used to support innovative ideas or programs reaching previously unserved people.

The amount of money available to Newton, Wellesley, Weston, and Needham for fiscal 1978 is the same as this year. The department is therefore especially interested in proposals which increase the efficiency of services such as joint ventures between agencies. Priority will be given to maintenance of existing programs that meet a documented need and that have demonstrated continued quality of service through evaluation.

For further information, contact Jean M. Riseman, Area drug and youth program coordinator, 969-3360.

Form 1040 US Individual Income Tax Return 1975
Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. My three children are members of various non-profit organizations. I often give them money for fees to picnics, carnivals and other fund raising activities the groups sponsor. Are these fees tax deductible?

A Contributions made to any qualified non-profit organization involved solely in charitable work are deductible However the contribution is deductible only to the extent it exceeds any benefits you receive

For example, if one of the non profit organizations had a picnic and the fee was $10 for the family, you must subtract the cost of the meal from your contribution If the meal cost $5, you can deduct the additional $5 as your contribution to the organization

Q. I am receiving a divorce after being separated from my husband for a year I have custody of our 13-year-old daughter and have been her sole support. Can I claim the child as a dependent?

A When parents are divorced or separated, generally the parent who has custody of the child for the greater part of the year may claim the dependency exemption The exceptions to this rule involve situations where the other parent contributes to the support of the child

Since you are the sole support of the child, you can claim the exemption when you file your Federal tax return

You may also be able to file as "unmarried head of household." by checking that filing status block on the Form 1040 or 1040A you file

Q Due to a job-related injury, I recently retired from Federal employment before reaching mandatory retirement age. Since I will receive a disability pension, how should that be reported on my Federal income tax return?

A. You should declare the total amount of your disability pension for the tax year on Form 1040 Since your retirement plan provides for payment of a disability pension upon becoming permanently disabled before reaching mandatory retirement age some or all of the amounts you receive until you reach the mandatory retirement age may be excludable as sick pay That amount is also entered on Form 1040 Any amount you receive that exceeds the portion of disability payments excludable as sick pay is taxable income

If you determine that you have a sick pay exclusion attach Form 2440, Sick Pay Exclusion to your income tax return

For more specific guidelines refer to IRS Publication 567 Tax Information on U S Civil Service Retirement and Disability Retirement, and IRS Publication 575 Tax Information on Pension and Annuity Income available at most IRS offices

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Tobacco kills bugs — Keeping up with pesticides today can drive a garden center clerk (and gardeners) crazy. You have to be a chemist to keep up with the endless flow of both common and trade names of pesticides. To make it even more confusing, it's hard to keep track of the restricted pesticides which the EPA publishes from time to time. New compounds come out, they work a while, bugs become immune and the merry-go-round starts all over again for a tougher pesticide. The tougher you get with bugs, the tougher they get with us.

Strangely, there's one pesticide gardeners have been using for nearly 100 years, and it hasn't changed a bit. It's a tobacco by-product with a trade name of Black Leaf 40 or Nicotine Sulfate, at one time the most widely used contact insecticide. It's still going strong even though newer materials such as malathion have come along, and it works great on aphids and other insects that come in contact with it. The tobacco poison enters through the breathing pores, or other parts of the body Nicotine was once applied as a dust, mixed with lime or a clay carrier. Enough fumes were liberated (without actually coating the insect) to kill it.

It wasn't long after Sir Walter Raleigh introduced tobacco to European smokers that nicotine became of note as an insecticide. It was reported in the papers in Marseilles in 1763 that a solution made of finely ground bad tobacco would kill aphids. Then in 1787, a chap named Goeze proposed the use of the dry ground powder, thus furnishing historical background for the nicotine dusts.

In 1885, a solution called "Gold Leaf Tobacco Extract" was put on the market, a forerunner of the Black Leaf 40 and other nicotine sulfate extracts. Nicotine sulfate is very toxic and kills even quicker when used at high temperatures (above 80 degs.). It's ineffective when used in cool temperatures. It's also more effective when a wetting agent is used, such as soap suds. In hard water, it's most toxic to insects than if mixed with soft water.

Many home growers use cigar butts and cigarette stubs to mix a weak tea for killing insects. This works for insects in soils of house plants. Rather than make a tobacco decoction in the home, we think it's more expedient to buy the extract and follow directions on the label.

Tobacco, one of America's gifts to the world, was introduced as a panacea to cure dozens of illnesses — halitosis, toothache, hydrophobia and what not. While people chew it, sniff, snuff and smoke it, the best use for tobacco is for killing insects. It's been doing that ever since the 17th century If people don't quit blowing smoke in my face, I might end up with the bugs.

Green Thumb Clinic – "Is it true that putting cold water on plants affect them?"

Ans Yes. Cold soils reduce water uptake and shortens height and weight. Use water of room temperature, especially with African Violets and foliage plants.

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

PUZZLED

Q. I was born on May 17, 1953 at 6:30 a.m. in Boston, Mass. I have calculated my horoscope but find myself puzzled about the aspects to my Moon. I would like to know whether the Moon Squared to Saturn conjunct Neptune is a stronger influence than the Moon conjunct Uranus? In short, what does it all mean, having the Moon in aspect with two extremely diverse planets and aspects?

Thomas

A. You are correct in the calculation of some of the aspects to your Moon and undoubtedly you also know your Moon was in Square aspect to your Venus and in Favorable aspect to both your Mercury, Sun and Mars among others. Also your Venus was "opposite" your Saturn which was Conjunct Neptune and Square your Uranus.

In any young man's horoscope. the Moon is indicative not only of his emotions, but also his attitude towards and possible experiences with the opposite sex. The entire horoscope must always be given consideration in judging it's parts.

Emotionally and instinctively you are apt to seek the unusual in your love life. Unconventional relationships, while temporarily exciting, are bound to end abruptly.

You are very sensitive to both real or fancied offenses and can be easily hurt. You have a strong desire to be independent and are very much in need of love and affection and yet, you may "stand in your own light," so to speak.

Unless you are patient and cautious, you are likely to be confused in your love life. You may seek to deviate from strict conduct which, if you do, will likely lead to regrets and unfortunate experiences.

You have excellent possibilities, try to express your emotional drives by sublimation into intellectual development. Let your energies flow to the mind away from the sensational.

New techniques for identification

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Glasgow, home of the most advanced police headquarters in Europe, is to pioneer work in new techniques which could lead to a major breakthrough in identifying criminals.

The work, fit advanced police headquarters in Europe, is to pioneer work in new techniques which could lead to a major breakthrough University.

The main project, to be carried out by Dr. R. G. Sommerville of the Bacteriology Department, will involve identifying people from bloodstains. "Human blood," says Dr. Sommerville, "contains various antibodies produced in reaction to bacteria or viruses entering the bloodstream during infections such as flu, colds or other diseases.

"Since every individual's exposure to infection is different, what we are hoping is that the levels of the different antibodies in any sample of blood will enable forensic scientists to build up what you might call an 'antibody profile' which will be unique to an individual in the same way that his or her fingerprints are."

The other project, which will be carried out at the same time, is an investigation of the various proteins found in saliva. The man in charge, Dr. J. Beeley of the Department of Dentistry, says the general principle is the same as that involved in the antibody investigation. "What we are hoping," he says, "is that everybody will have a different saliva 'fingerprint' according to the levels of the various proteins that are found."

Slenderworld offers 'diet you can live with'

"The diet you can live on" is the motto of Slenderworld International Diet Classes, Inc. Slenderworld classes, sometimes called the diet of the future, are similar to other groups, but much easier to live with. Members are allowed butter, margarine and oil on this program, and do not to have to dedicate themselves to five meals of fish every week.

The core of the program is a system of controlled portions of the food you eat every day. Members set their own goal or "control weight" when they enroll in the group. New diet sheets and recipes are given weekly. Slenderworld founder, Joe Caruso, has lost 115 pounds on the program and has been able to control his weight loss for over a year.

Classes meet Mondays at 7 p.m. at the Theodore Parker Unitarian Church in West Roxbury; and Mondays at 10 a.m. at the Community House in Dedham.

Research holds out hope for kidney patients

GLASLOW, Scotland (UPI) – The migrating habits of the Scottish salmon could lead to a new cure for people throughout the world who are waiting for a kidney transplant or survive only with the help of an artificial kidney machine, according to the results of research currently being carried out at Glasgow Royal Infirmary.

The man behind the research is 39-year-old Dr. James Dobbie, a consultant physician in the Infirmary's kidney diseases unit and a senior lecturer in medicine at Glasgow University. He describes the findings to date as a completely new concept in the treatment of kidney disease.

He hit on the present line of inquiry purely by chance, he says. While examining the kidney of a young fish in the electronic microscope during a research project last year it was discovered that it apparently showed a disease of the filtering units similar to nephritis in man.

"Further research," says Dr Dobbie, "showed that it was not a disease at all, but a quite natural body change occurring when the fish was getting ready to move from fresh to salt water. While in salt water, the fish makes very little use of its kidneys and the filtering units are, if you like, set at 'low'. When it returns to fresh water they are switched back to 'full'."

The killer kidney disease, nephritis, says Dr. Dobbie, is an inflammation of the filtering units causing the kidneys to be "switched off," and it is usually impossible to switch them back on again. What he and his team then set out to do was find out how the salmon switched its kidneys on again when it returned to fresh water. The answer, they found, was a hormone called prolactin which, in humans, is secreted into the bloodstream of nursing mothers.

"Once we had got that far," says Dr. Dobbie, "we wondered whether it would be possible to apply these discoveries to man and, through a substance like prolactin, switch damaged kidneys back to normal working conditions, and already we have definite evidence that the mechanism will work in man."

Role of vitamins is understood

NUTLEY, N.J. (UPI) — More than seven out of 10 Americans understand the role of vitamin supplements in nutrition and good health, according to a recent nationwide survey conducted by Response Analysis Corporation for Hoffmann-La Roche Inc.

The survey shows that over eight out of 10 people believe that natural vitamin supplements are better than synthetic supplements. In October, 1976, however, the Food and Drug Administration reaffirmed that natural vitamins had no advantage over synthetic vitamins.

'Hellzapoppin' has its moments

By RANDY MUDARRI
Graphic theater critic

"Hellzapoppin" is billed as a "musical circus." It is certainly musical, though no song is particularly distinctive. And it is certainly a circus, for one never knows what is coming next.

Originally performed by the comedy team of Olsen and Johnson, "Hellzapoppin" now stars Jerry Lewis who is certain to please his legion of fans with his standard antics. A few of Lewis' stock of personal characters are easily recognizable in his skits. His entrance, as may be expected, is accompanied by a daffy scream as he tumbles into the orchestra pit.

Co-star Lynn Redgrave has a few song and dance numbers as well as a successful skit in which she portrays a Barbara Walters— type news reporter. Such familiar faces as Herb Edelman and Joey Faye are in supporting roles.

This production has many things going for it besides the star-studded cast. The costumes, by Alvin Colt, and the set, by Robert Randolph, are dazzling. To mention costumes and set this early in a review is justifiable in this case, for they are exceptional.

The supporting entertainment acts are very good. First and foremost are Bob Williams and his dog Louie. The audience goes wild as Williams tries to get Louie to do his tricks, Louie yawning all the way. For Louie to perform even the simplest trick would be anti— climactic. This act must be seen to be believed.

Leonardo is a man who will get 10 plates spinning simultaneously on their respective sticks. Though such an act is impressive on television, it is literally breath-taking in person. The Villams, jugglers, are superb and The Volantes are very funny unicyclists.

However, there are holes in "Hellzapoppin."

Some of the material is weak and dated. When the show is flying, especially in the first act when plants in the audience abound, the entire Colonial Theatre is a stage. The audience doesn't know where to turn next. At this point, we are astounded. Expectedly, this level of energy cannot be maintained, and after experiencing such a thrill we come to expect more of the same, and it just doesn't come.

Not only that, but scrutinization of ensuing material becomes more intense. Some of the scenes, such as "A Husband, a Lover, a Wife" where wife Lynn Redgrave and her lover are confronted by her husband who yells for the lover to get out of the room and streams of men rush out of closets, should be reworked or eliminated. The premise is childish, and the audience bides time until it is over.

Some of Joey Faye's skits are equally inane and bomb.

The score as a whole is not impressive, despite a fine orchestra, led by John Lesko, and a chorus which is very lively and quite handsome.

For that matter, some of the lowpoints of the evening is Lewis' solo songs. He just isn't the man for it. For that matter, Lynn Redgrave, though leggy, doesn't fill the bill any further as a singer-dancer. Her voice is limited and her movements not graceful enough. She is very funny, however, in a "We-witness News" skit with co-anchorman Jerry Lewis. Jerry Lewis fans will not be disappointed in him. The antics and characterizations to which they are accustomed abound. Particularly pleasing is his typewriter bit.

Written by Abe Burrows, the script is the part of the show's downfall. Coupled with a weak score, it becomes devastating from a critical standpoint. A singular instance in which the show could have been stopped is when an "usherette" gets her big chance on stage and sings an appropriate number, "A Miracle Happened," but Jill Choder's talent just doesn't measure up to the task, and the opportunity for a show-stopping number is blown. One cannot praise director Jerry Adler when such things occur. The choreography of Donald Saddler is not outstanding but adequate.

"Hellzapoppin" continues at the Colonial Theatre through Jan. 22.

We're all out of "succulent."
Say you're invited to dinner at a friend's house.
"Splendid," you reply, and offer to bring the wine. "What are you serving?"
"Well, I kind of thought we'd start with some crisp, taste-tempting, farm-fresh garden salad; some generous cuts of succulent western steer beef in a zingy-zesty sauce; and some tender morsels of light, flaky, mouth-watering . . ."
Aaaargh!
You would either run away grinding your teeth, or throttle the person. Because – bless his wretched excesses – he managed some two-dozen adjectives to describe "steak and salad"!
From my experience with restaurant menus, the more the adjectives, the less the steak.
Therefore, in my restaurant, we concentrate on the food and drink, rather than the adjectives and adverbs.
On my menu, steaks are called "steaks."
Our fresh, tender, young, flaky Boston Schrod is called "schrod."
Our hamburgers (you will never believe this) are called "hamburgers." Add cheese, our hamburgers are called . . .
Right.
And so on with the London broil, prime ribs, lobster, fried clams, shish-ka-bob, and sole. Our Giant Cocktails are called "drinks."
Here is the point of all this:
You'll find a lot of real good food in my restaurant
Even though "succulent" isn't on the menu.

The New England Chamber Trio will perform works of Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms at the All Newton Music School, West Newton, Friday, Jan. 14, at 8 p.m.

Virginia Loiselle, violin, and George Seaman, cello, are both members of the school faculty. Philip Morehead, piano, has been heard on two other occasions in this series of faculty concerts.

The program will include the Mozart piano trio in G, K564, written three years before the composer's death and originally intended as a piano sonata.

It will also include the Beethoven variations on "Ich Bin der Schneider Kakadu," Op. 121, and Brahms' C Minor Trio, Op. 101.

After the concert, refreshments will be served.

Service Note

Stuart B. Rothman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon W. Rothman, 60 Dwhinda Rd., Waban, will work with the law firm of Barron & Stodfield as part of St. Lawrence University's January interterm program.

Conservatory presents 'A Night with the Devil'

Justino Diaz, leading bass of the Metropolitan Opera, will be in Boston for oneconcert performance in Jordan Hall, New England Conservatory, on Saturday, Jan. 22.

The concert at 8:30 p.m. is just one evet of "A Night With the Devil," a fund-raising smorgasbord sponsored by the Friends of New England Conservatory. Several social happenings in various halls of NEC will revolve around the young basso.

Diaz has been dubbed "devil" by the Conservatory's Friends because of his rare feat of performing three operatic Mephisto roles within a ten-month period.

The New England Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, under the baton of composer, conductor, and Conservatory President Gunther Schuller, will perform with Diaz.

The many selections of the evening incl Wagner's "Faust Overture," Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz," and Berlioz's "March to the Scaffold" from "Symphonie Fantastique."

Proceeds from "A Night With the Devil" will benefit New England Conservatory. Concert tickets are available for $15 and may be obtained by calling the Friends Office at 262-1120, ext. 257, or by writing Friends Office, New England Conservatory of Music, 290 Huntington Ave., Boston, 02115.

Country Players to stage folk legend in February

With its season already successfully under way, the Newton Country Players are preparing for the second theatrical venture, Howard Richardson and William Berney's folk legend, "Dark of the Moon."

For the production, which incorporates an extensive cast, the Players have enlisted the directional talents of Paul Tines. Tines' having served as director for previous N.C.P. productions of "Roa of the Greasepaint" and "Picnic," is a graduate of the American Academy in New York and currently teaches theater at Chapel Hill-Chauncy Hall in Waltham.

Based on the ballad of Barbara Allen, "Dark of the Moon" combines the eerie mysticism of witches and spirit life with the down-home rusticity characteristic of the Rocky Mountain region in which it is set.

Interspersed with music and folk-dancing, and highlighted by a rousing town revival meeting, the basic essence of the story is that of love and fidelity observed through the relationship of John the Witch Boy and his country wench, Barbara Allen.

The Newton Country Players welcomes to its company Steven Cook of Norwood and Pamela Wood of Newton in the featured roles of John and Barbara. Cook, a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, has most recently appeared in commty theater productions of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and "Mame," while Miss Wood's credits of late include a production of "The Last Hurrah" in Leicester.

Skip Portney and Cindy McCaig, both N.C.P. regulars, will assume the roles of Conjur Man and Conjur Woman with Barbara's parents' Mr. and Mrs. Allen, being portrayed by Larry Morris and Jane Yoffe, both of Newton Country Players affiliation.

Three more talented newcomers to the N.C.P. stage, Peter Benjamin, P. Bradley Armacost, and John McGovern will take the roles of Floyd Allen, Marvin Hudgens, and Preacher Haggler respectively. The show's producer is Louise Cohen.

The Newton Country Players, a non-profit community organization encouraging those interested in theater to participate in its activities, will present "Dark of the Moon" at the Pomroy House, 84 Eldridge St., Newton Corner on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 11-12, 18-19, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 13, at 7:00 p.m. For membership and ticket information, contact Jim Sloan at 244-2160.

North closed due to cold

Newton North High School was closed early Monday because of water leaks from frozen heating units, and it is possible the school may also be closed some days this summer because of delayed repairs to the heating, ventilating, and air conditioning system.

Conditions in the school this summer will likely be no different from last summer when school was dismissed early, since the mayor has said that the recommendations of the Balco study be drawn up as specifications for public bidding.

If the public bidding was bypassed, the school could have openable windows in six months or less.

The School Committee voted for $1 million for improvements in heating, ventilation, and air conditioning (HVAC) system Monday night.

The Public Buildings and Finance committees of the Board of Aldermen will have to act on the School Committee recommendations before they go to the full Board and then out to bid after specifications are drawn up.

The School Committee plan includes installing 35 openable windows in various classrooms, correcting many ventilation units, and installing door louvres (air slots) in 12 offices and common rooms. These were included in Phase I which was expected to have taken six months.

The School Committee will further study conflicting recommendations concerning openable windows in the library's main section and plans for improving the ventilation of Main Street, the main corridor in the school with the house offices.

Phase I of the plan, which is estimated to cost $112,500, does not include any money for Main Street.

Phase II, which was to be completed by September, before the decision to go ou to bid, will cost about $760,000.

Director of Support Services Ro Cornelius put no estimate on th modification he recommends for the 16 unit ventilators that supply HVAC t many of the classrooms. Forty-five o these units were discovered to be froze and had leaking pipes Monday, whicl caused school to be closed early. The report by the Balco engineering firm ir Newton estimated the cost of such freeze ups to be $765 per unit.

Other Phase II work not included in the Balco report are ventilation improvements for the printing and metal shops, counselors' offices, the swiming pool and locker room, and the cafeteria, nighttime heating for the greenhouse.

Other improvements will be in the air handlers reheat coils, fan coil rooms, the third floor corridor, and teachers' cubicles.

Snow budget increased by aldermen

In the wake of the biggest snowstorms in years, Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson got his accounts replenished with $413,000 voted in an emergency meeting of the Board of Aldermen last week, but will have to wait for the balance of the $745,000 he requested.

There just isn't that much "free cash" available, according to the city comptroller, and Mayor Theodore Mann slashed Larson's request.

The amount appropriated covers $225,000 for overtime wages for snow and ice control and rubbish collection. $120,000 for hired equipment for two more large and two more small storms, and $68,000 for sand and salt for the rest of the year.

At the end of the recent storm and flooding, Larson has had a $47,000 deficit in his overtime account.

The aldermanic Finance Committee, going over Larson's request, generally was satisfied with his department's performance, except for sidewalk plowing.

Of 23 sidewalk plows, Larson explained, only one was left in service last week, and they had all been ready for use in November. He said the age of the equipment was to blame, and reminded the aldermen that no new sidewalk plows had been bought since 1972 because of budget cuts by the Finance Committee.

Ald. Wendell Bauckman commented, as he has done before, "The day of reckoning is coming on equipment."

Last Thursday, the day of the special emergency meeting, 12 of 18 sanders were in operation and eight of the regular fleet of 24 rubbish packer trucks were in operation.

This week Larson asked citizens not to put recyclable material out for collection because he does not have enough trucks. The regular rubbish collection will be close to schedule by the end of the week, he said.

Two of the new Shu-Pak rubbish trucks have arrived and are being painted and prepared for service in Boston. By Feb. 1, Larson said, there should be six Shu-Paks in service.

Use of road salt causes some concern

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

The request of PW Commissioner Gene Larson for $68,000 for sand and salt caused some raised eyebrows among the more ecology-oriented members of the Board of Aldermen last week.

Larson requested the money to buy 1760 tons of sand and 4000 tons of salt for the rest of the year, on the face of it a ratio of salt to sand greater than desired by many aldermen.

Several years ago the Board by resolution established a 3:1 ratio of sand to salt for treating roads, except in certain emergencies and in location judged by the public works commissioner to need more salt

Larson admitted that he was using pure salt in some instances during the recent snowstorms, but said this week that in the overall amounts used he thinks he is probably not exceeding the 3:1 ratio.

Environmentalists began trying to limit the salt used on roads when high chloride levels were found in drinking

Memorial closing passed

Move to rescind Hamilton vote made

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

School Committee member Robert Cohen announced Monday night that he will move to rescind the vote to close Hamilton School in Newton Lower Falls which was made early last Thursday morning after Memorial School was voted to close this September.

Solomon Schechter Day School submitted a petition to purchase Memorial School Thursday morning after the 6-3 vote to close the school due to declining enrollment. Opposed were School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell, Vice Chairman Henry Delicata, and Edward Prince.

The vote to close Hamilton in 1981 when Angier School is expected to have room for Hamilton children was 4-3-2, with Paul Ash, Michael LeConti, Honora Kaplan, and Prince in favor.

Manuel Beckwith voted against the 1981 closing because there will be two School Committee elections before then, Cohen voted against it because he thinks students can be redistricted from the Williams School which is also on Grove Street within a mile of Hamilton, and Mandell voted against it becuase he is opposed to closing any neighborhood schools.

Henry Delicata abstained because other school committees will have the opportunity to close it later, and Mayor Theodore Mann also abstained on the vote that was taken at about 2:30 a.m.

Cohen's motion to rescind the Hamilton closing will be considered at the Jan. 24 meeting at Mason-Rice School.

An audience of about 250 dwindled down to two persons when the Committee adjourned from the Meadowbrook Junior High School at 2:40 a.m.

The recommendations regarding making Newton South a four-year high school and having Angier School graduates attend Warren Junior High School were deferred until the Angier community studies the plans. No vote was taken on the proposal to close Weeks Junior High.

A faculty committee recommended by the subcommittee will be appointed by

City has definite offer for Memorial School

The process of selling Memorial School in Oak Hill Park has begun.

The School Department has voted to close Memorial after the end of this school year.

The Solomon Schechter Day School, Inc., offer to buy the school and land has been put on the aldermanic docket, where it will stay until recommendations from city departments come in. The time allowed is a minimum of 60 days.

The Board of Assessors, the Public Works Department, the Recreation Department, the Library, and the Community Schools Commission all will be consulted on the sale before the Planning Department sends the offer on its way through the Board of Aldermen.

Solomon Schechter School has made no financial offer for the school.

Mayor Theodore Mann this week said if the building is sold, the sale would be made with conditions that there be space available in the building for community use and elections, that the branch library be retained, and that some of the playground will be kept by the city.

The sale of Memorial School differs from the proposed sale of the other surplus municipal buildings, Planning Director Charles Thomas said this week, in that the Oak Hill Park community has

$60,000 paid in Lower Falls settlement

By PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

Landtaking for the Lower Falls urban redevelopment project has cost the Newton Community Development Authority another $60,000 in court settlements.

Meanwhile, the latest appeal of a second former landowner, recently awarded $500,000 more, has been delayed at the request of the NCDA.

The Newton Redevelopment Authority, predecessor of NCDA, paid Abraham Ginsburg $235,000 for commercial property along Washington St. taken April 13, 1971, and $20,000 for a smaller, residential parcel on Grove St. taken the same date.

The Washington St. land contained an Amoco gas station, a Mr. Donut shop, Mary's Cafe, a corner grocery store and three nomes when the NRA took it, while a two-family house stood on the Grove St. property.

Ginsburg contested the compensation, winning an award of $300,000 from a 12 person jury in Middlesex Superior Court on Oct. 29, 1976.

Payment was approved by City Planning Director Charles Thomas, sole member of the NCDA, and approved 4-0 by the Newton Planning and Development Board at their joint meeting Jan. 13.

Voting approval were board members Harry Crosby, David Lurensky, Thomas and alternate member Otis Robinson; members Carol Robinson, Margaret Smith, Vice Chairman Cecil Cadwell and Chairman Stanley Miller were absent.

The $60,757.60 check, signed by Thomas and later by Asst. Treasurer Cadwell, was delivered to NCDA attorney Robert Muldoon last Friday for payment to Ginsburg's attorney.

The award breaks down to $45,000, plus interest of $14,967 since the 1971 taking, plus $30.60 "nominal costs", plus $10 per day interest since the court settlement date.

The $45,000 is the difference between the NRA's pro tanto payment to Ginsburg and the jury's award.

Payment was delayed for almost three months to await the end of the appeal period, according to Eleanor Bennison, administrative assistant to the NCDA.

Neither party appealed.

In a second case, a jury trial for land damages on the former Martin Roach land will evidently be delayed for two months or longer because of a missing witness.

Roach won an award last fall of $477,870 from Judge Francis Lappin for land taken by the NRA in 1969, but he appealed for a jury trial in Middlesex Superior Court.

At a court session in early January, NCDA attorney Philip Cronin asked for postponement of the trial because a major witness in the case, Alexander Beal, will be on vacation until Feb 14.

Beal testified at last fall's trial before Lappin, saying that he did not allow "one penny for the reasonable probability of rezoning" when he appraised the Roach land for NRA at approximately 50 cents a square foot in 1969.

Roach contends his land was worth $4 a square foot at the time, and that a zone change was possible.

Beal subsequently served as tax consultant on real estate matters for Spaulding and Slye, which won the right to develop the commercial section of the NRA project on the former Roach land.

A letter from Beal to the Newton Board of Assessors of April 19, 1974 estimated the tax revenue to the city should Spaulding and Slye become the developers for the commercial parcel, according to testimony at last fall's trial.

Roach, who calls this a "landmark case", says that Beal really does not want the case to come to trial because he was proven wrong on the price of the land with Lappin's verdict.

Once the trial begins, probably in March or April, Roach says his attorney will bring in "everyone who worked for the NRA and elected officials who were involved" to testify.

Night parking ban might be relaxed

Relaxation of the all-night parking ban in Newton is being studied again.

Ald. Mark White recommended repeal of the ban, or at least amending it to allow overnight street parking from April to November, to the Street Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen this week.

The committee referred the matter to the Traffic Commission for further study.

"The police are amenable to lifting the ban from April to November," White said.

In many areas of the city, especially on the dense north side, houses have no driveways at all or have driveways too small to accommodate the number of cars that belong there.

White called the prohibition "discrimination."

"We're telling people they can't have cars and giving them no alternatives," he said.

At one time the police opposed all-night parking because when all cars are off the street the car of someone engaging in a crime is easier to spot.

The committee considered problems with street sweeping if cars are parked all night in the street. Ald. David Cohen suggested that a regular schedule for sweeping could be maintained by the Street Department, and no-parking signs put up the night before.

Ald. Robert Tennant opposed the lifting

Lower Falls residents don't want subsidized housing on Moulton St.

A group of Lower Falls residents wants to quash subsidized housing on Moulton Street but the city agencies involved remain unsympathetic to their cause.

Impassioned pleas last week against development of the vacant land failed to budge either the Newton Community Development Authority or the Newton Planning and Development Board from their earlier position against a buffer zone.

Six house lots lie between the Spaulding and Slye commercially-zoned land and some single-family homes.

Plans developed in 1968, revised in 1972 and soon to be activated call for the Authority to sell the land to a developer who will build six single-family, subsidized homes on the land.

The two agencies refused to discuss the matter again, because only four of the seven members of the NPDB were present.

At their Dec. 16, 1976, joint meeting the NCDA and NPDB did consider requests from the Lower Falls Project Area Committee, the official neighborhood advisory group for the urban renewal project, to change plans for the lots.

LOPAC recommendations that the land be kept as a buffer zone or offered to Spaulding and Slye with the restriction that a 50-foot buffer zone be maintained were termed financially unsound and unfair to Spaulding and Slye, developer for three office buildings.

A third proposal, to remove the subsidized housing requirement and allow privately-developed and privately-owned housing instead of government-financed construction and leasing through the Newton Housing Services Commission, was termed "workable," although it would require aldermanic approval.

Those decisions were conveyed to LOPAC in a Jan. 3 letter from the NCDA.

Hugh Colliton, representing a group of about 25 abutters to the land, said his group is concerned about "betterment of the neighborhood" and wants to retain what was "originally conceived as a buffer zone."

It was acceptable to build housing on the east side of the street to accommodate people displaced by the NRA project, Colliton said.

But because there is no need for this now, the community wants the land left as a buffer zone, he said.

That is the consensus from a Jan. 12 meeting held at Colliton's house and called to discuss the six house lot situation, Colliton told the NPDB.

Charles Thomas, who is the only member of the NCDA, refused to take any action on the matter.

Thomas told Colliton and Joel Leighton, President of LOPAC, that any discussion would only have to be repeated at a future meeting because three members of the NPDB were absent.

(By law the NPDB must ratify any decision Thomas makes as the NCDA.)

The Authority's job is to sell those lots at fair market value, Thomas told Colliton.

Furthermore, there seems to be a lot of confusion in the community as to what single-family, "subsidized" housing would be, he added.

"We don't know. We need to know that, and everyone on Moulton Street needs to know that, before we discuss it further," Thomas said.

The real question, according to Thomas, is what housing programs the Carter administration will set up.

Colliton still objected vehemently to any housing.

"Don't think houses," he told the board.

"This is a neighborhood - and the neighborhood doesn't want houses there," he said.

In another matter, rumors of pending evictions from an Authority-owned house on Grove Street are unfounded, according to Executive Director Gerald Early.

Board member Harry Crosby said he has received phone calls claiming that tenants at 659 Grove St. will be evicted.

Callers are saying the house is not "substandard" and shouldn't be torn down, Crosby said.

The people now living there are relocatees from the redevelopment area who are scheduled to move into new housing as soon as it is built, according to Early.

"They don't have to get out for at least 18 months, maybe longer," Early told Crosby.

New Falls Associates, developers for that new housing, think the stalled 60-unit project will soon get funding via the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, according to Early.

It now appears that HUD will supply funds if rents for the units are allowed to rise, he said.

Low-income tenants would still pay the same amounts, based on their incomes, with Section 8 funds making up the difference. Tenants in the market-priced units might have to pay more, however.

Details depend on the agreement worked out with the city assessors regarding the net worth of the project and the amount to be paid in lieu of taxes to the city.

Boston Edison Company was granted an easement for its underground wiring at the Thurston Road project in Upper Falls by a 4-0 vote of the NPDB.

The easement allows Boston Edison to enter the property, do construction work and maintenance on the wires.

Revisions in the Authority's employment practices, delayed for five months because the city personnel director has not delivered them to the NCDA, were postponed until the February meeting.

The Authority's practices need to be brought into conformance with those of the city, and the personnel director is charged with drawing up the new rules.

The board voted to send a note to John Ritchie urging action on the revisions.

In other business, the two agencies held an "annual meeting" lasting about three minutes and unanimously reelected Charles Thomas as chairman, Stanley Miller as treasurer, and Cecil Cadwell as assistant treasurer of the NCDA.

HUD proposes new income limits for public housing

By PRISCILLA LEITH
Graphic Correspondent

The federal Dept. of Housing and Urban Development has proposed new income limits for public housing that will hurt the needy and help the average citizen, according to local housing experts.

Newton's Housing Services Commission, viewing the HUD limits as a lame duck communication, postponed action on the proposals last week and will negotiate 1977 leases based on old limits instead.

Commissioner James Miller, a past chairman of the Newton Housing Authority, termed the HUD proposals "a last gasp of the current administration" in Washington, at the HSC's Jan. 12 meeting.

HUD provides three options for revising eligibility figures, then requires that income limits for continued occupancy be dropped.

Present policy in Newton sets $5,600 as the maximum net income for one person applying for any of the four housing projects or the Section 23 program.

Using the first of HUD's options, 80 percent of the federal Section 8 limits, the new ceiling for one person would be an income of $7,650 per year.

A second option, 90 percent of the Section 8 limits, would make the new limit $8,650.

A third possible figure, computed using documented evidence of local income and housing market conditions, brings the HUD guideline for one person up to $9,600 in Newton.

Figures for a family of four persons, now set at $7,300 net income to qualify for Newton low-income housing, would go up to $10,950, $12,350 or $13,700, respectively, with the new HUD guidelines.

Frank Quinn, executive director of the HSC, does not look favorably on the proposed increases.

"Although you open up your occupancy to a wider range of people, you are really hurting low-income people," Quinn said.

The current three year waiting period for Newton projects would stretch to five years if the new limits were adopted, Quinn believes.

Continued occupancy limits, which now determine whether tenants may renew their leases, would have to be abolished under the new HUD proposals.

HSC Chairman Stephen Buchbinder and Quinn both favor keeping the income limits for continued occupancy.

"If HUD is giving us the option of doing this now or later, (let's) do it later," said Miller.

No action was taken to change the existing HSC limits last week.

Leases will be renewed on a case by case basis for tenants negotiating March 1 renewals, pending review of all income limits at a later meeting.

In other business, the commission discussed but took no action on arrangements for Hamlet Street housing now under construction by the Newton Community Development Foundation.

Twenty of the 50 units there will be low-income and will be managed and rented by the Housing Services Commission.

Monthly rental prices for the market value units will run $465 for the seven 2-bedroom apartments, $515 for the seven 3-bedrooms, and $565 for the six 4-bedrooms.

Quinn has been unable to talk to the Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency, which handles subsidized housing programs for the state, to see what the specific responsibilities of the HSC would be at Hamlet Street.

"We really want things in black and white," Quinn told the Commission.

"We don't want to do things on a tangent," he said.

Action on housing for the retarded was also postponed until all members of the HSC have been able to read a booklet just received from the state on this subject.

Following the regular meeting a closed (executive) session was held to discuss the financial reputation of a tenant.

Community Schools budget shows $12,000 increase

The Community Schools Commission came under the scrutiny of the Recreation Commission, School Committee, and Aldermanic Education Committeee this week as discussion began of its requested increase of 20 percent in next year's budget.

Discussion of the Community Schools Commisssion (CSC) being adminstered by the Recreation Commission came up during the School Committee meeting Monday and the joint meeting of the Recreation Commission and Education Committee last Wednesday.

Paul Shiman, CSC chairman, told the various boards that the requested increase of $12,000 over the current fiscal year's budget of $48,000 is mostly due to the inability of finding a CETA person qualified to perform the duties of principal clerk-secretary.

A person with the qualifications for the job, Shiman said, would not need the assistance of CETA' a federally supported job placement plan, to find a job.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said the the clerk-secretary request of $8000, which includes a $500 raise, is enough to find someone who is also qualified to do the bookkeeping, for which another $1000 is budgeted.

Mandell said he was "not impressed" by the 11 mistakes in the memo to Superintendent Aaron Fink typed by the clerk-secretary.

The CSC budget is funded half from the School Department budget and half from the city budget, according to the 1973 city ordinance establishing the commission.

The School Committee and aldermen this week were reviewing the preliminary budget the CSC must submit to both groups before the CSC budget is finally considered and passed by either body.

Shiman defended the necessity of the clerk-secretary position and said her raise as well as the $2000 raise requested for the executive director were recommended by the city Personnel Department.

Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran told the Aldermanic Education Committee that his department has been concentrating more on nonathletic recreation. With the overlapping of course subjects offered by his department, the CSC could come under its jurisdiciton, it was suggested. newton'

School Committee member Michael LeConti suggested that the CSC might be administered by the Adult Education program run by the School Department.

Several School Committee members and the superintendent had difficulty understanding the prepared sheets on the CSC budget.

Neither the Education Committee nor the School Committee voted on the preliminary budget, but School Committee members suggested changes in the for the next presentation.

School Committee members Henry Delicata and Robert Cohen expressed no opinion on the budget, others asked for more information, and others wanted to know how the CSC would present a budget with no increase over last year.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER
VOLUNTEERS INVITED FOR STUDIES OF ANXIETY AND DEPRESSION

Researchers in the Division of Psychiatry of the Boston University Medical Center are seeking to understand the every day symptoms and distress of anxiety OR depression. This research on two of the most common human problems of our time is similar to programs at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Miami Medical Schools.

Libel suit dismissed

A libel suit, brought against the Newton Graphic by a Newton police captain early last year, was dismissed in November, 1976, by Middlesex Superior Court Judge Vincent Brogna.

Capt. William C. Olds of the Newton Police Department claimed he was libeled by a photograph that appeared in the Newton Graphic on Oct. 9, 1975, in which he was mistakenly identified as being in the picture when he was not.

According to the complaint filed by his attorney in Middlesex Superior Court, Olds sought $200,000 in damages for the alleged libel and asked for a jury trial.

The attorney for the Newton Graphic filed the motion to dismiss "because neither the publication of the photograph, nor the mistaken identity of the Plaintiff constituted or can be construed to constitute any demfamation of the Plaintiff," according to the Graphic's brief on the motion.

Judge Brogna granted the motion to dismiss Nov. 18,1976. He further ordered that the defendant recover court costs.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING
CITY OF NEWTON
PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

On January 26, 1977 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mason-Rice Elementary School auditorium, basement, 149 Pleasant Street, Newton Centre, the Planning and Development Board will conduct the second City-wide public meeting, open to all Newton residents, relative to the City's Comprehensive Planning Process. This meeting is being conducted to enable all Newton residents to participate in the formulation of the Comprehensive Plan and will be devoted primarily to the discussion of housing - population, and land use goals.

Background data and information are available at the Department of Planning and Development upon request.

Tonight

Murley developers ask to withdraw plan

A plan to develop the Murley land at Dedham and Parker Streets, Ward 8, will be withdrawn tonight (Thursday) by the developers, if the Land Use Committee gives its permission.

The developers will resubmit the proposal under the new planned-development ordinance now being considered by the Land Use Committee.

Alan Barkin, who along with architect Thomas Larsen and developer Stephen Hopkins wants to build condominiums on the Murley property, said this week that the plan has been revised to 120 units from its last total of 154 units.

The new plan, Barkin said, is altered enough to require a new petition to the Board of Aldermen. Barkin is a former alderman and was chairman of the Land Use Committee for a number of years.

The developers will wait a reasonable period of time for completion of the planned-development ordinance, Barkin said. "I think our plan complies with the dimensional requirements of planned development," Barkin said, referring to square footage per housing unit and the like.

Scale models of the two types of buildings proposed for the site have been prepared and will be brought to the meeting tonight, Barkin said.

The developers will prepare a full-scale model of the whole site for their next submission, in accordance with wishes of the neighbors.

The original proposal, 196 units, was reduced almost immediately after neighbors expressed their opposition. The new figure, 154 units, incurred almost the same opposition.

Residents of the area say they want the land developed with one-family detached houses. Up to 44 single houses could be built on the entire parcel of land.

The Barkin-Larsen-Hopkins proposal would build the condominiums on the center 13 acres, leaving 6.5-acre parcels at the front and rear of the site in their natural state, with deed restrictions on the land to prevent building on the reserved land.

The other topic at tonight's Land Use Committee meeting is Trimount Foundation's request for permissive use to house young Catholic women at 80 Claremont St., Newton.

The proposal to turn the turn-of-the-century 25-room mansion into a residence for students received mixed reaction from the neighborhood.

Some residents are opposed to the change of use; others feel the use would not be detrimental to the neighborhood and would be the only means possible or preserving the huge house, called the "gem of the neighborhood" by one person at the public hearing some weeks ago.

A neighborhood group of residents near the house drew up a list of 12 conditions on which they would like agreement by Trimount. Trimount representatives at the hearing agreed to many of the conditions on the spot and are expected to give their responses to the others tonight.

No big money for assessing reorganization now, Mann says

Advertisements for two new assessors are being prepared at present salaries of $21,000, Mayor Theodore Mann said this week.

The resignation of Philip Waterman last week, following closely the resignation of Assessor Joseph Cosgrove, leaves Leonard Aronson as the one remaining assessor in what is by law a three-man board.

Aronson, who assumed the chairmanship of the board before Waterman resigned, has presented a plan for reorganizing the Assessing Departmentretains which the three-man board but makes the chairman a department head with final say over the operation of the department.

In Aronson's plan, the three assessors each would still have a vote on matters of valuation and assessment.

If salaries were set at Aronson's recommendation of $28,000 for the chairman-department head and $23,000 each for the other two assessors, the increase in the departmental budget would come to more than $30,000.

The mayor, however, does not want to start new assessors at a higher rate. If he cannot hire new assessors at less than $23,000 he said, "We'll have to ask the Board for more money."

The rest of Aronson's reorganization, at least the part that will cost more money, will have to wait, the mayor said.

On the question of whether the chairman of the assessors should be elected by the other two assessors or be appointed by the mayor, Mann said, it made no difference to him.

There are less than 18 months before revaluation is due to be put into effect, and the Board of Assessors has done little toward rectifying inequities in the revaluation program.

Cosgrove's resignation is effective Jan. 31, Waterman's Feb. 11.

Waterman, an assessor with 18 years' experience, worked for the city of Newton for three and one-half years. He blamed his resignation on the "present political climate" in Newton . He is going to work for the town of Milton.

The Board of Aldermen, and the Finance Committee in particular, has become deeply involved in a scrutiny of assessing practices since FinCom Chairman Sidney Small determined that the Marriott Hotel was undervalued.

The Marriott has since been reassessesd on the basis of new figures it provided, has been presented with and paid a higher tax bill, and has applied for an abatement again.

A subcommittee of the aldermanic Finance Committee has been meeting on the assessing department. Its next meeting will be Thursday, Jan. 27, at 7:45 p.m.

Budget will raise taxes

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

The fiscal 1978 municipal budget will make no one's heart leap with oy.

Mayor Theodore Mann this week said that if the budget goes up 5 percent, there will be an $8 increase in the tax rate.

An increase of 5 percent is not inconceivable. Wage increases resulting from collective bargaining in the police and fire departments will probably be at least that much, and as the mayor pointed out, "Services do not diminish."

Other unavoidable expenses to be included in the new budget, which is expected to reach the Board of Aldermen some time in early March, are an $800,000 increase in health insurance for city employees and a potential state-mandated increase in pension benefits.

However, if the mayor runs for his third term as mayor, as many think he will, he would make every effort not to have such a large increase hanging over the polling places next November.

In the past' Mayor Mann's estimates of tax increases have started high early in a year and have decreased as the year goes on.

It was reported in the Jan. 13 Graphic that Jack Backman addressed a seminar sponsored by the First National Bank on Monday, Jan. 10.

Backman delivered his remarks to the paper prior to speaking, but the meeting itself was not held Jan. 10 because of inclement weather.

Pumper ordinance not binding on mayor

Ten fire pumpers and three ladder trucks now constitute the official complement of fire apparatus until April 30, according to an ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen Monday night.

But Mayor Theodore Mann Monday said he would not sign such an ordinance if passed, and City Solicitor Howard Levine three times advised the Board that setting the number of pieces is not within the province of the Board.

If the mayor's vetoes the ordinance, the Board can override it by a two- thirds vote.

His latest opinion said such an ordinance would be only directory and advisory, not binding on the mayor.

The passage of the ordinance was in response to fears of residents of Nonantum, who want the mayor to restore the cut of Engine 8 from the Crafts Street fire station.

The mayor cut the pumper from service last spring to save $183,000, then restored it until Dec. 6, when a fire-rating service preliminary statement indicated that fewer than 10 pumpers are needed.

The full report is due in March.

Ald. Robert Stiller, opposed to passing the ordinance, called it a "political football," and said to have 10 engines where fewer are needed is a luxury we cannot afford.

Stiller said, "$183,000 here, $183,000 saved by closing a school — all of a sudden these figure begin to take on meaning." The total of the two figures would amount to $1 on the tax rate.

Ald. Joan Saklad said the entire matter had been "botched" by the mayor's office and by the Board, but was opposed on the grounds that the Board was "overstepping its bounds."

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle defended the Board's action by saying it has a responsibility to take the initiative on putting the pumper back in service. "I haven't seen enough justification for removing it yet," he said.

The vote was 16 in favor of the ordinance, 5 opposed, 3 absent.

Opposed were Ald. Wendell Bauckman, Eliot Cohen, Saklad, Susan Schur, and Stiller. Ald. Sidney Small, John Stewart and Mark White were absent.

School closings

The handwriting has been on the wall for Memorial School for at least two years now.

In June, 1975, a previous School Committee voted to close Memorial School in September, 1976. Early in 1976, the current School Committee, shortly after taking office, voted to keep Memorial School open. Monday night, the same group of people voted to close Memorial School this September.

We supported the decision to close Memorial in 1976, and we support it in 1977.

The Subcommittee on Declining Enrollment, chaired by Paul Ash, did a responsible job of studying the declining enrollment problems of Newton. Its presentation, when made public, was cogent, logical and appeared to be the product of serious thought.

The closing of Memorial School came, not as a shot in the dark, but, rather, as the first step in an overall plan to deal with the very real issues of declining school population.

The year's grace period, too, seems to have given the Memorial School families a chance to adjust to the inevitable closing and deal with it realistically.

Others, such as Hamilton School families, may have much the same situation facing them if the closing of Hamilton takes place in 1981.

Above all, we must all keep in mind that this is a changing world requiring constant readjustment to reality.

That is why we were particularly impressed by the fact the subcommittee tied to school closings concepts of grade reorganization and a four-year high school.

These considerations should give the people of Newton the general sense that the School Committee and administration are trying to establish the best use of all school buildings.

The final ingredient in a successful readjustment in Newton to school enrollment realities is a statesman-like attitude on the part of the School Committee members.

We would hope that the difficult questions of school closings be addressed with the welfare of Newton in mind. In an election year, that may be too much to ask. We'll see.

Amnesty . . . for all?

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Transcript staff writer

The thorny issue of amnesty will confront President-elect Carter when he assumes office as a nation waits to see what he will do. A random survey of people who live and work in Dedham. Needham, Westwood and Norwood indicates those who favor blanket amnesty have a slight edge over those who would like to see a case by case review and "earned" acceptance.

In Carter's initial campaign proposal, he said deserters would be treated in a case by case review while draft evaders would be accorded a "pardon." Recently Carter said he would go further and extend that pardon to other "violators."

Many of those interviewed drew a distinction between draft evaders and deserters while many expressed deep reservations when asked about amnesty for deserters. Others felt as Florian Weissenborn of Dedham, that amnesty was the "best way to wipe the slate clean."

"Those who evaded the draft and those who deserted have in a sense been punished," said Weissenborn, adding these men conducted their anti-war resistence in an unsympathetic climate with no initial support from the public or the press. "It took real courage in the beginning."

Some felt as Mrs. Stuart Plumer of Norwood that "if the reasons for desertion were valid, I would have no problem with it (amnesty)." Don Gilbert wanted to see a case by case review while Mrs. James Lowell of Westwood felt she would like to see amnesty for draft evaders with a review for deserters.

Henry LaJoie said he could not "condone" desertion and amnesty would be agreeable to him "depending on the conditions and the circumstances."

A case by case review is also supported by Congressman John J. Moakley.

Deserters presented a "problem" for Fred Kresse of Needham since he felt they 'were making things more difficult for those who were there." However, he felt there should be some way these men could "earn" their way back.

While Felix Pereira of Dedham also expressed reservations about deserters, he observed "they are a tiny proportion of the total." A report issued by President Ford's clemency board said that only 0.01 percent of those who deserted did so under fire.

While most favored amnesty, some had reservations about deserters and others felt that those who protested should have borne the consequences . . . another questioned what to tell men who had served jail sentences for their "civil disobedience."

Deserters also received "sympathy" from an honorably discharged Vietnam veteran who served in the Fourth Infantry. Declining to be quoted by name, he said "deserters deserve it (amnesty) more...many put in a long time under harrowing conditions and I could understand why they would go over the hill." He pointed out there was a difference between those who "finessed" their way out of service, and men who deserted after "seeing people getting killed and blown away" ultimately realizing the war was for "no purpose." Another veteran, a "four year Navy man," Frank Massey also firmly supports blanket amnesty.

Those who spoke against amnesty included Mario Scherma who said "if they felt strongly, they should have stayed here and gone to jail...with decision comes the consequences." Jack O'Donnell, administrative assistant at Needham High School, agreed with this position saying that the government under Ford's clemency program went as "far as I would want them to go." O'Donnell said he spoke personally in terms of "someone who had friends killed there and relatives who served there."

He quoted Thoreau saying that if you "break the law, in order to fully carry out your civil disobediance, you must pay the penalty." O'Donnell also cited the case of David Harris who did not accept the draft, protested and was found guilty subsequently serving an 18 month jail sentence. "What do you say to him now?" asked O'Donnell.

Like Harris, there were many men who, between 1961 and 1975, informed the authorities they did not want to serve. About 95,000 of those men were convicted of draft violations.

No one interviewed felt there was merit to the argument that granting a blanket amnesty might create a dangerous precedent in the event of another war if troops had to be mobilized. "We cannot respond to the next war or battle without knowing what kind of a war it would be," said William Cullinane, who teaches physical education in the Needham school system.

"I never worry about precedent," responded Pereira.

Kresse added "I hope that in future situations parents will not be willing to let boys go and be killed . . . we have a tendency to accept the wars we get into, marching off and there are some woh would rather have a picture of a dead son on the mantel to boast about, than the sons themselves." Weissenborn speculated it would be "harder for any future governments to muster people into a military adventure that goes against the grain of the people." He also felt if there were a "war that endangered America, or a real ally attacked them, the authority of conscription would be respected."

Pat Simon, who founded Gold Star Parents after her only son was killed in Vietnam said "we want to make it much more difficult for those in power to plan a war and use other people's children to fight it." She, and other parents like her, felt strongly that their children's deaths should not be used to prejudice the public against amnesty.

In addition to what happens to draft violators and deserters, many like Pat Simon are seriously concerned about the roughly 750,000 men who received "less than honorable discharges" which were issued administratively without "due process."

These discharges, said Ms. Simon were issued by commanding officers and now these men "are having a tough time in the employment market and being discriminated against...a great many do not receive veteran's benefits although they are ill and wounded as a direct result of the war."

Some have argued that the war in Vietnam was legal by definition; however, many felt as Joe Berlandi of Westwood when he said there was a "cloud" over that war. Like

Many admitted that their feelings about the war changed over the years . . . one man said he went along with the establishment at first only to find "we were never told the facts . . . we would still be there if it weren't for the peace movement.

Berlandi, there were many who admitted their feelings on amnesty had changed over the years. Berlandi said "there has been an evolution of public consciousness as to whether Vietnam was a war we should have been involved in."

Charlie Vuytowecz said at first he "went along" with the establishment and later changed his opinion feeling "we had no right to be in there...we were never told the true facts and we would still be there if it wasn't for a peace movement." Weissenborn said "while the war was legal, the arguments advanced to enlist support were deceiving and misleading."

Parents like Mrs. Eileen Driscoll of Dedham said that their children led the way and now Mrs. Driscoll supports amnesty believing "we should err on the side of mercy."

"So much of my thinking has come from hindsight," said another woman. Cyrus Vance, recently testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his nomination as Carter's Secretary of State also acknowledged "it was a mistake to intervene in Vietnam... based on misjudgements and mistakes." Vance was a high official in the Defense Department when American involvement in Vietnam was expanded.

Now the act of amnesty is seen by some as an opportunity to "heal the wounds and start over again." Berlandi felt the men had paid the penalties in "indirect suffering and I am more concerned about unity...we must repair the damage..." Pereira said the important thing is to have "a unified nation which has the strength of its own beliefs."

These men felt amnesty would be the final chapter in the tumultous, embarassing chapter of American history during which citizens were forced to stand back and take a long, hard, critical look at themselves.

A stranglehold on New England

Commentary by J.J. Smith, state columnist

New England's energy needs and the region's hard-hit construction industry both are striking examples of the impact stemming from the past successes of environmentalists who have parlayed hastily passed state and Federal laws into a stranglehold on progress that directly effect every man, woman and child in the six-state area.

Latest manifestation of this was the stunning roadblock set up by anti-nuke forces which effectively throttled the ongoing $2-billion nuclear powered electrical facility at Seabrook, N.H.

Lameduck Federal officials — appointees of the Republican Nixon and Ford administrations — reversed an earlier okay and said it wouldn't allow the generating plant to go into operation as scheduled in the early 1980's unless major changes are made in the project plans.

This decision was made by John A. S. McLennon, regional administrator for the Environmental Protection Agency, and was supported by his boss, national EPA Administrator Russell Train — and this reversal now threatens the owners of the property, a New Hampshire utility, with possible bankruptcy.

Not only that but construction companies and "hard hat" in both New Hampshire and Massachusetts were also sandbagged by the reversal move, an action that put the kibosh on the hoped-for revival of construction work.

Even the normally staid Wall Street Journal was so shocked by the move that it editorially rebutted McLennon's explanation of his change of heart with the observation: "It should be preserved in the Smithsonian as an example of bureaucratic mindlessness."

Indeed, this was understatement, if anything, because McLennon's switch from his go-ahead of a year earlier also initiated other changes that will further curtail "hard hat" jobs as well as delay solutions to the evergrowing energy problems of New England.

In the wake of the EPA decision, New England Power Co. disclosed it is holding off a $300-million expansion of its investment in the Seabrook plant while simultaneously revealing it has decided for now against further investments in a nuclear plant being built on the Connecticut coast. The company previously had invested some $200-million in the Seabrook facility.

The Seabrook turnaround demonstrates anew, as if we need the reminder, the tail-wags-the-dog environmental impact in Massachusettsand elsewhere, as well as the ripple effect stemming from its decision. political leaders growingly struck by some of the absurdities inherent in much of our environmental protection laws. Too many jobs have been lost, too much progress halted on this basis. Judging from recent statements, the governor, lieutenant governor, Senate president and House speaker all are concerned with a proper balance between environment and economy and will refuse to be further buffaloed in the holy name of environment.

A solid indication of this came from the Dukakis Administration recently when state Environmental Affairs Secretary Evelyn Murphy approved the Pilgrim II atomic power plant at Plymouth. This was a gutsy, needed go-ahead and reflects a fresh awareness that other proper balances must be struck other than a topheavy concern merely for the refinements of environmental protection.

To postal patrons

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to the postal patron who doesn't care.

You all know who this person is; the first one to complain about poor service and the last one to clear the sidewalk in front of his property and his stairs of snow and ice.

The driveway is shoveled bare and sanded, but where people must walk resembles the North Pole.

If your service has been less than perfect, look out your window. Do people have to walk out in the road when passing your house because you are too lazy to shovel or sand? Don't you care if children, elderly people, mailmen, etc. have to dodge traffic to pass your property?

Maybe you are just insensitive to the needs of others.

My creed is: "Mail carriers are not required to risk personal injury from hazardous conditions within the control of the postal patron."

Blocked driveways

To the Editor:

I must admit that in Newton the streets are as adequately cleared of snow as is humanly possible.

However, a big headache is left for the homeowners when the snow plow, while clearing the streets, creates an insurmountable wall of snow or ice, thickly packed in front of driveways.

Is this a violation of private rights?

There are many old people, as well as not so young people, who can hardly manage to clear their driveways proper, or who may not be able to afford to pay a third party to give them access to the street. But the situation becomes desperate after the passage of the snow plow.

On one hand, the citizens are helped by a service; and on the other hand, this same service imprisons them in their own dwellings behind an impenetrable snow or ice wall; a production made, not by nature, but by mankind. Surely it is not the intention of the authorities to create misery for its citizens.

One way to alleviate this intolerable situation would be to keep the blade of the snow plow at right-angles to the street while going by a driveway and then swivel the blade immediately after passing and have the snow pushed aside towards the sidewalks, as is normally done.

Show of concern

To the Editor:

I have read many letters of appreciation to the Newton Fire or Police departments in the local papers. I would like to express my appreciation to the Newton Street Department.

On Friday, Jan. 14, the sidewalks along my section of Walnut Street were finally plowed by the overworked crew. Another storm was due that night.

Unfortunately, two huge chunks of ice about 4 feet in diameter broke off from the banks next to the street, blocking my driveway. I couldn't budge them or chip them away.

I phoned the Street Department and was given the proper number to call. Both calls were handled with courtesy, and within half an hour, a Street Department representative rang my bell to inquire about my complaint.

Shortly thereafter, a "scoop" arrived and cleared out the mouth of my driveway so I could get my car in.

Knowing how overworked all of these men have been in the recent snow emergencies, I was surprised and gratified with their concern for the problems of just one citizen.

Commuter rail service

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton) sent the following letter to Richard Hasselman, vice president for operations, CONRAIL, and David Gunn, director of operations, MBTA, urging a swift settlement of the negotiations on commuter rail service subsidies.

Dear Mr. Hasselman:

I am writing to express, in the strongest possible terms, the importance of maintaining and upgrading the commuter rail service which connects the City of Boston and Framingham, serving Newton, Wellesley and Natick.

During the past two years, the Congress has made an unprecedented investment of more than $1.5 billion in the future of rail transportation in the Northeast. A full year was spent by officials at all levels of government, as well as local businessmen, fighting to save rail rights-of-way for commuter and freight service.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has approved a bond issue of $20 million to augment the federal investment and save as much of the Northeast rail system as possible.

The nearly 80 communities which fall within the MBTA region invested $170 million last year alone to subsidize the operations of the MBTA.

In response to this growing deficit, the Congress approved an operating subsidy program in 1974 which has alrady grown from $5 million to almost $20 million annually for the MBTA.

These investments of time, energy and dollars at every level of government indicate a tremendous resolve to save and strengthen the Northeast rail system, not only as a freight service for Massachusetts industry, but as a commuter rail service.

I cannot believe that the two agencies created to carry out this mandate cannot agree on a subsidy for five commuter lines.

I urge you to use every available means to bring negotiations between CONRAIL and the MBTA to a successful conclusion well before March 13, 1977.

I look forward to hearing from you on this most urgent matter.

Robert F. Drinan,
Member of Congress

Best friends

To the Editor:

Most people take our police and firefighters for granted until a crisis occurs.

Last week, our dog, Cookie, ran away. It was about 5 degrees outside. We searched Oak Hill Park for over two hours. The cruising officer in the Park helped us.

Cookie ran away at 11:30 p.m. and the officer found her at 1:30 a.m.

Without his help, Cookie wouldn't be here in the warmth of her home right now. There aren't enough words to thank him.

After this experience, I came to realize that our civil servants are really our best friends.

Thank you.

Village preservation

(Editor's note: Following is an open letter to Mayor Theodore D. Mann)

Dear Mr. Mayor:

We are concerned that two of the autonomous decision-making bodies in the city, the School Committee and the Library, have the authority to make decisions which may conflict with neighborhood goals.

In the recent response to the issue of elementary school closings, there was much public discussion about neighborhoods and their value to the community.

Newton's 14 distinct villages are an asset unusual in a suburban city. Other cities are trying to develop or recapture their neighborhood centers.

Our village centers are still thriving parts of the community.

These villages and the public institutions within them play an important role in Newton's civic life.

The Subcommittee on Declining Enrollment has recommended the closing of Memorial School in Oak Hill Park and Hamilton School in Newton Lower Falls. The Library intends to close its branches in Oak Hill Park and in Newton Upper Falls. In one week, the provision of services is threatened in three Newton villages.

Although we realize that the elimination of these services is the result of complex budget problems, we feel there should be a city goal to preserve the vitality of Newton's 14 villages.

We would like to see these decision-making bodies work together toward this goal.

Slow death

To the Editor:

The "decision" by four members of the School Committee to put Hamilton School to a slow death was an unnecessary and unwise act.

People in Newton will undoubtedly continue to brag about the high value this city places on neighborhood life, on educational excellence, on rational democratic political processes and on public conecern for all those things that make for good societies in the 1970's, but, quite honestly, my faith will be severely shaken if this "decision" is not quickly reversed.

I don't think I am being overly parochial in lamenting this potential harm to my village of Lower Falls.

And I do not feel I would be overly-emotional in paraphrasing John Donne by saying that the loss of even a tiny bit of Lower Falls diminishes every resident of Newton, because we are all, in fact, involved in this great city.

Pines seeks rededication to energy conservation

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D Newton) has called upon the Commonwealth's citizens to commit themselves to a program of energy conservation.

"The severity of this winter and the trend away from the conservation-consciousness that resulted from the 1973-74 OPEC oil embargo makes this critical," said Pines. "Americans have become complacent about the energy situation. Despite the steady rise in prices, consumption continues to increase. Congress and the last two presidents have not been able to effectively reverse either of these trends. We as individuals, however, can."

The need for energy conservation is critical, according to statistics supplied by the Federal Energy Administration. With only 6 percent of the world's population, the United States consumes more than one-third of all the energy used each year. In addition, while the United States in general imports approximately 33 percent of its oil supply annually, here in New England the figure is well over one half of our supply, Pines said. "Our industries rely almost entirely upon oil, placing the region's economic viability, to a very large extent, on the whim of Arab oil producers," she explained.

"A reordering of our priorities is essential," Pines said, "but can be accomplished with little disruption of our lives. The state of Massachusetts has moved assertively to assist in this effort. The Energy Policy Office, located in the McCormack State Office Building' was created expressly to disseminate information on all aspects of energy, especially conservation.

"There are dozens of painless ways outlined in the Energy Office's publications for the public to achieve significant energy and monetary savings," said the Newton legislator. The following is a sample of these conservation tips:

The coffee-growing nations have explained the huge price increases they have assessed processors by claiming that a major frost wiped out much of the last two crops. According to state and federal consumer protection officials, that excuse is insufficient to justify the sudden and drastic increases. At the heart of the price increases, they claim, is the arbitrary increase in export taxes imposed by Brazil, Columbia and other nations.

These taxes represent a windfall and the passing on of these costs have allowed huge increases in the profits of growers who further pass these costs on to processors, and then to wholesalers and retailers. The end result is that the consumer is paying the price.

Pines called for an earnest boycott of coffee in order to force a reduction in these taxes. She cited the initial results of a boycott in England, where there has been some drop in prices, due to consumer pressure.

Proper insulation and the use of storm doors and windows (including simple plastic sheeting) could save the equivalent of 600,000 barrels of oil each day during the winter, enough to heat nearly 6 million additional homes. Lowered thermostats (at least to 68), wearing slightly more clothing indoors, using flourescent or lower wattage incandescent light bulbs and closing fireplace dampers are minor efforts which return large savings.

Using appliances during off-peak hours (mornings or late at night) whenever possible reduces the nees for inefficient and costly back-up generating equipment. During the summer, air conditioners set at 78, which has been judged a reasonably comfortable temperature and extremely energy efficient, used only when really necessary and containing clean filters can result in up to a 47 percent energy saving.

The American love affair with the automobile comes with a cost of 70 trillion gallons of gasoline annually or 14 percent of all the energy used in the United States. Increasing the average miles per gallon (13.7) of our cars by just 15 percent will save nearly 29 million gallons each day. This can be accomplished by a reduction in the amount of driving we do. Eliminating unnecessary driving by grouping errands together and car pooling are two ways to do this. While driving, a steady, moderate rate of travel with minimal braking and slow acceleration does the trick.

"The number of conservation tips available to the public is enormous and all are extremely effective. They require little effort to implement. They do require a commitment on the part of each of us, however. I urge every family to contact the Energy Office at 727-4732. Also, 'Project Conserve,' another state program has a hot line for answers to questions about home conservation. The toll-free telephone number is 1-800-952-7424," Pines said.

In commenting on the manipulation of the American consumer by the OPEC nations, Pines stated that, "Apparently following the lead of OPEC, the countries producing coffee have also embarked upon a course of monopolistic price-gouging."

"The individual can have an effect on a world-wide industry, but only if he commits himself. We must use every means available to assert our rights. We cannot wait for the 'other guy' to do it, we must all pull together," she concluded.

Mofenson wants U.S. Senate to keep Committee on Aging

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, has expressed "deep concern" over reports that the United States Senate plans to abolish its Special Committee on Aging.

"For 15 years the Aging Committee has not only been a valuable source of research on elderly issues, but it has given older Americans an important forum in which to articulate their problems, needs, and goals," Mofenson said. "It has given many the feeling that somebody cared. To destroy the committee in the name of reform would be both short-sighted and tragic."

The liquidation of the Aging Committee is one of the recommendations of Sen. Adlai Stevenson's Temporary Select Committee to Study the Senate Committee System.

The Stevenson panel wants to reduce the number of Senate committees from 31 to 15. Its goals are better coordination of legislation on energy, environment, transportation and social problems.

"While I have long been an advocate of streamlining Governmental functions," Mofenson said, "I strongly agree with Aging Committee Chairman Sen. Frank Church that any plan for senate reorganization which dissolves the special committee and disperses its activities would be a great disservice to older Americans and a lamentable reversion to the very set of circumstances which led to the establishment of the committee in the first place."

Mofenson noted that on some major issues, such as energy, 15 standing committees and 33 subcommittees share jurisdiction and this fragmentation can impede effective action. But to the Committee on Aging, Mofenson said, reorganization could have the opposite effect.

"I fear that fragmenting and dispersing elderly issues into dozens of larger issue areas and programs will dilute the political strength of the elderly, and that many vital concerns will fall between the cracks separating the reorganized programs," he explained.

Noting that both Massachusetts senators are members of the Aging Committee, as well as three other New England senators, Mofenson said he hoped that the committee might be kept alive to play an important role in the economic redevelopment of the region.

Housing rehab application period extended to Jan. 31

The Newton Housing Rehabilitation Program's second application period has been extended to Jan. 31.

Work on applications taken during the first application period is under way. Ten homes are being rehabilitated through work totaling approximately $40,000, and are at various stages of completion. In addition, approximately $38,000 of applicant assistance is out to bid or in finance.

Over $100,000 will go to Newton homeowners to rehabilitate their homes from first-round applications; is expected that as a result of the second-round application period this amount of assistance will be equaled or surpassed.

Money is available to homeowners in the three "target areas" (Newton Corner, Nonantum, and West Newton) to make necessary repairs to upgrade their home.

These target areas may be expanded during a third application period to make owners in other areas of the city eligible for similar assistance. The third application period will be announced in the spring of 1977.

Assistance is available in three forms: a direct grant of up to $5000 to correct conditions dangerous to health and safety, available only to very low-income homeowners; a loan from your local bank with the Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund (NHRF), reducing the interest rate to 3 percent; direct loans from the NHRF at 3 percent to those who are unable to qualify for a bank loan.

Assistance is based on the homeowner's income. For example a family of four with a gross income of $16,000 would probably qualify for loan assistance at 3 percent.

The Newton Housing Rehabilitation Program Fund office, at 48 Silver Lake Ave., Nonantum, is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. to take applications and to answer questions about the program. The telephone number is 965-1310.

DeNucci opposed to DES office location

State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci has asked Gov. Michael Dukakis to reconsider plans to move most of the Division of Employment Security's (DES) Newton operation from 264 Centre St., Newton Corner, to 215 Needham St., Newton Upper Falls.

In a letter to the governor, DeNucci wrote: "I must protest this ill-advised move. If one selected a site for a DES office on the basis of inconvenience, Needham Street would win a prize. I ask you to review the entire reasoning behind this move and think carefully of its effect on those in Newton who need what DES can offer."

DeNucci went on to explain that the new proposed site is located almost a mile from the nearest public transportation connection. "While it may be convenient to industry and potential jobs," he said, "it is the unemployed who will not be able to reach such an office. Newton Corner is a focal point of public transportation lines and is accessible to many citizens, especially the bulk of unemployed in Newton who are more likely to reside near the Centre Street office than they are the Needham Street office."

DeNucci acknowledged that it may be too late to stop the proposed change, but said that at least payment of checks and claims would still be provided at Newton Corner, and he said, "I am hoping we can also keep the testing, counselling and placement there, too."

Job Bank reaches out to Newton Upper Falls

The Newton Job Bank, located at 429 Cherry St., West Newton, continues to assist Newton's youths 13 - 22 in finding employment appropriate to their ages, experiences, expertise, and geographical locations.

This year, in a cooperative effort with Beginnings, a drop— in center located in Newton Corner, one of the employment counselors is doing outreach work in Newton Upper Falls in an effort to expand Job Bank services in that area. Listings of jobs are being encouraged from that section of the city in the hope of placing local adolescents in suitable positions.

In addition to serving adolescents, the program also serves the community at large (businesses and individuals) by providing a clearinghouse of available young people desirous of finding employment.

In its eighth year of operation, Job Bank has filled over 5000 jobs. Funded by the City of Newton through the Department of Human Services, the program is operated by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc.

Jobs listed have included baby-sitting, lawn work, snow shovelling, house-cleaning, painting, party help, clerical work, dishwashing, waitressing, cashiering, warehouse work, custodial work, typing, and a variety of one-time, part-time, and full-time positions.

The Job Bank has the endorsement of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce. That organization is attempting to assist in obtaining job listings for the program. To apply, 13 to 22 year olds should drop in at the Job Bank office and fill out an application. To list a job, call 969-5908. Office hours are 9:00 to 4:30 Monday through Friday.

Currently coordinated by G. Michael Gardner, the Newton Job Bank counselors include Corinne Pirson (Outreach worker), Kathy Rogers, and John Jordan.

Dogsled and amplifier gone

A dogsled and a $500 amplifier were among items stolen from cars parked in Newton this weekend, police reported.

Kenneth Tilden from Brockton was parked at Mills Falls Restaurant, 287 Eliot St., Upper Falls, from 5 to 11 p.m. Friday when someone stole an eight-foot dogsled from the roof of his car. Police said the sled was valued at $500.

David Brandeis of 51 Cotter Rd., Waban, told police that sometime between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Saturday someone stole nearly $800 of assorted goods from the trunk of his car parked in the driveway.

Missing was a $500 amplifier, a tape deck and tape recorder, a basketball, two tennis rackets, a calculator, and gloves.

Legislators work toward increased day care services

State Sen. Jack Backman and State Representatives Joseph DeNucci, Peter Harrington, David Mofenson and Lois Pines of Newton have joined the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council for Children in an effort to force the Welfare Department to fulfill its commitment for minimal day care services for Newton children.

Under a new system initiated this year, the Welfare Department now contracts directly with day care centers for a given number of openings, after areas had requested a specific number of slots to be filled.

Backman stated: "The City of Newton with a total population of over 90,000 people received a total allocation from the Department of Public Welfare of only 54 day care slots."

"As a result, at the present moment Newton has over 40 children who have been found eligible and in need of day care services, unable to receive them. At the same time Newton day care centers with empty spots, who meet all the state requirements, have not been authorized by the Department of Public Welfare to serve the waiting Newton children. Some of these Newton-sponsored day care centers also face financial difficulties because of their unexpected empty slots," Backman said.

"At the same time there are day care centers with contracts in other cities with a surplus of openings and no children to fill them.

"To date, the Department of Public Welfare has not developed the administrative capability to make the simple adjustments necessary," he said.

According to the Newton legislators, the contracts between the Welfare Department and the day care centers are flexible and re-negotiable. This would allow the department to reallocate the number of slots in centers where there is a surplus and assign those openings on a temporary or permanent basis to Newton day care centers.

In an effort to achieve this, the four lawmakers wrote to Secretary of Human Services Jerald Stevens and Welfare Commissioner Alexander Sharp on Dec. 17, 1976, urging the two administrators to alleviate the administrative shortcomings and inequities.

The department is now engaged in trying to determine the total allocation of childrens day care slots, in what cities the need was overestimated and where a need for additional slots is required, Backman indicated.

"However," said Backman, "there is still the bureaucratic foul-up with budget funds for day care available but unused. At the same time certain day care centers in cities other than Newton Have actually been paid in the past with state funds for unfilled day care slots. This situation is also in the process of being corrected by the department."

60% increase in federal funds for this district

The Fourth Congressional District has registered a 60-percent increase in all federal funds since 1971, according to figures just released by the Community Services Administration through Cong. Robert Drinan.

The five-year increase from $207 million to $327 million reflects all grants, contracts, benefits and loans for the six largest district communities, Brookline, Fitchburg, Framingham, Leominster, Newton and Waltham.

Cong. Drinan (D-Newton) released the figures for Brookline and Newton which show a $39 million increase in total federal outlays to the communities since 1971.

"These overall funding increases in Brookline and Newton," said Drinan "represent to a great extent competitive grants and contracts awarded in Brookline and Newton. The funding in particular from agencies such as Health, Education and Welfare, Housing and Urban Development, and Energy, Research and Development indicate the strengths of our local economy and the real competitive ability of local government and industry."

The 18 percent increase in funds to these Fourth Congressional District communities from fiscal year 1975 tO 1976 did substantially aid the reduction in unemployment,Drinan said. The average jobless figures for the 20 communities of our district have been cut to less than half of the mid-1975 figures. According to the Mass. Division of Employment Security, the average jobless rate in the Fourth Congressional District is now 4.9 percent, well below the national and state averages.

Drinan cited the strong technical and academic community in Brookline and Newton as a prime reason for increases in all areas of research funding locally since 1971 and for the very substantial growth in innovative housing and land use grant funds received in the past fiscal year.

"I know that the 95th Congress will seek to accelerate the creation of still more jobs. I hope that this action will bring more funds to these communities, particularly in the areas of medical and energy research where a greatly expanded effort is so urgently needed.

Clear brights and pastels the last word in resort wear

Are you taking a cruise or going to a Southern resort? Perhaps you're wondering what you should pack — well, hope we're in time with some tips from the experts:

Daytime dressing can pivot around one or two pairs of impeccable white pants worn with a number of beautiful brightly colored shirts worn open at the neck.

A blazer or a sweater in navy or red could coordinate your shirts nicely, being sure that dressing for after five functions would not call for a coverup of another color. Making one bulky item do for both daytime and evening wear means that much less to pack.

Albert Capraro views the resort look as totally feminine — the type of clothing that would inspire a woman looking at his new dresses to say, "How charming," and instantly want to own one. His dresses have a definite waistline firmly marked by a sash, a braided belt, belted or a firmly-laced tiny corselet effect.

For Capraro it's a dress season, definitely, except for little jumpsuits with Bermuda shorts which look happy and young for the sun places, particularly when worn with a vest and a shirt or a plaid madras blazer. The blazer and flyaway jacket over a full skirt are mostly shown over skirts and shirts intermingling plaids and stripes, all in vibrant colors that virtually blaze.

A new dirndl is cut on the bias; it's a look that slenderizes the figure and gives fullness down towards the hem. A particular favorite in this collection is a white handkerchief linen used romantically with tucks, pleats and bands of cotton lace. It's a romantic but very clean effect for all times of day and actually for any climate, as elegant as silk. Otherwise the southern-oriented cottons are madras, seersucker, chintz, chambray and cotton duck. You'll be seeing lots of one-piece dresses in these.

Resort evening clothes done the Capraro way are all flourish and fun. Even the classic black restaurant dress has been replaced with one in knock-out red. Because everything's changing — fuller, flounced, ruffled, feminine and very amusing, the fabrics are firmer — taffeta and cottons with provincial borders and pastoral looks. There are also seductive wrapped gowns, draping and strapless body-moulding for evening and voluminous, very fresh day and late day dresses in flowered and striped crepe de chine.

White — whitewash white, is not an easy color to wear particularly if you are pale. If you've taken last summer's white suit out of the closet and would like to wear it on vacation, soften the severity by wearing a contrasting print or color scarf near the face. A solid or print shirt, wearing the color out, will also accomplish the same thing.

International designer Hanae Mori states, "My Soft Focus Silhouette is an elusive one . . . clinging to the curve of a woman's body, most definitely flattering to the figure and sensous to the touch. It's the look you want when you're feeling rich or romantic, or both." One thing's certain, if you would like to wear her soft, romantic prints, you've got to overlook the pricetag. They're expensive.

High-intensity colors are hers alone — colors such as cherry, fuchsia, orange swirling in a misty pattern of beauty . . . they're unusual floral prints, landscapes and seascapes . . . bareness, strapless, cutouts, as only Hanae Mori can dream them up.

Difficult to resist is a pink and orange caftan of hers, fifteen yards of sheer voile in a bold floral . . . bold and yet excitingly feminine. Her caftan jumpsuit in stripes or polka dots in black on white georgette is fun to wear, and there is an entire collection of short cotton jersey dresses in colorful floral and butterfly prints.

For men, poolside on an ocean liner or at the seashore, it's time for fun and sun. These days beachwear means more than a simple pair of swim trunks. Many bathing suits come with matching or coordinated coverups, deck jackets, pool shirts. There's even the men's caftan, perfect for after swimming cover-up as well as at-home relaxing. There are some three piece outfits offering matching slacks (often called pool pants or patio pants) to put on over swim trunks.

The safari bush jacket look, a fashion highlight for many seasons and now a classic style, will be very important this spring. Seen now for resort wear it is worn belted, half-belted and with either shirred or cinched waists. On some safaris the standard four pockets are used . . . on others, two of the pockets are replaced by yokes or other tailoring details.

The new look in sport shirts indicates a move away from the formerly popular senic designs and bold floral motifs to more controlled looks. The new patterns are neater and more subdued, leaning strongly toward abstract designs, stripes and plaids.

In active sportswear, golf attire remains colorful in a wide range of pastels but maintain a clean, uncluttered look. Tennis wear too, has retained the majority of styling in white but this season offers new colors such as turquoise and brown.

Whatever you're packing for that great vacation, don't forget the sun lotion . . . and have a good time. Enjoy!

For resort wear, Albert Capraro offers Persian printed paisley polyester chiffon in shades of red, blue and yellow . . . the double tunic over pants and the long side slit tunic dress with double sleeve.

Food and Fashion

Across the kitchen counter

The man who bakes will enjoy working with the whole grain flours and herbs that go into this tantalizing three-flour herb bread.

Flash! Men have been liberated....in the kitchen! Recent surveys have shown that today, men and boys are finding the same rewards their grandmothers knew in baking an "honest loaf."

Once indoctrinated into the easy art of bread baking, men surge ahead looking for breads that have substance, texture, heft, a good smell and great flavor. We have here a Three-Flour Herb Bread which contains crushed garlic and rosemary along with plenty of chopped chives to give the dark, open-textured bread a great taste.

The method of bread and cinnamon rolls baking here calls for Rapidmix method of preparation. This means all the dry ingredients, except a portion of the flour, are combined. This includes the yeast. Then very hot tap water and the margarine are mixed into the dry ingredients with an electric mixer. In this initial beating of liquid and flour the gluten....a protein substance in the flour, begins to develop. It is further activited with more beating and finally kneading as the remainder of the flour is added. Gluten gives the dough the elastic quality needed for the cellular framework of the finished bread.

When the dough is allowed to rest, the growing yeast produces carbon dioxide. The gas is trapped in the dough and it rises. How well it rises depends on the strength of the gluten content in the flour and how well the gluten has been developed with mixing and kneading.

Poets have tried to put into words the exquisite fragrance that eminates from the oven when yeast baking is done....but only you, when you actually experience this unmatched heavenly aroma can fully appreciate its uniqueness. Put aside any fears you may have had regarding baking with yeast—buy a few packets of active dry yeast (you most likely have everything else at home and enjoy....enjoy!

THREE-FLOUR HERB BREAD
Yield—1 loaf

1 to 1-½ cups unsifted white flour
1 cup unsifted rye flour
2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
3 cloves garlic, crushed
¼ cup chopped parsley
½ teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed
½ teaspoon pepper
1-½ cups very hot tap water (120-130 F)
3 tablespoons margarine, melted

Combine flours. In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1-½ cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, undissolved active dry yeast, garlic, parsley, rosemary and pepper. Gradually add very hot tap water and melted margarine to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour mixture. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; let rest 15 minutes. On a lightly floured board, roll dough into a 14x9-inch rectangle. Shape into loaf. Place in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake at 400 degrees for 40 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack.

(This bread rises in the refrigerator and may be refrigerated anywhere from 2 to 24 hours which makes it easy to schedule baking so it can be served hot.)

SESAME CORN BUBBLE LOAF

4-½ to 5-½ cups unsifted flour
1-½ cups yellow cornmeal
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
1-¾ cups milk
½ cup water
3 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup toasted sesame seed
1 egg white, slightly beaten

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1-¾ cups flour, cornmeal, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water and 3 tablespoons margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120-130 degrees F). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add ½ cup flour. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap; let rest for 20 minutes. Punch dough down; divide into 32 equal pieces, shape each piece into a smooth ball. Arrange 16 balls in well-greased 10-inch tube pan. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sesame seed. Arrange remaining balls on top. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with remaining sesame seed. Cover pan loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours. When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator. Uncover loaf carefully. Let stand uncovered for 10 minutes at room temperature. Bake at 375 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Makes 1 loaf.

COFFEE BREAKERS Makes 24 rolls

4-½ to 5-½ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
1-½ teaspoons salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
½ cup milk
½ cup water
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
2 eggs, at room temperature

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 and two-thirds cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half and shape according to the following: While dough is rising, prepare pans. Melt ½ cup (1 stick) margarine in a saucepan. Add two-thirds cup firmly packed light brown sugar and 2 teaspoons light corn syrup; bring to a rolling boil. Immediately pour into 2 15-½x10-½x1-inch jelly roll pans. Sprinkle with ¾ cup shopped walnuts or pecans. Roll our half the dough into a 12-inch square. Brush with melted margarine; combine ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar and 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon; sprinkle center one-third of dough with ¼ of the cinnamon mixture. Fold one-third of dough over center third. Sprinkle with ¼ of cinnamon mixture. Fold remaining one-third of dough over to make a 3-layer 12-inch strip. Cut into 12 one inch pieces. Hold ends of each piece and twist in opposite direction 2 or 3 times. Seal ends firmly. Place in the prepared pans about 1-½ inches apart. Repeat with remaining half of dough, cover and let rise 1 hour. Bake in hot 400 degree oven 15-20 minutes or until done. Invert rolls onto plates or wire racks to cool.

Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Ma. 02026.

Mrs. N.C. Noyes, Dedham, shares a recipe she calls "Southern Comfits"...and she adds: "What's a comfit? A sweet!" Our thanks for this unusual cookie.

SOUTHERN COMFITS

½ cup margarine (1 stick)
½ cup chopped dates
½ cup peanut butter
½ cup coconut flakes
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sugar
½ cup brown sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda

Melt margarine in small saucepan; pour into mixing bowl and add chopped dates. Allow to stand until dates soften thoroughly. Add peanut butter, coconut, vanilla, white and brown sugar and one egg and beat until smooth. Blend in flour and baking soda. Drop teaspoon by scant teaspoon onto lightly greased cookie sheet and bake for 20 minutes at 350 degrees. Makes 4-5 dozen "comfits."

Question: I'm helping my neighbor prepare for a party and she suggested I write to your column requesting a recipe for the little chicken wings that are served as appetizers. I appreciate your help, if possible.

Mrs. M.P., Dedham

Answer: These are so easy to prepare and can be made and frozen ahead of time. This is one recipe you can double and triple, if necessary.

LEMON-SOY DRUMMETTES

2 pounds chicken wings, tip removed and disjointed
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon catsup
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon ginger

Mix together soy sauce, lemon juice, honey, catsup, garlic salt and ginger. Place wing pieces in a shallow container. Pour marinade over wings, cover with plastic wrap and marinate in the refrigerator for 4 hours or overnight. Arrange wings on broiler pan; place pan on second rack position and broil about 12 minutes; turn wings, brush with marinade and broil for 12 minutes or until fork tender. Makes 24 appetizers.

Question: Is it ever possible to make popovers like the giant ones served in the Quincy Market Proud Popover Restaurant?

N.D., Norwood

Answer: The Proud Popover was not too proud to part with not only their excellent popover recipe but two fillings for these delicate beauties!

PROUD POPOVERS FOR 12

1½ cups milk
5 teaspoons salad oil
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups all purpose flour, sifted

Combine milk, oil and eggs. Using a wire whip, blend eggs until they are well blended. Combine salt and flour. Add to liquid ½ cup at a time beating with wire whip after each addition. Batter should be lumpy. Place batter in refrigerator for 10 minutes. Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Grease heavy muffin or popover pans thoroughly but do not flour. Pour batter into baking cups. Fill to top. Bake in oven for 20 minutes, then turn oven temperature down to 350 degrees. Do not open oven. After 35 minutes of baking time, open oven If popover are all-over brown with no light spots and have a hollow sound when tapped, they are done.

BEEF STROGONOFF POPOVER
A LA THE PROUD POPOVER RESTAURANT

1½ pounds thinly sliced beef fillet
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons finely diced onion

Saute beef and onion in butter until lightly brown. Set aside and saute: 12 ounces slices mushrooms and 2 tablespoons butter. When mushrooms are tender, add beef and season with: salt, pepper, ½ teaspoon basil and ¼ cup white wine. Stir in 1 cup warm sour cream and serve immediately. Cut one popover in half length-wise. Place one-half on plate with cut side down. Ladle sauce over popover half and place other half on plate next to sauce covered half. Serves 4.

SEAFOOD POPOVER

2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon onion juice

The Daytona Beach Resort Area is one of Florida's top vacation spots . . . In fall and winter the beach is especially luring to fishermen (the bluefish and tarpon are running), to surfers (the good waves start to roll in), and to beachcombing (the seagulls put on a great show) . . . There is a timeless, seemingly endless beach - a magnet that stretches for more than 20 miles . . . Entertainment is easy to come by and full of variety . . . And, of course, there is the unequaled racing program at Daytona International Speedway . . . This is a natural balance to the concerts and theater schedule

"Passport to Pleasure," theme of Hadassah fashion show

The Boston Chapter of Hadassah has named Sarabeth Lukin of Boston as its 1977 fashion show chairman. The show, entitled, " A Passport to Pleasure," will be held on Wednesday, Mar. 23, at the Boston Center for the Arts, and will benefit one of Hadassah's major projects—its Hadassah Israel Education Services (HIES), which includes a two-year community college, the Seligsberg Brandeis Comprehensive High School, and the Hadassah Vocational Guidance Institute.

This premier showing will present Israeli fashions produced by the students of fashion design at the Alice Seligsberg School in Jerusalem, now on tour of this country . The show will be complemente by American fashions for women from Lord & Taylor, Boston.

A special script will be written for this event, with a travelogue-type commentary to be presented by Freda Schlesinger of Brookline, member of the National Board of Hadassah, and Anne Lappin of Boston, former director of the Barbizon School of Modeling, and a member of the Chestnut Hill Group of Hadassah.

A graduate of the University of Michigan with a B.A. in Journalism, Sarabeth Lukin was an assistant national director of the Student Zionist Organization and American Zionist Youth Foundation in the early 1960's. She has a range of organizational experience, especially in Hadassah, where she began as a member of Young Judea.

Ms. Lukin has been president of the Chestnut Hill Group of Hadassah and its fundraising vice president; bulletin editor Boston Chapter; youth activities chairman, Boston Chapter. Within the New England Region of Hadassah, she served as chairman, PressRadio-TV; a member of its Speaker's Bureau, and the N.E. Hadassah Youth Commission.

A gourmet Israeli breakfast will be served prior to the fashion show, and many Hadassah models from the Newton area will parade the runway.

United Nations focus of three local LWV conferences

As oil and coffee prices skyrocket, the World Health Organization wipes out smallpox, and tensions mount in the Middle East and Africa, the United Nations and its related organizations mirror and affect changing world realities.

This year, leagues across the country are re-examining the United Nations and it with emphasis on relations between developed and developing countries and their implications for U.S. policy. Discussion will focus on three aspects on international relations: economic proposals of developing nations and the U.S. response to them; the question of what should be the general posture of the U.S. at the U.N.; appropriate U.S. policy for restructuring the U.N. system and its special agencies.

The Newton LWV meetings on the U.N. will be held Wednesday, Jan. 26, at 9:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre; Jan. 26, at 7:45 p.m. at Aquinars Jr. College, Jackson Road, Newtonville; Thursday, Jan. 27, at 7:45 p.m. at 12 Hillcrest Cir., Waban; and Friday, Jan. 28, at 9:30 a.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, Hancock Street, Auburndale.

Rape prevention course offered

Everyone is familiar with the frightening statistics which suggest that each adult woman stands a good chance of being attacked or raped within her lifetime.

It is almost impossible to avoid the probability of an attempted assault of some kind—but no woman need be victim of a successful attack. According to Tony Annesi and David St. Amand of the Academy of Physical and Social Development, there are three steps to take: first, each woman should know about rape and rapists; second, each woman should know how to react mentally and physically; third, each woman should have the minimal skill and the maximum will necessary.

Rape is a horrifying and embarrassing reality even after the crime is over. According to the BPD, the number of rapes have decreased in the past few years due to new awareness in women.

Precisely how to resist, when to resist, and how to make oneself less of a mark are what more women need to know. No woman need be a victim of a rape; but only the woman has the resources to prevent it.

For information regarding the Rape Prevention Course, call The Academy, 792 Beacon St., Newton Centre, 969-2200.

Sports Briefs

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Four young major league prospects have signed 1977 contracts with the world champion Cincinnati Reds, club officials announced Monday.

Signing were shortstop Ron Oester, a native of Cincinnati, and pitchers Mike Lacoss and Dan Dumoulin, all with the Reds' Three Rivers' farm team last season and pitcher Mario Soto, who was a starter with Tampa of the Fllorida State League.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds have selected Chuck Goggin, 31, to manage their Class AA Eastern League farm team, Three Rivers of Quebec.

The Reds announced Monday that Goggin, who had a brief major league career as a player, will be replacing Ron Brand, 37, who is retiring from baseball.

MONTREAL (UPI) - The Montreal Expos announced Monday former major league outfielder-first baseman Felipe Alou has joined their organization as field manager of the West Palm Beach Expos, their Class A Florida State League affiliate.

Alou, 41, played in 2,082 major league games from 1958 to 1974 with San Francisco, the Milwaukee Braves, Atlanta, Oakland, New York Yankees, the Expos and the Milwaukee Brewers.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The seventh annual Howard Cosell's Day With The All-Americans Golf Tournament will be played at the Canyon Country Club Tuesday, Feb. 8. Bob Murphy is the defending champion.

Proceeds from the event benefit the All-American Collegiate Golf Foundation Scholarship program, which has provided scholarships for 34 students. Four scholarships — in the names of Frank Sinatra, Tony Lema, Gary Sanders and Jackie Robinson — are for black students.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Sophomore guard Jim "Turkey" Tillman, has been suspended and will not be allowed to play for Coach Lefty Driesell the rest of the season, because he refused to play in the closing stages of the Terrapins' victory over Navy last weekend.

Driesell, who announced Tillman's suspension Monday, said, "I sent him in late in the Navy game but he said he didn't want to play. I have suspended him for the remainder of this year."

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado State University has been stripped of five football scholarships for the 1977 season because of an NCAA rules infraction, according to Athletic Director Thurman McGraw.

McGraw said the action was taken by WAC officials because CSU signed three more football players than allowed by the NCAA last year and the school now could only sign 25 instead of 30 players for the coming season.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Oakland Raiders' wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, the MVP in Super Bowl XI, will compete in the 11th annual American Airlines Golf Classic Jan. 28-30.

First prize in the $30,000 tournament at McCormick Ranch Country Club near Scottsdale Jan. 28-30 is $10,000, which Biletnikoff and his partners, linebacker Villapiano and Minnesota Vikings' linebacker Jeff Siemon will split if they win.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Philadelphia Flyers' center Rick MacLeish has been named National Hockey League Player of the Week, it was announced Monday.

MacLeish, selected by a special panel of Pro Hockey Writers Association members, scored four goals and one assist for five points in three games played during the week January 10-16.

South African minister speaks at South High

By MAXINEEFFENSON

On Monday, Jan. 24, from 12:50-1:40 p.m., Rev. Kenneth N. Carstens, executive director of the Defense and Aid Fund for Southern Africa, (D&A) will speak at Newton South High School. He will discuss the function of this organization and its objectives.

Rev. Carstens is a native South African. He served on the Defense and Aid Committee in South Africa which opposes the racist government. In 1963, he moved to the United States and was appointed executive director of the D&A program in this country.

Rev. Carstens is one of the few South Africans to become a member of the D&A program in the United States.

The Defense and Aid Fund for Southern Africa evolved from the emergency fund raising committee set up in South Africa and London in 1952. The committee was originally created to deter arbitrary imprisonment and to aid political prisoners and their dependents. In 1963 the D&A adopted its present name and gained United Nations recognition. From there it extended its work to other South African countries that were ruled by white minorities.

The main objective of this program is to alleviate the unjust treatment of blacks in South Africa. It is trying to provide legal defense, humanitarian aid, and information to the public by publishing various pamphlets and reports and by presenting speakers.

The D&A Fund for Southern Africa will not help the mistreated groups directly. It is however, supporting the victims of unjust racist lasws and encouraging justice.

This lecture is sponsored by Newton South's Enrichment Program and will be held in the lecture hall. The lecture is opened to Newton South students, parents, and the public.

Boxers hand Newton first loss

Brockton runners win showdown with Tigers, 44-42

By RICH GROSSMAN

The Newton North trackmen suffered their first loss of the season last Saturday when they lost to Suburban League rival Brockton, 44-42. The victory practically assures the unbeaten Boxers of the Suburban League championship.

Newton, now 5-1, faces three of the Suburban League's weakest teams and should finish 8-1 and end up in the league's second spot.

The meet was (and will be) both team's only closely contested meet of the entire season.

Brockton took an early lead in the middle distance events, but Newton came back with strong performances in the sprints, field events, and two-mile to give North a four-point lead going into the meet's final event - the 4x440 yard relay.

Captain Garde Wells scored Newton's first points. The plucky senior running with a temperature well over 102 degrees took second in the mile, finishing in 4:37.8. Sophomore Dan Laredo picked up the third spot finishing in 4:47.6. This left Newton down, 5-4.

Captain Eric Moran, who had been out for a week-and-a-half with a leg injury, was able to come back and grab a second in the 1000 yard race. His time was 2:30.3. This left the Tigers behind, 11-7.

Running the best 600 time posted by a Newton runner this season, senior Steve Riviere captured the third spot in the race. Steve finished in 1:21.0. Brockton's lead was now 11 points (19.8).

Newton's first victory came in the 300 yard race when senior Bob Jackson ran a 35.1, just .1 second off the existing league record. Brockton runners, amongst some jostling near the finish line, took second and third. Brockton's lead was 10 points (23-13).

The Tigers cut another point off that margin when Suburban League record holder Duncan Scott won the two mile. The captain finished the deuce in 9:48.2.

North made up the nine-point deficit in the shot put where Tiger weightmen swept all three places. Joel Dennis won the event with a 52'¾" put. It was Dennis' finest heave in Suburban League action. The big junior took a third at the Coaches' Meet at Northeastern University the night before with a 52'5½" put.

Field Liason Bruce Weinberg came in second with a 48'2" toss. The throw equalled a personal record set earlier in the season against Weymouth South.

Senior Dave Bracken completed the sweep with a 44'1" heave, his best ever.

The Newton blitz tied the score at 27.

The Orange and Black took the lead for the first time after one of the longest 45-yard high hurdles races ever run. After the race was run, with Newton's Bill Rizzetto and Kevin Hinchey placing one-three, officials decided to run the race over because the hurdles were not set at proper distances from the starting line.

Following a lengthy discussion the hurdles were moved to their correct positions. On the second start, the starter's gun did not fire while on the third attempt, one of the competitors jumped the gun. On the fourth try, everything went off without incident—and the results were the same. Rizzetto won in 6.1 seconds while Hinchey took third. The edge was now Newton's: 33-30.

Brockton dashmen, however, tied it up at 36 when Newton's Kevin Jones was outleaned at the tape. Jones second-place time was his best ever: 5.6 seconds.

High jumpers gave Newton the lead again when they finished in exactly the same order as in the hurdles. Again, Rizzetto and Hinchey went one-three, Bill clearing 6'2" while Kevin jumped 5'10". Newton held a 42-39 lead after this event (43 points guarantees a tie) with just the relay remaining. Brockton's relay team had run seven seconds better than Newton's which made Newton fans a bit uneasy.

The team of Wes Harris, Steve Riviere, Kevin Jones, and Bo Jackson ran Newton's best time of the season by seven seconds (3:43.9). Unfortunately, the Boxers ran even better, breaking the league record, running 3:40.4.

Final score: Brockton 44 Newton 42.

Last year's Newton Brockton meet had an identical score.

Weymouth North

Newton's meet with Weymouth North last Wednesday was much more enjoyable for the Tiger squad. The home team ran away with a 60-26 triumph.

Newton's domination included winning every running event between 300 yards and one mile.

Dan Laredo was the victor in the mile. He took the event in a 4:49.2 time. He was followed in third place by Mario Santi, who finished in 4:57.0.

Eric Moran won the 1000 in 2:29.8 while Mark Trafton took the third spot in 2:31.4. Newton runners swept the 600 yard race with Wes Harris (1:24.2), Bob Jackson (1:26.1), and Reggie Price (1:29.8) taking all three places.

Newton also did well in the 300 yard dash with Mike Drew (35.6) and Steve Riviere (36.6) placing first and second.

In the deuce, senior Josh Chernin came in second and just missed breaking 11 minutes, running 11:00.4. Tom Arsenault followed closely in third place at 11:02.0.

Field events personnel bagged 17 of the 18 available points. High jumpers Bill Rizzetto (6'2") and Bob Martin (5'10") took the 0top two spots. In the shot put, Ralph Berry (42'6-¾"); Dave Bracken (42'1¼"); and Rich Grossman (38'11¼") took the three places available.

North sprinters also took some points. Senior Greg Kassabian placed second in the 50 yard dash while Tony Santagati came in third. Chris Cato came in third in the hurdles.

The Newton relay team won handily. The Orange and Black's time was 3:49.7, compared to Weymouth's 4:06.

Newton's next contest will be tonight when they host a weak Quincy squad at 5:30 p.m.

The Tigers' remaining meets fall on the next two Thursdays when they face Cambridge Latin (1-27-77 - 7 p.m.) and Brookline (2-3-77 - 6:30 p.m.) The Suburban League All Star Meet takes place on the Monday (Feb. 7) following the Brookline meet at 6:30 p.m.

North wrestlers split two matches

By STEVE KRUTT

For the second consecutive week, Newton North matmen split their two matches. On Wednesday, they lost to a very physical and undefeated Quincy team, but they bounced back to defeat the Weymouth North Wrestlers on the following Friday. Both those contests were important Suburban League matches, and the Tigers are now 2 and 3 in the league.

Unlike previous years the Suburban League appears to be amazingly well balanced. The top teams are: North Quincy, Brockton, Waltham, Quincy, Newton North and Weymouth North, and all have the potential to upset each other. Weymouth South and Brookline remain at the cellar of the league.

On Wednesday the outcome of the match was foreshadowed early as 100 pounder Greg Sotir was pinned and Dave Gasdia lost 11 to 5. Finally coming into his own was Junior Kevin Bengtson at 114 pounds. He held his opponent at bay during the second period, and then pinned him in the third in a great match: He was given the second effort award for that sparkling victory.

John Larkin was substantially defeated at 121, but Roy Hebard used a back arm pinning combination to pick up near fall points and win 5 to 2. Winning decisively at 134 was Tim Scarlett. The team scores were now tied at 12-12.

In this contest Newton North and Quincy met fire with fire as two of the better wrestlers from each team met head on. At 140 pounds Ed Kim wrestled in the first of these important matches, but he found himself in an unfamiliar position as he was put to his back. He managed to fight off a pin but he lost 8 to 2. Co-captain Neil Johnson got one back for Newton as he won a close match 5 to 2.

In the second of the key matchups was co-captain Jim Acheson, who has been wrestling at the most competitive weight class at 157 pounds. Going into the final seconds of the third period Acheson led 3 to 2. However, in a controversial call, Tim Cahill of Quincy was awarded the takedown along with the decision at the buzzer. Dave Larkin at 169 pounds, Bill Kerr at 187, and heavyweight Peter Hiltz all lost close matches to give Quincy a 27 to 15 win.

Earlier, the junior varsity had whipped Quincy's JVs 25 to 15. They continued their winning ways against Weymouth North winning 41 to 5, to set the tone for the.varsity.

Once again things started off balefully as Newton North forfeited the 100 pound weight class, which has been a real trouble spot on the team. Dave Gasdia was pinned in the second period by his opponent in maroon and gold. The Tigers were off to another slow start, but Kevin Bengtson quickly got things smoking with an impressive 9 to 3 victory. John Larkin exhibited a fine pancake as he won a wild scoring affair 12 to 9.

At 128 Weymouth North was forced to wrestle one of their 121 pounders. Roy Hebard took advantage of the opportunity and pinned him without much trouble. Senior Tim Scarlett lost 6 to 0, and Newton North now trailed 15 to 12 in the team score. At 140 pounds Ed Kim used a picturesque snatch single to take Mark Silva of Weymouth North down.

Kim continued to dominate and left victorious 10 to 4. Co-captain Neil Johnson used a chicken wing to his advantage, as he recorded a pin at 1:30 of the first period.

Co-captain Jim Acheson made a gallant effort in a loss to Kevin McKenna, who finished 2nd in the states last year. Acheson was in contention all the way. The first period yielded no score but plenty of action. In the second period Acheson suffered a knee injury, but fought off the pain long enough to finish the match as he lost 8 to 1.

Newton North now led 21 to 18 with 169 pounder Dave Larkin coming up. He demoralized his opponent, but he couldn't pin him, as he won 15 to 1. Bill Kerr also came through for the Tigers, as the top three weight classes all won, after losing to Quincy.

Heavyweight Peter Hiltz was the victor as his opponent was disqualified when tempers flared. Hiltz was ahead in the third period of a fast paced match, when his opponent threw a punch. A wild scene followed when a number of people from both sides attempted to break up the malee. Tranquility was finally restored to the gym and Newton North won 38 to 18.

Yesterday, the Tigers were to take on Weston, which always poses a strong threat, and then travel to meet Suburban League rival Brookline on Friday. On Wednesday, North hosts Malden.

Newton Catholic five bows to Mission, 67-51

By CHRIS SWAN

In the only basketball games played during this past week, both the Newton Catholic varsity and junior varsity boys teams lost to Mission at Mission. The Newton Catholic varsity lost by a score of 67-51.

The game was close in the first quarter but a twenty-one to nine surge by Mission in the second quarter proved to be an insurmountable obstacle for the Lancers to overcome. Ronny Moan had 14 points followed by Jeff Beatrice with 11 more for Newton Catholic.

Captain Jimmy Brennan chipped in with 15 for Mission. Newton Catholic sorely missed the services of Steve Shepard, currently the second leading scorer in the league behind Keven Mannix of Saint Patricks, Shepard was injured last week in a game against St. Mary's of Brookline.

Steve suffered torn ligaments in his ankle. He will be lost to the team for approximately three weeks.

The JV lost to the team from Mission Hill 39-26. Timmy Hoban led the Lancers with a total of 15 points.

The girls game against Saint Peters of Cambridge was postponed due to the inclement weather. The varsity girls, though 0-4, have been improving from game to game, and should prove to be a team to be reconed with in the very near future.

Games this week include a rematch of Saint Patricks at Newton Catholic. Earlier in the season, St. Pats beat N.C. 77-70, so look for the Lancers to give St. Patricks all they can handle.

It will be Saint Columbkille's at Saint Collumbkilles and Saint Patricks at their gym in Watertown for the girls. Unfortunately for he girls team, they will be without Chrissy Mahoney with an injury to her finger. She should be back in action rather soon.

SCHEDULE

January 21 at Saint Pats, 3:30 (Girls).

South hoopsters top Bedford; beaten by Weston, Medfield

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

In a closely-fought contest tht went into overtime, the Newton South basketball team lost to an undefeated Weston team, 64-62, last Wednesday at Newton South High School.

In the first quarter, Weston moved out to a 4 point lead, 16-12, with Scott Chandler and Steve Brown providing the spark for Weston.

The second quarter was strictly defense as Weston won that one also, 10-9, and went into the locker room with a halftime lead of 26-21.

In the third quarter, Fran McDonnell and Gordy Lucas provided the spark for Weston, but South countered with Stu Taylor, Barry Green, and Gary Simon as Weston again outscored the Lions, this time 16-14. and at the end of three quarters South was down by 7 points, 42-35.

The fourth quarter, however, was all Newton South as the backcourt combination of Gary Simon and Peter Baumberg ignited South's offense. With Simon and Baumberg controlling the play and Stu Taylor and Mike Stollar scoring, South closed the gap to one, at 54-53.

Then, with 19 second left, Peter Baumberg pulled off the play of the game for South as he dove in front of an intended pass to Steve Brown of Weston and directed the ball to Gary Simon who gave it to Mike Stollar for a layup and a chance for a 3 point play as he was fouled, making the shot.

Stollar made the free throw and it was now 56-54 in favor of South. But not to be counted out, Scott Chandler of Weston got a last-second field goal which tied the score at 56-all at the end of regulation play to force the game into overtime.

The overtime was a close battle, but Weston came out on top, 8-6, and won the game, 64-62.

BEAT BEDFORD

The next day, the Lions traveled to Bedford to meet the Bedford Bucs in their second Dual County League clash in two days. Bedford came into the game looking for its first win, with an 0-6 record. They left the game with an 0-7 record and still looking for their first win as South outplayed the Bucs and won, 55-45.

The first quarter was all Newton South as five different players scored for the Lions, giving them 12 points. But their defense was the big story in the quarter as they limited Bedford to only 4 points.

The second quarter didn't go as well for South; in fact Bedford won the quarter 14-13. For Bedford Rich Sinotte had 10 of their14 points, and for South Stu Taylor hit for 9 of their 13 second quarter points. The first half ended with South on top by 7, 25-18.

In the third quarter both teams scored 14 points as Michael Stollar got 6 points for the Lions, making the score 39-32 in favor of South heading into the last quarter.

In the fourth quarter South held Bedford to 13 points, while scoring 16. Stollar had 5 points and grabbed 6 rebounds in the quarter. The game ended with South on top by 10, 55-45.

Stu Taylor, David Frim and Michael Stollar contributed greatly to the Lions win. The three of them combined for 43 of the Lions 55 points and 26 of the team's 36 rebounds. Michael Stollar looked very good scoring 13 points and grabbing 10 rebounds after coming off an ankle injury that had sidelined him for two games.

LOSE TO MEDFIELD

On Friday, Jan. 14 the Lions traveled to Medfield for their third game in three days. Medfield entered the game with a 6-2 record, and with 6'6" center Greg Feehan scoring 33 points, they downed the Lions 63-57.

The first quarter was, without doubt, South's worst of the game, probably even the season. They were outscored 20-6. To show how bad the quarter went for South, Medfield attempted 21 shots from the field compared to only 9 for the Lions.

The second quarter went much better for South as balanced scoring by the Lions gave them 18 pts. compared to 15 for Medfield with Feehan getting 10 of the 15. At the end of the first half the Lions were down by 11, 35-24.

In the third quarter Medfield's defense held south to only 12 points while they scored 14, with Gary Feehan again getting 10 of them. For South, David Frim had 7 of their 12 points. The third quarter ended with the Lions now down by 13, 49-36.

In the fourth quarter Stu Taylor and Gary Simon combined for 14 of South's 21 points. The Lions limited Medfield to 14 points, with Gary Feehan getting 7 of them, but their 21 points were not enough as they lost by 6, 63-57.

This game can probably be summed up best in two words, Gary Feehan, he totally dominated the game shooting an unbeleivable 73 per cent from the field (16 of 22), and he grabbed 15 rebounds while scoring 33 points. Stu Taylor played his usual fine game scoring 18 points and grabbing 6 rebounds.

These last three games for South dropped their record to 2-6 overall, 1-2 in Dual County League play.

South matmen top Weston, bow to Milford

By GREG SOYKA

The scene was set at Weston High School for an evening of great wrestling. Weston has its finest team in years, but they still ended up losing to the Newton South Lions. In a match where each team won six matches, the difference in the outcome was attributed to pins collected by Jeff Groper and Rafi Krasa, and a major decision by captain Greg Soyka.

One-hundred pounder Ron Krassin showed good improvement, but not enough to beat his adversary. Without a 107 lb. grappler, Weston forfeited the match. This enabled captain Ron Lombardo to wrestle a weight class higher for the third time this season. Bones displayed his superiority to his opponent by beating him for the second time in two years.

Jeff Groper followed at 121 lbs. and chewed-up his Weston counterpart, picking up six team points. Doug Washington had the unfortunate task of wrestling up a weight class against a state champion. Booker was no match for the Weston captain and lost a major decision.

Greg MacDonald also wrestled in a higher weight class. Despite the weight disadvantage, MacDonald put in the best performance of the night by decisioning his foe. Greg Soyka at 140 lbs. worked for the pin all match but had to settle for a 10-1 decision.

In the next three matches, Dan Picard, Art Kojoyain, and Brian Buffington all met fine opponents and all lost their matches by decisions.

This skid was ended abruptly by a pin in the 187 lb. class by Rafi Krasa that iced the match for the Lions. Heavyweight Lance Servais met a much bigger opponent and was pinned, making the final score Newton South 28, Weston 22.

Fall to Milford

Next, the Lions took on Milford High School. Milford was, is, and always will be a team to be feared. Milford grapplers showed wrestling knowledge, quickness and incredible strength all night long.

Even though South lost, the team has nothing to be ashamed of as they kept the score close throughout the match against one of the finest teams in the state. With a good break here and there, the outcome could have been easily reversed.

The Lions were in trouble early in the match when 100 and 107 pound wrestlers Ron Krassin and Ron Lombardo met very strong opponents. Between the two matches Milford picked up a nine point lead. Jeff Groper lost a match that he could have won in the 114 lb. class increasing Milford's lead.

What occurred in the next two bouts is impossible to recapture in words. Doug Washington never stopped working in his match against a Milford captain. Booker held on to a one point lead for over three minutes which is an incredible accomplishment; Washington won the match 1-0. 128 pounder Greg MacDonald continued to wrestle superbly.

MacDonald's moves flowed smoothly to help him come from behind to take a 5-3 lead. Then the Lions got their best break of the evening when MacDonald's foe injured his ankle and was forced to concede the match, giving the Lions six points.

134 pounder Lee Schiff met his best opponent thus far and lost a major decision. In the 140 lb. bout Greg Soyka wrestled the match of his life. Trailing by two points to a very strong rival, Soyka scored a stunning reversal late in the final period. Refusing to settle for a tie he scored two quick back points and rode his man out for a 6-4 win.

Unfortunately the skid of 147 pounder Dan Picard and the pinning of sophomore David Isenberg gave Milford a fifteen point lead with three matches remaining.

169 pounder Brian Buffington battled hard to achieve a 2-2 tie. Despite Buffington's fine performance, the tie assured Milford of a win.

Not enough praise can be given to 187 pounder Rafi Krasa. Last season Krasa was the least successful Lion starter. At this point, he is the only undefeated starter. Krasa came less thean an inch away from a first period pin and had to settle for a decision. Heavyweight Lance Servais registered his second pin of the season which ended the contest Milford 29, Newton South 23.

There is no doubt the Lions could have won the match. However, even in losing the Lions showed they have an excellent squad and will continue in their winning ways. Tomorrow, South visits Wayland at 6:30 p.m. and next Tuesday, hosts Waltham, also at 6:30.

Wayland downs South skaters, 9-3

By BRIAN J. KILEY

Saturday, the Newton South hockey team was beaten by the Wayland Warriors at the Natick Rink. It was a good game. Wayland plainly outplayed and outlasted South in a 9-3 win.

The early moments of the game saw the play up and down and a high scoring game was evident. When Warrior Captain Dick Akins was called for charging, it looked like South had a big break.

That idea soon diminished when John Burke raced down the right side, cut in and drilled it by Lion goalie Albert Pazos. A few minutes later, when another Warrior Captain (there are 3) Peter Crowley was in the penalty box John Burke again scored. This time he sped down the left side by the defensemen and shot it off the right pad of Albert Pazos.

Burke scored two shorthanded goals in less than five minutes. That is very rare in any hockey league. South did not give up as with that penalty still in effect, Edward McCarthy deflected Bobby Tresca's slapshot making the score 2-1.

Then in action in front of the Lion goal, Jaird Smith knocked it in sitting down. When John McGowen was called for tripping, South had a power play. The Lions played well on this power play but Joe Anzivino came up with a number of good stops.

The period ended and the Lions went into the locker room down 3-1.

Early in the second period Jim Menelly scored on Dean Kahr, after that John Burke scored his hat-trick goal then making the score 5-1 and South was in trouble. Edward McCarthy from behind the net stole the puck, came in front and jammed it in.

Minutes later, after Howard Cooper and Don Moore couldn't knock it in, Edward McCarthy lifted it over Joe Anzivino. That goal came with 53 seconds left. With Wayland pressing in South's end and South with two men in the box, Dean Kahr came up with 3 great saves on Jim Menelly. The period ran out, but South relieved but still down by 3 goals 6-3.

The question before the third period started was whether or not South could come back from a 3 goal deficit. The question was answered quickly when Jaird Smith scored. A few minutes later Peter Crowley beat Dean Kahr with a wrist shot making the score 8-3 in favor of Wayland. South was pressing but Joe Anzivino stopped them again and again.

With 2 minutes to go Wayland had 2 men in the box, during a faceoff in the Warrior zone John Burke won the faceoff and passed the puck to brother Buddy Burke; he skated across center ice, cut left and fired it by Dean Kahr.

Wayland had scored 3 shorthanded goals in one game. They played better with men in the box then they do at full strength. After that goal, Spencer Ball replaced Joe Anzivino in net. The Lions never really got a chance to test Ball as the siren sounded and Wayland walked away with a 9-3 victory.

South was a little bit confused now. They had not played poorly, but a 9-3 loss is not exactly close. The three shorthanded goals is also something to think about. The main difference between this game and last game's 6-2 victory for South was the power play. When South played Weston, the Lions scored 3 power play goals.

South couldn't get the power play going today though; Dean Kahr and Albert Pazos did not play badly, but the Wayland attack was almost constant. Maybe Assistant Coach Steven McBride summed it up best when he said, "It was just one of those days."

Silver Lake Dodge marathon entry blanks now available

Entry blanks for the Silver Lake Dodge Washington's Birthday "Second Decade" Marathon race, scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 20, are now available, according to Race Director Alan Klein.

The 11th annual road race, an official qualifying event for the B.A.A. Marathon, covers the distance from Hopkinton to Silver Lake Dodge headquarters, 444 Watertown St., Newton.

Inaugurated in 1967 with less than 100 entrants, the distance run over the years became the New England Junior Thirty Kilometer Championship, then was expanded in 1975 to the full marathon distance.

More than 400 distance runners competed in 1976, with Raymond Currier of Manchester, N.H. the winner in a record time of two hours, 19 minutes and 58 seconds.

Runners who complete the distance in three hours or less are eligible to enter the B.A.A. Patriots Day distance classic.

Prizes to top finishers include 30 trophies, 20 medals and a three-man team prize. There are special awards to the first runner over the age of 40 to cross the finish line and for the first female finisher plus a certified Marathon Time Certificate for each finisher.

Two locations have been established for the convenience of runners in securing entry forms.

The application blanks are available from Frank Hull, Registration Chairman, New England AAU, Room 212, 69 Canal St., Boston, Mass. 02114 742-2248; or from Race Director Alan Klein, Silver Lake Dodge, 444 Watertown St., Newton, Mass. 02195 965-1300.

Entries must be received by Monday, Feb. 14. Entry blanks must be accompanied by a $2.00 registration fee.

CAR CORNER

The positioning of flares depends on the location of your disabled car. On an expressway with a one-way flow of traffic, put one flare next to your car toward the rear, another about 200 feet behind your car, and a third an additional 300 feet back. Place the flares on the shoulder, but also close to the road surface if at all possible. If you cannot get your car onto the shoulder—or if there is none—stick the flares into cracks between slabs of concrete pavement or simply lay them on the road at the recommended intervals. If you are one of the smart people who has decided to install a CB radio in your vehicle, NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut St. (corner of Beacon St. at 4 Corners), Newton, 332-2487 invites you to stop in and see the large selection of fine quality units we have available for you. For both sales & service of CB radios and more, NEWTON CAR RADIO offers one of the largest inventories in the area. "Car radios sales & service." Merit Technology Applied To 100mm Cigarette.

'Enriched Flavor'™ process adapted to new low tar 100mm cigarette with remarkable success.

MERIT established a whole new taste standard for low tar smoking.

If you smoke but haven't chosen to take advantage of the MERIT breakthrough because you prefer a longer length cigarette, you'll be interested.

Because now there's a MERIT for you, too. New MERIT 100's. Only 12 mg. of tar. Yet packed with extra flavor. The kind of flavor that makes "low tar, good taste" a reality for 100's smokers.

'Enriched Flavor' Tobacco

Like MERIT, MERIT 100's are packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke, and proven to deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

We taste-tested MERIT 100's against some of the toughest competition we could find: higher tar 100mm cigarettes.

Here are the results.

MERIT & MERIT MENTHOL. KINGS & 100's.

Test Data Conclusive

New 12 mg. tar MERIT 100's were taste-tested against a number of major 100mm brands ranging from 17 mg. to 19 mg. tar.

Thousands of smokers were tested.* The results: overall, they liked the taste of MERIT 100's as much as the higher tar 100mm brands tested.

MERIT and MERIT MENTHOL. King Size and new 100's.

The taste barrier for low tar smoking has been broken again.

Promoted at the Dec. 14, 1976, annual meeting of the Corporation of Mutual Bank for Savings in Newton Centre were (from left): Michael D. Tenaglia, assistanttreasurer; Joan C. Colligan, assistant treasurer; Octavio C. Bolivar, vice president; Elaine L. Simmons, vice president; William J. Weidman, comptroller; Charles M. Coyne, treasurer; and Clyde E. Rodgers, assistant vice president.

Three promotions at Newton Coop Bank

At the December board of directors meeting of Newton Co-operative Bank, Robert W. Stevens was elected a vice president and Nancy A. Morrison was elected an assistant treasurer, it was announced by Richard E. Bolton, president.

Also appointed was Nancy M. Anselmo, to the vice president.

Stevens, who joined the bank in 1972 and was formerly an assistant vice president, attended the University of Hawaii and Salem State College. He has completed several real estate appraisal courses with the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and is a member of the Cooperative Bank Club and the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. He lives in Wellesley Hills.

Stevens primary responsibility is in the overall loan area of the bank and he will be in charge of the new "Money Center" lending facility to be opened at 311 Walnut St., Newtonville, adjacent to the Main Office, in February.

The new "Money Center" will originate and service all types of loans including mortgages for residential, investment, commercial and construction purposes. In addition, auto, home improvement and personal loans will be offered, creating the area's first truly "full service," self-contained consumer loan center. joining Newton Cooperative Bank in 1975,

Prior to consumer loan manager, Mrs. Morrison was associated with Mutual Bank for Savings. Her election to assistant treasurer gives her direct responsibility for overseeing the entire consumer loan operation, as well as assisting in the total management of the "Money Center" and giving close support in the mortgage area.

Mrs. Morrison attended the University of Wittenberg, Ohio. She is a member of the Young Executives Club and lives in South Natick.

Mrs. Anselmo, a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, joined the bank in 1975. She lives in Newton.

Following the regular board meeting, a combined meeting of the board and the advisory board was held at the Brae Burn Country Club. An in-depth program on various aspects of the bank was presented by Bolton and Stevens.

Bolton cited the "personal bank" approach, featuring the addition of expanded services, hours and locations which customers desired was the "primary reason for the bank's extraordinary growth over the past three years." Newton Cooperative's deposit growth for this period is 42 percent, compared with 24 percent for the industry as a whole.

During this same three-year period staffing requirements increased personnel from 27 to 48 current employees. New branch offices in Chestnut Hill and Waban, introduction of interest-paying checking accounts, plus increased activity and growth in all areas of the bank were the major factors contributing to the employment increase, he said.

During a period of increased unemployment, the bank was pleased to present their figures showing a staff increase of 78 percent.

Bolton commented: "Our customers value the bank and the bank staff values its customers, and this results in a very healthy climate."

Economist foresees 'moderate' year ahead in financial matters

"The consumer is the real key in the economic forecast for 1977. Overall, 1977 will not be a boom year, but a generally good and moderate one," predicted widely quoted economic forecaster, Otto Eckstein.

Speaking to more than 200 area business leaders at a luncheon hosted by Guaranty-First Trust Company and New England Financial Services Corp. at the Newton Marriott Jan. 12, the Harvard professor and president of Data Resources, Inc. said that the proposed economic policy of the Carter Administration probably will be modified somewhat by Congress, but moderate and flexible guidelines for fiscal stimulus of $15 billion in 1977 and 1978 will be followed.

Although economic and management policies will tend to be on the conservative side, Carter was elected by liberal Democrats, and many policies will tend to be liberal, taxes, curing unemployment, public works and government programs among them.

"Even with the economic stimulus, we're looking at a 4.8 to 5.2 percent moderate growth in real GNP," was his assessment.

"The total gain in retail sales should be good, between 6 to 7 percent , stimulated somewhat by the proposed rebate, even though it will amount to but $50 to $150 per person, depending upon the amount of taxes paid. Auto sales will be up to 11.5 million. Although auto imports have been down, foreign car sales will improve in 1977. Housing will continue to recover slowly with 1.83 million starts estimated. Mortgage rates will decline further."

Eckstein said that government spending will be up somewhat, inflation will average 5.3 percent (rising energy costs being the main culprit), profits will be up 13 percent and labor costs will climb by 7 percent.

"Heavy industry built inventories too rapidly in the first half of 1976. Late '76 inventory adjustment caused a 'pause' which will result in plant and equipment spending (far below normal at this point in its recovery) to be mediocre, with a projected real gain of 5.5 to 6 percent.

"Loans which were down in 1976 should increase 12 to 16 percent by mid-year. By year-end, the prime rate should be between 6.75 to 7 percent and the Fed Funds rate at 6 percent. There will be no dramatic changes in bonds with maximum yields on AA utilities between 8.25 to 8.50 percent.

State and local spending will remain flat. No capacity shortages are envisioned before 1979-1980.

Eckstein's recommendations for business people? "Since there will be no boom, be cautious and realistic in your decision-making in an economy that will continue to push upward, but at a gradual pace."

Mrs. Marcus named Camp Kingswood head

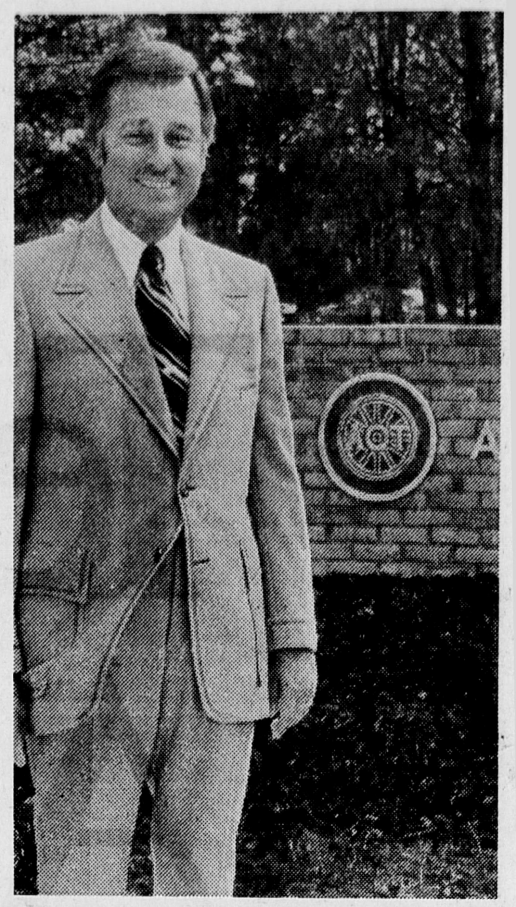
Mrs. Mitchell J. Marcus of West Newton has been elected the first woman president of Camp Kingswood, an overnight resident camp in Bridgeton, Maine.

Mrs. Marcus succeeds Bernard Swartz, who served three terms as president of the Camp, which is a constituent agency of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

Camp Kingswood offers a full range of athletic and recreational activities, along with religious and cultural programs, for boys and girls ages 8-13. Admission priority is given to children from families of limited income.

In addition to Mrs. Marcus, other officers elected for 1966-67 include: Harris Libby of Chestnut Hill, first vice president; and Mrs. Arthur D. Katzenberg, Jr., of Newton, secretary.

A member of the Camp Kingswood board for many years, Mrs. Marcus is also a vice president of the Jewish Family and Children's Service and a past president of its Women's Committee. She also serves as a member of the board of the CJP Women's Division and chairman of its By-Laws Committee, and a board member of the Regional Council of the Family Service Association of America and a member of its Program and Education Committee.



Herbert A. Abramson, president of Silver Lake Dodge, has been inducted into the Automotive Hall of Fame in Midland, Mich. Abramson is the only automobile dealer of any make in the eastern half of the United States who has been so honored.

Rich named associate actuary at Hancock

Michael J. Rich of 99 Andrew St., Newton, was promoted to associate actuary in the underwriting policy and research department of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

In his new position, Rich is responsible for the financial aspects of the company's reinsurance program as well as a number of industry mortality investigations, including the latest investigation of insured lives based on body build and blood pressure.

Rich joined the actuarial department at John Hancock in 1969. He later worked in the accounting and auditing department and became a fellow of the Society of Actuaries in 1972. He transferred to underwriting policy and research department in 1972 and became an assistant actuary in 1973.

Rich is a graduate of Georgia Tech.

Quarter rolls filled with slugs

A wary drive-up teller at the University Bank and Trust Company on Rte. 9 in Chestnut Hill saved the bank from paying $50 for five rolls of slugs.

Police report that a man in an old Ford Fairlane tried to cash in five filled quarter rolls, but the teller opened one roll because the driver was not familiar.

The driver took off as soon as he knew the rolls were being opened.

Lower your heating costs this Winter

Get a Humidifier

Humidity is a major factor in personal warmth and comfort. In winter, the dry artificially heated air from your heating system draws moisture from everything—including your body. And it is this loss of moisture that makes you feel chilly.

A Lau Vapor-Air Humidifier automatically adds the necessary amount of moisture to the air so that you can keep your home warm and comfortable—even at 68 degrees. And, according to the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute and the National Bureau of Standards, reducing your thermostat from 75 to 68 degrees can result in heating fuel savings of up to 15%.

We have a Lau Central System Humidifier that's just right for your home and heating system. Call us for a free estimate.

Recommended for inclusion in the Fiscal Year 1978 school budget is the purchase of 10 humidifiers for classrooms and work spaces and drapes for eight rooms which become too hot from solar energy.

The Liaison Committee of HVAC composed of students, faculty, and parents at the school will have all but two of its requests met in the work that the Committee passed Monday.

Not passed were the recommendations for windows in the large section of the library where Cornelius fears noise from the student mall outside the school would create too much disturbance for the library.

The Liaison Committee supported a $40,000 to $60,000 expenditure for exhaust fans and openable windows on Main Street' but Cornelius and Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson recommend $250,000 to be spent for a plan backed by Balco. Engineers will study these plans for the next meeting and report to the School Committee.

Support Services Director Cornelius finally recommended that the School Committtee hire a mechanical engineer for $20,000 to work full time in Newton North. The old high school on the Newtonville site used to have a full-time boiler fireman required by state law for the high-pressure boiler, but the new low-pressure steam system doesn't require one.

Cornelius said one is needed for the complicated systems at North which he can't expect the custodial staff to handle.

But because of several questions from Committee members about conflicts of duties with the senior custodian, Superintendent Fink withdrew the request until a job description is drawn up.

The engineer would also watch over the swimming pool which was closed this week because the chlorine balancing machine broke down.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink to study possible reorganization of grades K-8.

With the help of a study by Director of Research and Program Vincent Silluzio the committee will report to the full School Committee by May 15. The superintendent and a PTA representative will also be on the committee.

After each Committee member publicly gave their impression of the subcommittee recommendations, Superintendent Fink agreed to Mayor Mann's wishes and gave his impression of the discussion.

Speaking to Henry Delicata who voted against closing Memorial in 1975, 1976, and 1977, he said, "Henry, I think it's clear we didn't need a study. You haven't changed your mind."

Fink noted that Prince favors hastening the four-phase plan to consolidate and reorganize schools, but he didn't want to take the first step, the only one planned over the next four years.

Chairman Mandell led the fight to keep open Memorial, the school in Oak Hill Park in which he lives.

"There is an unwritten contract that children should be able to walk to school," he said' noting the social and economic importance of the school.

Quoting from a letter by Eliot Cohen, chairman of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee, Mandell said there is a possiblity of 112 condominium units and 156 rental units to be built on the south side of the city. where enrollment is dropping the fastest of any areas in the city.

Land Use Chairman Cohen warned against closing both Memorial and Oak Hill schools.

Mandell also said Oak Hill Park is ready for a turnover in housing from older to younger families, and warned of setting the precedent in the city of busing children to fill empty spaces in other schools.

School Committee member Kaplan said Monday morning in a telephone interview that she favors closing Oak Hill School and moving all the students to Countryside.

This could be done by 1981, Kaplan said, according to information from statistician Silluzio.

Prince, who with Kaplan and Ash were on the subcommittee to study the closings, voted against closing Memorial because he wants it available for the Underwood School when that school is closed for renovations.

Prince had voted to recommend closing Memorial when the subcommittee voted its recommendation two weeks ago.

water in several communities in the state.

Excessive salt can cause or aggravate hypertension, public health authorities say.

A controversy still goes on about the effects of salt on street trees and lawns, with some experts now trying to determine how much salt will kill or severely damage vegetation and others trying to find salt-resistant species.

The damage to cars, shoes and floors is of less concern but should be considered.

The state Department of Public Works last winter experimented with the use of a smaller proportion of salt to sand on state highways. On the basis of results, the DPW reduced its salt use by 20 percent this winter for an equivalent amount of snow.

The state has reportedly planned a series of hearings on salt usage to take place withing the next two weeks.

Salt is effective in melting ice and snow only when the temperature is above 27 degrees, Larson has said. Below that, he has pure sand spread.

Newton does not use calcium chloride, which melts ice at lower temperatures.

Larson said this week he will continue to use straight salt when he feels conditions warrant it, but added, "I always try to stay within the 3:1 ratio except in very bad conditions."

agreed that the continued use of the property as a school is the most desirable alternative

Therefore, the proposed sale will not have to go through the mayor's committee on the use of surplus municipal buildings

It still does have to go through the City Planning Committee, which will decide on whether the land should be sold and whether its use as a school is appropriate, then to the Finance Committee, which will hold a public hearing on the sale and advertise for bids

The city is not bound to accept the lowest bidder, and the Finance Committee will recommend the minimum price for which the land is to be sold. The Board of Aldermen will either approve or disapprove the sale, and recommend to the mayor, who may not abide by the recommendation.

Thomas pointed out that the amount of money offered by Solomon Schechter may not be important, in view of the saving to the city in not having to maintain an empty building and in having community space provided of the all-night parking ban because everybody will leave their cars in the street even when they have enough room, he thinks.

Edwin Wiest, chairman of the Traffic Commission, said he favors sticker parking, which would identify cars allowed to park on the street.

Ald. David Cohen submitted a proposal for sticker parking more than a year ago It was approved by the Board of Aldermen but requires special legislation by the General Court, which failed to give permission to Newton to implement the plan

The sticker parking legislation has been resubmitted this year, Cohen said

Open campus being studied at South High

Students at Newton South High School are being asked to join in an assessment of the open campus program that allows students to go anywhere during their free periods.

Principal Van Seasholes said this week that the first of eight scheduled meetings open to all students and faculty was only attended by eight people, three of whom were students.

Memos had been sent to homerooms announcing the Monday meetings, but in one regular class six out of 20 students reported hearing the notice. Principal Seasholes admitted this is a "perennial problem" since neither his school nor Newton North has a centrally operated intercom system.

Seasholes plans to decide by the end of March on whether or not to curtail the program.

The principal received a report in November from a 14-member faculty committee that studied the open campus principle in 11 public and private schools nearby.

It recommended more extensive orientation for sophomores and that sophomores and all students new to the school be on a "managed" program for one semester until they prove they are able to meet the educational and social standards of the school.

Currently under open campus students can leave the school, go to the library or cafeteria, or attend special classes when they have no regularly scheduled class.

Seasholes thinks that some problems with open campus would be solved if more activities that interest students are offered during their free periods.

Three NYC women face robbery charges

Three New York City women awaiting trial in Chelsea were charged with the strongarm robbery of an 81-year-old Newton Corner woman last Wednesday.

The three women were allegedly identified by the victim who viewed police mug shots. The three women were served with Newton warrants at about noon Monday.

The trio allegedly took $575 from the victim after forcing their way into a home near the Brighton line last Wednesday at 12:30 p.m.

Two women held the victim on the first floor of the house while a third went upstairs and took the money. The left with the money in a paper bag.

The women charged with robbery, strongarm, over $200 are Geya Papocha, 25, and Lurdi Varoca, 22, both of 77 E. 16th St., New York, and Mammie Barabrocky, 45, who listed her address just as New York City. The women face similar charges in Chelsea, Newton police said.

Chief Preble has been with the Newton Fire Department since May, 1939, when he was assigned to Station 3 in Newton Centre.

During World War 2, Preble served as a captain in the U.S. Signal Corps and after the war was assigned to Station 1 as a lieutenant. He was promoted to captain in March, 1954, and became an assistant chief in May, 1957.

Police bought from four stores Sunday

Newton police purchased a baking pan, a can of oil, a tube of glue, and sewing goods in from four stores in Newton Sunday to present as evidence that the stores were violating the state's blue laws.

Police Chief William Quinn said Tuesday that his department will continue enforcing the laws that prohibit the sale of certain goods on Sunday until such time as the legislature changes the laws.

The three CVS stores in Newtonville, Newton Centre, and Four Corners and the Rix Discount Store in Newton Centre were all cited Sunday, Chief Quinn said. These stores were among the 11 stores cited for similar vioaltion violations before Christmas.

The managers of the 11 stores are scheduled to appear in Newton District Court March 1.

Police also shopped at the Medi Mart in Newton Centre but found cloths over the items that are not supposed to be sold on Sundays.

Chief Quinn said the various items purchased by police for evidence in court will be sold at a public police auction.

Increasing mileage for gas guzzler

By CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A college professor says you can get better mileage and cut pollution on your old car.

Dr. William D. Guentzler, associate professor of the Department of Industrial Studies at San Diego State University bases this contention on some research he has done. It simply shows gasoline mileage on older cars can be increased by as much as 20 per cent and pollutants decreased considerably with installation of electronic ignition systems.

Most new cars have such systems. Older ones don't. A kit to install one in an older car can be had for $50. Guentzler says the handy home auto mechanic can usually manage the installation.

Guentzler feels so strongly about the value of installing electronic ignitions in older cars, he has been pushing for a state law to require them.

But, since electronic ignitions are not now required in older cars, Guentzler says car owners should consider their advantages against some other factors before deciding to put them in.

On the plus side, in addition to better mileage and less pollution, are more time between needed tuneups, increased spark plug life and elimination of breaker points in the distributor.

Just two miles a gallon in better mileage would quickly cover the investment in the new ignition for a car driven 12,000 to 20,000 miles a year. But the driver must also consider whether he will keep the car for a while or whether the ignition unit he installs can be adapted to another vehicle.

Guentzler got into the project because of a request from a local official, San Diego County Supevisor Lou Conde. Now Conde has called on the state resources board to heed the results as another option for meeting air quality standards.

"With a 5 per cent cut here and an 8 per cent cut there," Conde said, "we can put together a package which will save a lot of energy and pollutants."

As for the project itself, Guentzler used three different types of electronic ignition systems on 18 different student cars. They ranged from a Datsun to a Cadillac. There were four, six and eight cylinder models. Some had standard transmissions, some automatic.

All vehicles were given a pretuneup diagnosis — including replacing of wires, points, etc., if required — and a post-tuneup diagnosis before installation of the electronic ignition systems. After several months of city driving the vehicles were given a comprehensive review of exhaust emissions and economy of operations.

The conclusion: All achieved improved gasoline mileage, increased horsepower, reduced HC emissions and reduced NOX emissions.

Spark plug gap is another thing that has a great deal to do with improved mileage, Guentzler says. That is an area that needs to be researched more thoroughly.

"I personally think that we need to do more research in the field of spark plug gaps and joint utilization with the electronic ignition system to improve the overall economy of engines on the highway today," he said.

More than a year ago Congress passed a law that encourages all states to adopt motor vehicle regulations permitting drivers to turn right on a red signal, after coming to a stop. The lawmakers reasoned that such a change would speed traffic and thereby reduce fuel consumption and cut down on automotive air pollution.

The trouble is that some states are convinced that such a change does not fit driving patterns in their particular state. When these states refused to go along with right-on-red rules, the country was left, in many cases, with a mish-mash of overlapping regulations that can befuddle the most careful driver.

Take the Washington, D. C., metropolitan area, for example, which is sufficiently compact that many motorists drive in three jurisdictions on any given day. Effective Jan. 1, drivers in Virginia were freed to turn right on red after stopping unless there is a sign specifically PROHIBITING it. Maryland drivers can turn right on red after stopping only when there is a sign specifically PERMITTING it. In the area's other jurisdiction, the District of Columbia, a driver is NEVER permitted a right turn on red.

There is an immense chance of confusion. The state borders on many streets running from the District of Columbia into Maryland are not even marked and the driver may well be unaware of what jurisdiction he is in. If he knows, he will have to remember the rules in effect.

And while Washington area residents may master the complex set of rules, the millions of tourists who flock into the area annually cannot be expected to keep them straight. The tourists will tend to follow the rules of their home states which may or may not conform with jurisdictions they are in.

Traffic officials in the three jurisdictions are well aware of the possibilities for confusion and promise to go easy on violators. This could save the uninitiated with a good excuse from a citation. But if a collision results from the confusion, authorities may not recognize ignorance as an excuse.

Given time, the situation could improve. Maryland state officials promise to seek legislative approval for the change to the Virginia system this year.

But the District of Columbia is adamant. It refuses to change and cites an already large number of pedestrian deaths as its reason. Nearly half of the people killed on D. C. streets are pedestrians rather than motorists, and traffic officials say right turns on red could lead to an even higher figure.

Motor club officials, who favor right-on-red rules, take partial exception to the D. C. stand. They concede that at congested downtown intersections, it may be inappropriate to permit the right turns. But, they argue, many of the District's intersections are in residential sections where there is virtually no increase in danger to pedestrians.

While the federal government encouraged adoption of right-turn laws, it offered little guidance to states on what kind of regulations should be adopted. Many states, no doubt, would appreciate a suggestion. Uniformity in traffic regulations is a painless way to ease the plight of motorists. ★★★

CBers help to slow traffic

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

There may not be as many "bears" out there as the army of civilian band radio operators would lead you to believe.

And the "b e a r s" or "Smokeys," as police are known to the the CB knights of the road, have decided the exaggerated reports are helping slow down traffic.

A UPI survey of state police and traffic safety officials nationwide shows most believe the CBers' radio reports of patrol car locations are more help than hindrance.

"It's O.K. as far as we're concerned," says Lt. Jim Williams, head of the Oregon State Police Communications Division. "It sounds like there are twice as many policemen out there as there really are. If they want to report where we are we couldn't care less. We want people to know where we are. That's the reason for marked police cars.

"If you listen to a CB radio when they're passing 'Smokey reports' back and forth, it sounds like there must be a dozen policemen out there, when in truth there may be just one radar unit and one chase car."

In an experiment, about one-fourth of Oregon's state police cars have been equipped with CB units to receive calls from civilians about accidents, drunk or reckless drivers, road conditions, etc. Results are being evaluated to determine if the entire fleet should be outfitted.

Williams said 10 drunk drivers were arrested during October and 30 accidents reported as a direct result of CB reports.

Some states have used federal grants to buy CB radios for their patrol cars. Others have applied for federal money, but dozens of patrolmen aren't waiting for Uncle Sam. They've installed CB radios in their patrol cars at their own expense.

"They've developed good relationships with other CBers, and there have been numerous occasions when information derived from CBers has been more timely than troop notification and has resulted in quicker police response to the scene of a highway accident," said Adam Berluti, spokesman for the Connecticut State Police.

Most police and safety officials said Smokey reports have slowed drivers to the 55 mph limit on highways.

In Mississippi, two CBers had a better idea. They drove sideby-side at the legal 55 mph on a two-lane highway, backing up traffic for miles. When CBers caught in the jam began calling the pair "Moving Parking Lot," they responded to the handle, and just kept cruising along.

The commander of the Indiana State Police Public Information Office is among those who credit Smokey reports with reducing the number of speeders by less spectacular means. But Lt. Richard W Jones also said the reports could put a trooper in a very dangerous situation if he were looking for a criminal who had a CB in his car.

In Nevada, Lt. Col. Bernard Dehl, deputy superintendent of the state highway patrol, said the reports helped reduce the state's highway death toll this year, despite an increase in traffic.

Police and safety spokesmen who shrug off Smokey reports as erroneous include Sgt. Alan Schmidt of the Arizona Department of Public Safety. He said they usually get fouled up because they pass through several persons.

In Kansas, patrolmen who hear the reports often turn around to head for an area CBers have broadast as unpatrolled.

The few detractors in the UPI survey included a spokesman for the Mississippi State Highway Police, who said the patrol uses about 50 unmarked cars statewide to offset Smokey warnings. He said the unmarked cars have increased by 2-1 the arrest rate of drivers doing 70 mph or over.

Sometimes a Smokey report can backfire, as William P. "Slingshot" Coleman of Fresno, Calif. learned during a crosscountry vacation.

Coleman was giving Smokey reports, "... fully confident because I had a four-wheeler at my front door ... and an 18-wheeler acting as my back door." He was traveling at 70 mph when he spotted a highway patrol car and started to report it. Before he could do so, his radio switched on, and a voice said:

"Hey, little Pinto in the westbound lane, you are doing 73 and either you slow it down or I'm going to turn around and getcha."

"I was so thankful that I didn't even report the Smokey's location to the other listeners," Coleman said.

Who said social debuts are in demise?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The debutante coming-out party, a fixture of Americana since colonial days, comes on strong again — even in the face of the nation's vast changes in social customs.

In fact, many sources say that the debutante cotillions, where there is a group presentation of young women, and the private debuts are in a resurgence that surprises all those who thought the tumults of the 1960s had undone them once and for all.

There is a mass comeback of a tradition as American as apple pie, as sacred as motherhood and the flag. Formal coming-out parties predate the founding of the republic and among the most exclusive are the Philadelphia Assembly, first held in 1748, St. Cecilia's Society in Charleston, S. C., 1762, and Baltimore's Bachelor's Cotillion, 1796.

The formal bow to society of young women of the upper social strata — either because of lineage or money or both — has just had its biggest year in numbers, both in terms of debuts and the other assorted parties in their honor.

"Times are happier," said Peter Duchin, one of society's premier music makers. "The kids feel very definitely the tenor of the times."

There also must be more money to spend. "Parents now manage to give both a debut for their daughters and still send them off on a trip to Europe," said Duchin, the son of the famous pianist, Eddie, and the man in charge of music for the inaugural balls celebrating the swearing-in in Washington of Jimmy Carter.

"Debuts have picked up considerably after being on the quiet side five or six years ago," said Lester Lanin, who's been one of society's musicians since the end of World War II. "What's wrong with a lot of nice girls looking pretty and having fun? Debuts give the girls a chance, too, to pay off obligations to the boys who have taken them skiing and the like."

Lanin has been busy all fall and winter with debuts in Dallas, Memphis, New York, Cleveland, among other cities, and has dates scheduled for Shaker Heights, Ohio, and Grosse Pointe, Mich., two of the elite suburbs of socialites.

"I think I've played more debuts this year than any other since I've had a band," said Emery Davis, son of Meyer Davis, who used to be called society's band leader.

Emery Davis has had his own orchestras since 1958 and plays much of the social circuit including the prestigious New York Infirmary's benefit cotillion.

The reaction of debs generally is that the parties are all one big bash and a lot of fun. Rarely did any comment that the parties were boring.

Katherine Nancy Gardner, one of the four special maids of honor at the 93-year-old Veiled Prophet in St. Louis said, "It's a good time ... you get to see people you haven't seen since school. It's a good party and we're all grateful."

Queen of the Veiled Prophet, one of the nation's most exclusive, was Cynthia Gray Danforth, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth. He is chancellor of Washington University and a member of the family which controls Ralston-Purina.

The Veiled Prophet has been marred by demonstrations by ACTION, a black activist organization in St. Louis, which claims the ball is racist. But Miss Gardner, daughter of John R. Gardner, a partner in an investment firm, said, "That's a past thing ... people aren't against society so much anymore. There's a different attitude among my friends compared to my older sister's friends. We're much more relaxed ... there's nothing snobby about it."

"I just had an immense amount of fun," said Virginia Helen Ingels, of Greenwich, Conn. The 17-year-old blonde, whose father, Evan, is an executive with Time magazine and whose grandfather is a retired General Motors executive, came out during the holidays at the International Debutante Ball in New York.

Miss Ingels, a student at the exclusive Greenwich Academy, was one of 52 debs (last year there were 49) from society internationally.

Guest of honor, in view of the Bicentennial, Mlle. Sabine Dubois de la Sabloniere, a direct descendant of the Marquis de Lafayette, the Frenchman who played a major role in the U.S. war for independence.

Miss Ingels' mother, who forewent her debut because of World War II, talked about the cost of her daughter's coming out. Well, she said, there was the $1,000 fee, most of which went for benefit of the Soldiers', Sailors' and Airmen's Club, $85 for each ticket including one for her daughter's "steady," James Bardwil, of Rye, N.Y., plus $400 for the traditional white ball gown (her daughter selected it last summer from Bergdorf Goodman, New York), the pre-debut parties including a bachelors' in November, and $35 each for the Waldorf Astoria dinner.

"It all does add up," said Mrs. Ingels. "But I hope Virginia will wear the dress again at graduation."

A United Press International survey of debutante holiday parties from Wilmington, Del., to San Francisco, from Boston to Los Angeles, reinforced the views of the orchestra leaders. Both the big presentation and the private debuts have risen in number, and in numbers of debs, in the last two years.

Carolyn Drews, a society writer in San Francisco, said that, "A few years ago girls had to be dragged, kicking and screaming. Now they are very willingly accepting it. Girls seem to be enjoying being a debutante now."

San Francisco's Debutante Cotillion was the biggest in years, said those who regularly observe the rite. Twenty-eight young women made their debut and the ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel was crowded with hundreds of guests.

"We were afraid of running out of food," said Mrs. Nion R. Tucker, honorary chairman of the party, one of several such events in the Bay area.

Reasons for revival of the ages-old tradition of introducing a daughter formally to society are many. Today, it's not just to please Mom and Dad or grandparents, although the upward mobility in money undoubtedly is a factor in many cases.

Cotillions and private debuts were all the rage in the 1950s. Then came the massive changes of the 1960s — when youth was turned off by the Vietnam War, the Civil Rights struggles, and its own rebellion against The Establishment with the likes of drugs, communal living, campus unrest, often violence.

Vietnam also reduced the number of young men to act as escorts even if a deb felt like a party. Somehow, with a war on, it seemed bad taste to have a splashy celebration at home.

One of the major changes is the increasing emphasis on benefits. Mrs. George Whitelaw, president of Marguerite Howell, Inc., a Boston-based group that plans and organizes society's and other balls, said most in the greater Boston area are in the name of some charity.

The Bal du Bois in Richmond benefits the Sheltering Arms Hospital, a free hospital. In Omaha, the Debutante Ball benefits the Omaha Symphony. In Atlanta, members of the Debutante Club gave a Christmas party for the Egleston's Children's Hospital.

In Chicago, the Passavant Cotillion, one of the major balls, raised funds for the Passavant Pavilion of the Northwestern Memorial Hospital. In Philadelphia, the 97th annual Charity Ball benefitted five hospitals in the area.

"Doing something for charity makes the participants feel better about spending," said Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer Strong, New York social press agent and longtime observer of the social scene.

Another trend is to make the parties family affairs instead of just a big evening or series of evenings for the young people. If it's a private debut, usually it's kept to a lunch, tea or dinner for family and close friends. For a bigger presentation, more friends and relatives from two or three generations can be drawn into the act.

Increasingly, the father-daughter opening is part of the presentation.

At the Memphis Country Club, this season, the girls and their fathers formed a long receiving line around the ballroom to start the party. In St. Louis, at the Fleur de Lis, a benefit for the Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children, fathers and daughters danced the opening to the traditional "Thank Heaven for Little Girls."

At the elite Raleigh, N. C., state-wide Debutante Ball, sponsored by the Terpsichorean Club, participants say having father around makes the whole round of parties more of "a family event."

"It's a real plus for fathers and daughters to have this time together," said Dr. Robert Franklin Poole, of Raleigh, whose daughter Cynthia Ann bowed this season. "We raised her to be independent but she'll always be my little girl."

The Terpsichorean Club, a private club consisting of men 21 to 35, has sponsored the deb ball since 1927, but the ball itself just celebrated its 50th anniversary. This year, some 200 girls were introduced to society, one of the largest numbers nationally. These debs have to be pretty durable — in all, there are about four months of pre-debut parties, most of them in the summer.

Times have changed another facet of coming-out parties. Now ethnic and racial groups have their own. In the Detroit-Grosse Pointe area, for instance, the lavish balls — the two Henry Ford II threw for his daughters cost close to $500,000 — have given way to more modest dances sponsored by black, Polish, Latvian and Hungarian groups.

Many balls, about 15 by the black community alone, are held in Detroit each summer by ethnic groups. The oldest organized by the black community is the Cotillion Club, Inc., dating from 1949. The club, a civic and charity group of black businessmen and professionals, permits any black girl to apply and usually about 30 are chosen for a June debut.

Parties similarly are now part of other big city scenes. In San Francisco's East Bay area each December, there is the Links Cotillion for black society. This season it had 28 debs who went through the traditional curtsy, the homage to parents, and the grand waltz. The Links, a group of women, raises funds through the cotillion for such things as the NAACP legal defense fund and day care centers. Links also has a party for debs in Los Angeles and recently an ItalianAmerican group held its party at the Bonaventure Hotel, the newest and swankiest in Los Angeles.

The vast resettlement of Cubans in the Miami area of Florida has led to another type of debut. The Cuban coming-out parties are called "quinces" and are staged on or near the girl's 15th birthday. They are traditional in both middle and upper class families.

The girl puts on a white quince dress, goes to Viscaya, the Dade County-owned old Deering estate, or the Japanese Garden on Watson Island to have her photo taken in elegant settings. Then the family and friends gather, perhaps to go to a class restaurant in Miami and a party later at a copy of a pre-Castro Havana nightclub. The girl's picture usually is carried in Miami's Spanish newspaper, Diario las Americas.

The cost for a coming-out party can run as low as the parent wants, or as high. One "bargain" is the New York Infirmary benefit — IF you can get on the debut list. This year, 75 debs bowed, at a membership cost of $150 with escort. But, as a spokesman said, "We always have a long waiting list."

At Omaha's Symphony Guild Ball, a deb's family of four can make the scene for $700, but then there are costs of the white formal, the corsage, the above-elbow gloves and the other trappings added in.

The cost for the San Francisco cotillion is a basic $1,500, per family, said Mrs. Nion R. Tucker, honorary chairman of the party. There is no charity involved. Each family pays and the price is up, she said, because the food costs more, the hotel costs more, the musicians cost more.

Lanin, Duchin and Davis all said rates for individual debuts or the group presentations depend on needs, but they definitely are higher than five years ago. They won't talk actual rates — "That's between the parents and us" — but the cost of an orchestra depends on the number of musicians, the hours played, and whether travel to out-of-city or out-ofstate also is involved. The cost could go from $1,000 to $15,000.

A word about the change in music — tradition takes over. At one time, rock music was the major item on the music menu. Now, said Lanin and Davis, rock has become traditional, blended into an evening along with waltz, fox trot, mazurka, Cole Porter and Irving Berlin. The classics give Grandma, Grandpa, Mom and Pop a chance to cut the rug too.

Different cities have different customs and seasons. The peak debut times in most parts of the country are June and the winter holiday weeks, when girls and escorts are out of school.

In Dallas, the deb season lasts from late October to late January, kicked off with the Idlewild Ball, in which young men members of the Idlewild Club sponsor from eight to 12 girls from the city's wealthiest families.

Some of the individual debuts have been merely spectacular, at which it is not unusual for 600 to 1,000 guests to attend.

At one of these this season, for debutante Brooke Stollenwerk, her father, Henry, a Dallas attorney, provided a circus, in the city's convention center. The affair included performing elephants, monkeys, trained dogs and sideshows. The cost of this party is not known but it is general knowledge in Dallas that many of the private parties have cost Daddy as much as $50,000.

Miss Stollenwerck said whatever negative feelings she might have had about becoming a deb disappeared quickly once she got into it. "I'm having the most wonderful time of my life," she said.

Amaryllis Notes — When it comes to picking out the showiest of all flowering bulbs indoors, it's pretty hard to beat the amaryllis. Many readers got a dormant bulb for Christmas, and they can't get over the size of the blossoms on long stems. You can still buy dormant bulbs and pot them up for January or February bloom. Use a container at least two inches wider than the diameter of the bulb. This allows one inch of soil around the side of the bulb. Most flowering size bulbs need a pot 5 or 6 inches in diameter.

Best soil for amaryllis is one that's moss or compost. Bonemeal, an old-time favorite, can be added to the soil at the rate of one tablespoonful to each 6 inch potful of soil. If you don't have rotted cow manure, simply double the amount of peat moss or compost. Perlite can be added if your soil is a bit heavy. Plant the bulb so that a third to a half of it is above the soil level. Water well, after potting. Grow in full light and keep the bulb in a night temperature of 55 to 65 degrees.

After flowering is finished, cut off the flower stems (to prevent seed formation) and move the plants back into a sunny window until spring. Do NOT dry the bulb off if you want it to blossom again next year. The after flowering,

Exceptional Imagination

Q. My son was born at 4:40 p.m. on Thursday, June 18, 1970, in Holyoke, Mass. Can you tell me how to guide him to make the most of his future? A.D.

A. June in 1970 was one of the months during which Daylight Savings Time was in effect in Massachusstts. Assuming that your son's time of birth was recorded in Daylight Savings Time, the planet Neptune was Rising in the First House in the Sign of the Zodiac Scorpio which was on the Ascendent. This indicates one with exceptional imagination and keen sensitivity to conditions in his environment.

He probably will relax best when he is where there is subdued or soft lighting and a generally quiet atmosphere. Even as a baby and youngster, music of the right vibration, the kind that he likes may prove relaxing. He will have a magnetic personality and a dreamy look in his eyes. This may at times be intense and at other times there may be a faraway look as if he is dreaming of distant places and things.

His Sun in Gemini and his Moon in Sagittarius both Favorably aspected by the planet Jupiter adds additional possibilities that he will love to travel to distant places. If he does not

Area residents appear in 'Dark of the Moon'

The Newton Country Players will be presenting the folk drama, "Dark of the Moon," as its third production of the season.

This comedy-drama by Howard Richardson and William Berney is based on the ballad of Barbara Allen and her relationship with a witch boy.

A large cast of area residents will play the roles of the various mountain people. The roles of Barbara Allen's parents will be performed by two Newton residents, Jane A. Yoffe and Larry Morris.

Jane Yoffe has played many roles in former Players productions including Mrs. Potts in "Picnic," Prudencia in "House of Bernarda Alba," Bar Maid in "Gold in the Hills" and a Factory Worker in "Pajama Game." She was stage manager for "The Weak Spot" at the Cafe Cino in New York. Jane appeared in Jean Sherpard's "Phantom of the Open Hearth" which was seen recently on Channel 2. She will be producing "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" for the Players in the Spring.

Another veteran of Players productions is Larry Morris. He has appeared locally as Howard Bevans in "Picnic," Professor in "South Pacific" and Vinnie in "The Odd Couple." He has also played Uncle Maxi and the Defending Angel with the Jewish Repertory Theatre in Brighton.

Skip Portney will be appearing as the mysterious Conjur Man in this next production. He recently produced and acted in the latest NCP production "How to Succeed in Business." He also produced "Picnic last season. His previous roles include Alan in "Boys in the Band," Marty Mendlesohn in "Dr. Fish" and Ray in "The Odd Couple." Portney recently appeared as an Ironworker in the Public Broadcasting production of "The Phantom of the Open Hearth."

A newcomer to the Players is P. Bradley Armacot who will play Marvin Hudgens. He has performed many lead roles in dinner theaters and in college productions. Some of his favorite roles include Arthur in "Camelot," Felix in "The Odd Couple," John Adams in "1776," The King in "The King and I," Talythybious in "Trojan Women" and Dysart in "Equus." While a student at Glasgow University in Glasgow, Scotland, he appeared as such characters as Grumio in "Taming of the Shrew," Spintho in "Androcles and the Lion" and Lear in "King Lear."

Peter Benjamin will also be appearing with the Players for the first time. He recently was seen as the Ziegfield Tenor in the Sudbury Players production of "Funny Girl." He played many roles in the Vokes Theater version of "Thurber Carnival." He has appeared in the Opera Company of Boston productions of "Flying Dutchman," "Faust," "Barber of Seville" and "Moses and Aaron," under the direction of Sarah Caldwell.

The Newton Country Players will present "Dark of the Moon" at the Pomroy House February 11, 12, 13, 18 and 19. For ticket information contact James Sloane at 244-2160.

The Pocket Mime Theater will be appearing Saturday, Jan. 22, at Pine Manor Junior College in Ellsworth Hall at 8 p.m. Tickets went on sale Monday at the campus store. For more information, call 731-7089.

Polly Egelson shows sculpture in one-woman Library exhibit

Polly Egelson of Lower Falls is exhibiting her work in a one-woman show, "Sculptor at Work" at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, Jan. 5 - 31. The public is invited to meet the artist at a reception at the Main Library, Tuesday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m.

Working in bronze, fired clay, and stone, Egelson, with a curve of a line, or by a gesture, creates small figurative works that are full of grace and balance and activate a mood in the mind of the viewer.

"The Gymnast," a bronze figure 20 inches high, is full of zest and vitality. Her flowing hair, arched neck and graceful arms reflect the joy and the quality of "aliveness" Egelson strives for. In "The Window" the viewer can see the female figure as welcoming the square lines of her shoulders and arm balanced by the rectangular shape of the window.

The show at the Main Library also includes sketches, casts, working plans and explanatory notes that demonstrate Egelson's artistic process.

A graduate of Radcliffe and the Maryland Institute of Art, Egelson also studied at the DeCordova Museum with William Wyman and Pete Abate. She is a past president of the New England Sculptors' Association and the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission.

Currently she is a member of the Board of the NCAC, the Copley Society, the N.E. Sculptors' Association, the Cambridge Art Association and the Boston Visual Artists Union.

Egelson is an instructor at the Brockton Art Centre and in the Newton Community Schools program.

Main Library hours are Monday-Friday 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Sunday 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.

Puzzles displayed at library

Malinda H. Stapleford of Newton is exhibiting hand-crafted wooden puzzles at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner now through Jan. 31.

The puzzles, including rabbits, bears, 'fire-breathing' dragons, frogs and monkeys, are hand cut with a band saw. They are cut from two-inch thick basswood and are then smoothed with a small belt sander.

Malinda began making puzzles eight years ago for her children. The non-toxic colors and the fine line drawings were all done by hand. Now, busy with heavy production schedules, Malinda uses a silkscreen process on the hand cut pieces.

The puzzles, popular with adults and children, have a sculptural quality and appeal to both the eye and hand. Older children and adults prefer the dragons and crabs, while the younger children choose the mouse, the rabbits and the snail.

Other pieces in the exhibit illustrate the scope and variety of wood sculpture possible using only the two power tools.

There are cut-out animal shapes that can be used as napkin rings; an armadillo and a bird made from wood scraps and planed thin by the saw blade; and animals cut from lucite.

The exhibit continues through the end of January.

Library hours are 9-9 Monday-Friday, 9-5 Saturday and 1-4 Sunday.

Naturalist guest of Art. Assn.

The Newton Art Association will have as its guest artist Thursday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m., local artist and businessman Angelo Urso

The meeting will be held in the Newton Highland's Women's Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands. He will demonstrate his ability as a naturalist painter, depicting wildlife in its natural habitant.

Urso is known for his realistic style of painting in which he refines his subject, whether it be still life, landscape or marine painting, to the most minute detail. He is equally adroit in all mediums and has had many exhibits of his work in the Boston area.

He has been the recipient of the James King Bonnar Award three times and most recently received recognition for a pastel landscape at the Newton Art Association's Annual Spring Exhibit.

Urso is a member of the Watertown Art Association, as well as the Newton Art Association, and has previously demonstrated as both artist and lecturer for these groups.

Members and guests are invited to attend. There is a guest fee of $1. Refreshments will be served following the demonstration.

Children on tour will give 'rumplestiltskin'

The Boston Children's Theatre production of "Rumpelstiltskin" goes on tour beginning Jan. 29 to bring the fun and excitement of live theatre to audiences outside the Boston area.

The touring company will be available for bookings weekends and during school vacations from Jan. 29 through May 1. Many organizations have found an appearance of this unique group of "children performing for children" to be an excellent fund-raising activity. Interested sponsors should contact the theater immediately for a date.

This adaptation of one of the favorite fairy tales by the Brothers Grimm has been dramatized by Robin Lord, who will also direct. Ms. Lord, who was "Story Lady Robin" on WHDH for many years, will serve as narrator to aid in transitions from one scene or passage of time to the next.

For touring company information write or call the Boston Children's Theatre, 263 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, 02116, 536-3324.

Hamilton closing reversed, Weeks closing on agenda

The School Committee decided to drop its plan to close Hamilton School in 1981 at its meeting Monday night, and one member put the closing of Weeks Junior High in 1978 on the agenda for the Feb. 14 meeting.

School Committee members Henry Delicata and Mayor Theodore Mann changed their votes to provide the 5-4 majority to rescind the 4-3-2 vote taken at 2:30 a.m. Jan. 13. which passed the planned closing.

School Committee member Michael LeConti, who put the closing of Weeks on the agenda, joined the three members of the declining enrollment subcommittee in recommending closing Hamilton in 1981.

They are Subcommittee Chairman Paul Ash, Honora Kaplan, and Edward Prince.

Chairman Alvin Mandell, Robert Cohen, and Manuel Beckwith were the original three votes against the 1981 closing and were joined by Mann and Delicata to pass the rescission.

The motion to rescind was made by Cohen who said part of the subcommittees long-range plan involved not destroying possiblities for future closings, which he thought the vote for the 1981 closing might do.

He also considers his move placing human values above monetary values, and asked why there was no strong testimony from educators on the educational impact of closings, and why nothing was said about losing the Hamilton program.

Beckwith, who has supported closing schools for four years, said the vote to close Hamilton in 1981 was ridiculous because there will be two elections for School Committee before the school is closed.

Beckwith suggested he would have favored a recommendation to future school committees to study and adopt the subcommittee's report. School Committee Chairman Mandell nodded in agreement.

LeConti said he would have voted for the Hamilton closing in 1977 but he would not know what to do with the school building that has a 234-student capacity. The enrollment is now 147, with 110 students coming from the Lower Falls area.

Alderman John Stewart, PTA President Roger Broome, and Principal Joan Warner told how the community depends on the school for a social center, how the the school is isolated inside Rte. 128 and a golf course, and how little economic savings there would be.

Honora Kaplan explained the Catch 22 of the school closing decision with the School Committee wanting to know how an empty building will be used before it votes, but the City Hall officials not making any plans until the School Committee votes.

Kaplan and Ash both advised the Lower Falls community that a vote to rescind

Who should clear sidewalks?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
of the Graphic staff

In a city with 65,000 cars, the pedestrian gets short shrift. Especially when it comes to snow.

After five years of relatively mild winters, when unshoveled sidewalks caused few problems, the recent storms' obliteration of sidewalks has brought forth another plea that homeowners be required by law to clear their sidewalks.

In its consideration of the request for an ordinance, the Legislation & Rules Committee Monday night heard three citizens in favor of such a law but thought up reasons why it can't be done.

Susan Silbey of Auburndale, safety chairman for the Williams School PTA, said in her experience "it is extraordinary for people to think the city will plow the sidewalks." She advocates a system of issuing tickets to violators, if a new law is passed.

Many residents may think that the city is obligated to plow every sidewalk, will plow every sidewalk, or that it does not matter whether the sidewalk is cleared.

But this year the city sidewalk plows could not meet the challenge and at one point were all out of service but one.

In any event, the city schedules only certain school routes for plowing, and any more than that it purely a stroke of good luck.

In Newton's ordinances of 1922, there

Carter's pardon helps few, dismays many

By RICHARD WILLIAMS
of the Graphic staff

Two men orginally from Newton have quietly accepted President Carter's pardon for resisting the Vietnam War, but other men are still crippled by dishonorable discharges and wounds from the war.

Those who apparently will benefit from the pardon are Jeff Blustein of 125 Oxford Rd., Newton Centre, and a Newton man whose father wants no publicity on the matter.

According to Pat Simon of Newton, coordinator of the Goldstar Parents for Amnesty, Blustein has "carved out a life for himself" in Canada and plans to stay.

The Blustein family could not be reached this week, but Simon said the parents are relieved that their son can visit home without fear of being arrested. She noted that if he wanted to return home he would have to reapply for citizenship since he is now a Canadian citizen.

Simon, who lost one son in the Vietnam War, regrets that deserters and those with less than honorable discharges were not affected by the pardon.

She estimates that 90 percent of the dishonorable discharges were given out by the commanding officers without due process and for such reasons as political protest and resisting racial injustice.

"I think Carter did exactly what he didn't want to do — cater to the privileged"' Simon said, noting that people with money could go to college or get braces to avoid the draft, and those without money were often those who deserted after induction.

Anita Greenbaum, one of the early antiwar activists in Newton, was pleased with the pardon but said, "I hope he (Carter) will consider complete amnesty" to include desrerters.

Simon and Greenbaum have been actively collecting signatures since early last summer to ask the new president to grant complete amnesty. These will be presented to Carter at the end of a veteran's vigil in Washington from Feb. 1-10.

Patricia Bowles of Newton Corner can't make plans to leave her home for any length of time because her son broke down about six months after returning from Vietnam.

When her son filled out conscientious objector papers overseas, officers tore them up in front of his face, she said.

Her son, John, received a dishonorable discharge because he was "undesirable," the Army forms said.

In order to upgrade the discharge to honorable and become eligible for veterans' benefits, she worked for four years writing to Congressmen and Selective Service officials.

She was told it would take 10 years, but she got quick action when she threatened Cong. Thomas "Tip" O'Neill with an

City facing up to zoning violations

Two two-block areas of the city will be scrutinized for zoning violations in the next month or so in the city's first attempt to deal with widespread disregard of the zoning ordinances.

The inspection of property will carried out by the Building Department in a joint effort with the Planning Department to determine the size and degree of the problem of zoning violations.

Results of the sample will determine how large-scale further investigation should be.

The choices facing the city then will be whether to go all out in enforcement or to change the zoning ordinances to reflect existing conditions.

The existence of numerous illegal apartments in single-family houses is well known, but so far the city has been unwilling to enforce laws against the homeowner in most instances.

Two reasons for failure to enforce the zoning regulations in these cases are immediately apparent. Many people, especially those with relatively low incomes, would be put out of their apartments, and some homeowners would not be able to keep homes without the extra income provided by the illegal apartments.

Further complicating enforcement of single-family residence requirements is the absence of a definition of a "family." The Land Use Committee and the Law

Peabody apartments get first OK

"Clear preference" was voted by the City Planning Committee Monday night for a developer-architect who will preserve the Peabody School and Bigelow House while converting the two Oak Hill buildings to housing containing at least 27 units.

The committee sent the matter on to the Finance Committee for a decision on whether to accept the purchase price offered, $377,000, and the proposal in general.

The proposal was one of eight received in response to requests for plans for reuse of the buildings. The Peabody School, formerly used by the School Department for handicapped children, has been closed, and the Bigelow House, designed by famed architect H. H. Richardson in the late 19th century, has been partially restored and accepted by the national register of historic places.

The Newton Historic Preservation Association, a citizen group formed to preserve historic buildings, submitted a proposal to convert only the Bigelow House.

The committee recommended that Jung-Brannen, the developer it prefers, work with the Historic Preservation Association to incorporate certain architectural goals of the association, whose proposal did not conform to stated requirements of the request for proposal and therefore was not considered.

The Jung-Brannen conversion of the Peabody School would include the provision of 60 parking spaces, a swimming pool and two tennis courts.

The proposal would create five apartments in the Bigelow House and 22 in the school building and would comply with the Board of Aldermen's policy of requiring 10 percent of new apartments to be for low-income persons.

Jung-Brannen Associates did not provide information on what real estate taxes might be expected from the development of the property.

Efficiency expert turns creative

Leon Apters

by CAROL BIRMINGHAM
of the Graphic Staff

Changing jobs has become a trait of American society. Fewer people are entering careers that will become their lifelong vocations. One person who has recently begun a new career as a brass-smith and jeweler is Leon Apters, 47 Clark St., Newton Centre.

Born in Roxbury in 1939, Leon and his family moved to Newton in 1954, and he graduated from Newton High School in 1957. He later received a degree in business administration from Boston University.

After graduation, Apters went to work as an efficiency expert and remained in this field for 14 years.

The business experience was neither as pleasant nor as profitable as expected, so when he met and later married his wife, Sandy, Apters was ready for a change. He told a close friend and silversmith, "I'd like to do something creative."

Adept with his hands and possessor of a fine imagination, Apters thought about the things that he'd like to do. He enjoyed working with detail—he has two model sailing ships with exact rigging designs; he had remodeled his home, featuring woodbeam ceilings and louvres; he was also an accomplished photographer.

Then last February, Apters' sister asked for his help and it developed into his job.

His sister, a resident of Florida, wanted him to design a scarf ring to be sold with her personalized scarfs.

Interested in the request and in working with jewelry, Apters began to teach himself the crafting processes involved in working with brass, silver, and gold. He also worked with cloisonne, a colored decoration made of enamels poured into a design outlined with bent wire or metal strips.

While learning, designing, and experimenting with these three materials, Leon Apters decided to spend some time observing other craftsmen and refining his own work.

Last summer, he and his wife, a teacher in Norwood for the past eight years, lived in Hyannis while Apters was employed as a brass-smith by the J.S. Patten Company. He later founded his own company—A Touch of Brass.

Now, Apters has a new accessory for winter clothes— extra-large scarf rings.

These scarf rings are a fashion plus for the season. Functional and attractive, Leon Apters has 3" diameter scarf rings in brass, silver, and 10 carat gold. The rings are ideal for the heaviest scarf.

An enlargement of the 1 ½" diameter ring that he made for his sister's scarfs, these large scarf rings come in round or oval shapes, and the gold rings can be monogrammed.

The crafting process begins with the raw material being cut into shape. The object is then heat treated, annealed, with a jeweler's torch, and forged on an anvil.

Newton Graphic wins award for excellence

The Newton Graphic was ranked among the best newspapers in New England last week when it won second place for "general excellence" in its class.

The award was given by the New England Press Association in the largest newspaper competition in New England. There are four classes of weeklies. Classes are based on circulation. First, second and third place awards are given in each class.

Contest winners were announced at the 28th annual awards dinner, held last Friday night at the Sheraton-Boston and attended by a record 600 newspaper people.

Teachers' federation opens Newton office

The Newton Federation of Teachers, Local 3282, AFT, AFL-CIO, recently opened its new office at 259 Walnut St., Newtonville.

President Sheila Enright welcomed teachers at an informal office warming this week.

Frank Martin, executive secretary-treasurer of the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers, and Robert Marland and Alison Long, also from the MFT, were on hand to congratulate the Newton local and answer questions.

The NFT was chartered Sept. 1, 1974. Under the leadership of Louise Taylor, Jessie McChesney, Jon Neal, Judith Eyal and Sheila Enright, the union worked closely with Paul Devlin, associate executive secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers, to broaden its support.

Officers for 1976 - 1977 are Ms. Enright, president; Vin Bronson, vice-president; Judith Eyal, treasurer; Jim McDade, corresponding secretary; and David Moore, recording secretary.

The NFT hopes to have at least 30 percent of the Newton teachers in its ranks by March when it can, with that much support, request that the State Labor Relations Commission call an election to determine who will bargain for the teachers before the School Committee.

The NFT will not say how many authorization cards it now has to present to the state board.

The Newton Teachers Association led by Richard Cocharan, president, is currently negotiating with the School Committee.

The NTA has an office in Newton North High School.

The in-service training program began Jan. 10 at fire headquarters. It is a 24-hour course.

Presently, the police department has 81 emergency medical technicians, one cadet and two auxiliary officers, the latter as volunteers, who took the 81-hour EMT course. The fire depar.ment has 10 people who have completed the course.

Instructors have been drawn from both departments and at the conclusion of the training program, all members and all ranks of both departments will either be qualified EMT's or qualified under the First Responder program.

Capt. Richard Duffy and Lt. Harold Bailey are the program coordinators.

Instructors are: Patrol Officers John Coffey, Donald Crehan, Joseph Doherty' Mary Holzman, Linda Glenn and Lt. Bailey of the fire department.

Following the first phase, the responder course will be completed at the Police Academy.

Housing services gets settlement

By PRISCILLA LEITH

The Newton Housing Services Commission is $50,000 richer as the result of a court case just settled against the builder of Norumbega Gardens, an elderly housing project in Auburndale.

The State Appeals Court has upheld a $29,600 judgment handed downover two years agoin favor of the Newton Housing Authority and against the Cumberland Construction Co., Inc.

The decision also allows the Housing Services Commission, successor to the NHA, to keep $20,000 withheld from Cumberland at the end of construction in August, 1970, according to Atty. Harry Daniels who argued the case for the NHA.

Defects in the roofing job and the exterior doors were the bases for the litigation, which dragged on for over six years and involved NHA, Cumberland and various subcontractors.

Despite repairs made by both Cumberland and the Richard E. Moore Co., a subcontractor, the roofs of the buildings leaked in, especially winter.

The leaks damaged first floor apartments and the central common hallways of the buildings.

The litigation was begun by Santorelli Brothers, Inc., a masonry subcontractor, who brought suit against both Cumberland and the NHA seeking money allegedly owed by NHA to Cumberland and by Cumberland to Santorelli.

Cumberland then brought a claim alleging that NHA owed it money under the general contract.

NHA, in turn, countersued Cumberland, alleging that Cumberland's performance of the general contract was defective.

American Employers Insurance Co., the guarantor of Cumberland's bond, was later added as a defendant in the case.

Construction of Norumbega Gardens began Aug 4, 1969.

Cumberland's subcontract with Moore for installation of roofing provided that Moore was to line the gutters with sheetmetal of a specified alloy and that it was to install them according to the manufacturer's recommended practices.

The court found that Moore failed to install as the manufacturer recommended, and it ordered Moore to pay $38,929 to Cumberland.

Santorelli was awarded $2,392 from Cumberland.

Cumberland and its bonding agent were, in turn, found liable for the roof defects .

A court appointed master concluded that Cumberland had breached its general contract and awarded damages.

Cumberland attacked the master's report, but lost, and the court found in favor of NHA.

On the door issue' the NHA sought damages for Cumberland's installation of defective doors at Norumbega Gardens.

Cumberland sued Del's Manufacturing Co. which had supplied the doors, and Del's then brought action for damages against V.P. Winter Distributing Co., from which it had obtained the doors.

The court awarded Cumberland $12,654 from Del's and the same amount to Del's from Winter.

NHA won $29,620 from Cumberland and American Employers for the roof defects and the doors.

Cumberland took the 1974 decision to the State Appeals Court, where it was argued a year ago.

Associate Justices Edmund Kelville, Reuben Goodman and Christopher Armstrong upheld the Superior Court judgement in a Jan. 3 decision.

George Michaels, attorney for Cumberland, said Saturday that the decision will not be appealed further.

Mann seeks fairness in PW funds allocation

Mayors of three Massachusetts cities that were passed over in allocation of the $52 million federal public works money met with U.S. Sens. Edward Brooke and Edward Kennedy in Washington last week on an amendment to the federal Public Works Assistance Act.

Mayor Theodore Mann of Newton and the mayors of Waltham and Springfield are seeking support for a $4 billion increase in federal funding.

Mann said this week he fears that "even in the next go-round Newton simply will be left out again," and is also seeking a change in the formula for distribution of the money.

The act was designed to put people to work quickly on public works projects. Newton's application for $2.9 million for street repair and reconstruction was denied.

The mayor commented further that he thinks the denial of applications of such cities as Waltham and Newton is a "crime." "This is a pathetic misuse of funds," the mayor said. "I can't think of a better use than on roads — everybody uses them."

Mayor Mann said he understands that the Congressional Oversight Committee is looking into whether approved applications from communities awarded money were properly filled in according to the law.

The mayors have planned another meeting with Sen. Kennedy this week in his Boston office.

Newtonville man announces bid for School Committee

Dennis Becker of Newtonville this week announced his candidacy for the School Committee from Ward 2.

Becker, who lives at 63 Elm Rd., Newtonville, made the following statement in announcing his candidacy:

"This action is taken after considerable soul-searching and at the urging of many friends.

"Although I have had a good deal of experience working with school committees, this is the first time I have run for public office. Announcing at this early time is designed to indicate both my determination to run an aggressive campaign and to avoid accusations of political opportunism.

"As a taxpayer, father of four, and neighbor of Newton North High School, I have had sufficient exposure to the current School Comimittee and its member from Ward 2 to convice me that we must have a change.

"Enough discussion has taken place. It is clear to most of us, even those who voted for the current members, that it isn't working. Every section of our city has been disrupted by the actions of a School Committee which has little or no ecducational acclaim.

"We have seen everything from intentionally curtailing the initiative of teachers, to attempting to dismantle a critical English curriculum, to political in-fighting, to open displays of disdain and disrespect for citizens attending meetings.

"The cries of fiscal responsibility have proven the penny wise, pound foolish philosophy.

"I have no political base and I carry no grudge. I am a father of four in a neighborhood of dozens who cannot fight for themselves. If we do not act now, they will be our legacy of apathy.

"My general concerns are for improved communication between the School Committee and the citizenry, child safety, increased responsibility for PTA's, the mandatory review policy, and media education, to name a few.

"As the months go by, I hope to meet with parents and taxpayers throughout the city to outline these proposals.

"If you're wondering who the School Committee member is from Ward 2, I'm not surprised. In nearly 1000 pages of School Committee minutes since he took office, his name appears approximately 10 times.

"In a ward containing four elementary schools, one junior high and one senior high, where so much is needed and so much is happening, this is not representation.

"I hope to use my years of work with children and my experience in the communications field to help everyone understand that, to me, the children come first, not politics, not philosophies, not personalities.

"I am anxiously looking forward to meeting you and enlisting your help. One person can make a difference. And together we can make things better."

State job office now located in Upper Falls

State Rep. Lois G. Pines has commended the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce for its successful effort to obtain a separate office for job placement and counseling under the Division of Employment Security in the Newton area.

Formerly located in the same facility as the claims section, the DES placement office was relocated Jan. 15 at 215 Needham St., Newton Upper Falls.

The separate operation of the claims and employment offices will give the latter a strong identity, Pines said, and the district office, which serves the people of Newton, Watertown, Wellesley and Needham is now within three miles of 70 percent of the jobs available. The new industrial and office parks on the south side of Newton and in Wellesley and Needham have expanded while the industrial areas of Watertown have declined, according,to Pines.

There is currently public transportation near the new office and Representative Pines as well as the Division and the Chamber of Commerce are in the process of negotiating better service. "State officials, including Secretary of Transportation Fred Salvucci, are extremely interested in the subject and I am hopeful that expanded public transportation will soon be a reality," Pines said.

Although not yet operating at full capacity, the office is now open to the public from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and applicants are encouraged to come in. Evening hours are being planned for the near future. The telephone number is 964-3280.

Veto expected for pumper ordinance

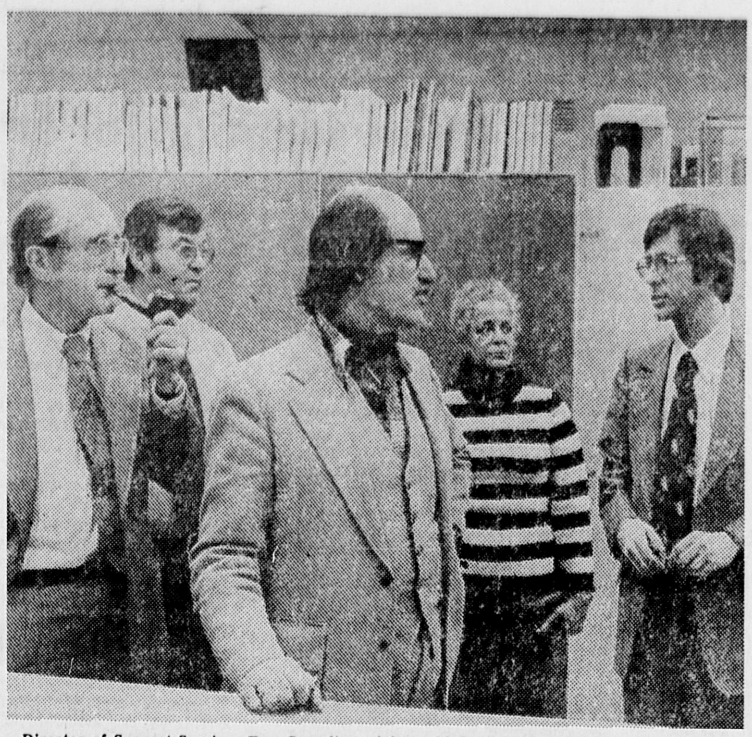
Mayor Mann said Monday he will "probably veto" the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen last week, setting fire apparatus requirements at 10 pumpers and three ladder trucks until April 30.

He met again with Chief Harvey Preble, the mayor said, and Preble reaffirmed that the decision to remove one pumper from service was a "proper decision."

The mayor said he will send a message to the Board of Aldermen this week explaining his action and providing "back-up documents 'to further fortify' (his) public statement that public safety will not be impaired."

The pumper was finally removed from service at the Crafts Street station in December over strong neighborhood and aldermanic opposition.

The written report from an insurance-rating firm' confirming its earlier opinion that 10 pumpers are not needed, is expected to be received by March.



Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius (right) told the School Buildings Advisory Committee that there is no accoustics problem in the Material Resource Center (pictured). Land Use

Murley denied; Trimount approved

Denial of a proposal for the development of the Murley land and approval of the use of a Claremont Street mansion for a residence for young women will be Land Use Committee recommendations to the Board of Aldermen Feb. 7.

The committee voted outright denial of a plan for condominiums on the Murley land at Parker and Dedhams Streets, Ward 8. The latest plan, reduced to 120 units since the introduction of the proposal at 196 units, was denied 4-1.

Former alderman Alan Barkin, one of the three-man developer team, asked that he be allowed to withdraw the petition for zone change and the petition for permissive use, but Land Use Committee chairman Chairman Eliot Cohen replied that under the state's new zoning enabling act, withdrawal is not permitted.

The petitions could have been handled in the same way as were petitions for a 112-unit condominium to the southwest of the Murley property at Nahanton and Winchester Streets.

In that case, no action was taken on the request for zone change, allowing it to be resubmitted and go through another public hearingin the future. The petitio for permissive use therefore became pointless.

Barkin, Stephen Hopkins, and architect Thomas Larsen all made brief presentations on their project. Some members of the public and several aldermen objected to Hopkins' letter sent to all Ward 8 homeowners.

The letter, which had a space at the end for comments on the Murley proposal, got a 10 percent response — 202 returns — Hopkins said, with only 68 "no" answers.

Ald. Robert Stiller, from Ward 8, said he is "quite appalled" at the letter, calling it full of "innuendo and false statements, leading to an answer." The letter told how many single-family houses could be built on the 29-acre site, and again raised the question of possibly 300-400 low- and moderate-income apartments on the land.

Chairman Cohen said the letter could be called "scare tactics" and was "derogatory to the community and to people requiring low-income housing."

In reference to the petitions as submitted, Cohen said, "It is not the Land Use Committee's responsibility to put together someone's petition for them . . . they should have come in with the 120-unit plan to begin with."

For "a $10 million proposal," Cohen went on, "we want more details on the financial background and ability of the developers." (Barkin said later that financial details had never been asked for by the committee or Cohen.)

Three final questions were asked rhetorically by Cohen: Would rezoning be spot zoning? What would be the true traffic impact of such a development? Is the development in the best interest of the neighborhood?

Then Cohen moved for denial.

Ald. Matthew Jefferson was the only member of the Land Use Committee who would not vote for denial. He moved at a previous meeting to hold instead of denying the petition.

Jefferson favored letting the petition die after the statutory 90-day period.

The vote to recommend denial to the Board was 4-1. Ald. David Cohen, Carol Ann Shea, Robert Gaynor, and Eliot Cohen voted to deny; Ald. Jefferson was opposed to denial.

If the Murley petitions are denied by the full Board, Barkin may try to submit his 120-unit plan as a new plan, or may wait until the planned-development ordinance is approved by the Board and submit a petition under that ordinance.

Trimount Foundation, Inc., a Catholic lay organization, was given approval 5-0 for its request to be allowed to use the 25-room house at 80 Claremont St. for a residence for 15 young women attending Boston-area colleges.

Restrictions on the number of automobiles to be parked on the property and the hours of use of the swimming pool were the main points of contention left for discussion.

The Board of Aldermen may not deny permission to use the house, because Trimount qualifies as an educational institution, but it may grant site plan approval with certain controls, among which are a limit to parking, lighting, and other exterior features.

Trimount agreed not to park more than three vehicles permanently on the 70,000-foot property and limit visitors' cars to 10. The foundation also agreed to 9:30 p.m. as the limit for use of the outdoor swimming pool.

A suggestion by a neighbor to limit the number of people ever in the house or on the property was not accepted.

Trimount also agreed not to make substantial interior changes in the house without the approval of Newton's planning director. This request was made by Ald. David Cohen, who feared that Trimount might install kitchens that would lead to the creation of apartments and destroy the single-family character of the house.

Denucci president of freshman legislators

State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton) was elected president of the 1977-78 legislative class in balloting this afternoon.

Rep. DeNucci served on the staff of the House prior to his election.

The 37-year-old legislator is a member of the Joint Legislative Committees on Health Care and Public Safety.

A grand tour of the new School Dept. home

As the School Department contnues to unpack its boxes in the Education Center more work will likely be going on inside, above, and outside the converted old F.A. Day Junior High School.

The aldermanic Finance Committee approved $25,000 from budget reserve to pay for new wiring in the basement, a new roof over the Materials Resource Center (MRC), and grills over some outside windows. A water boiler will be taken from the Newton South High School automotive center to replace the leaking one in the Education Center, Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson said.

The Board of Aldermen will have to approve the $25,000. . newton'

The School Buildings Advisory Committee to the School Committee toured the building at 100 Walnut St., Newtonville, and were generally satisfied with the building.

Director of Support Services Roy Cornelius told the five other members present that School Department employees are mostly pleased with the spaces they are in and are pleased they no longer have to allow 30 minutes between meetings for traveling. (Previously the department was housed in three separate old schools.)

On the tour, Committee Chairman Harry Portnoy said the superintendent's office has "too many lights."

Cornelius said Superintendent Aaron Fink thought the same thing when he saw it, but was satisfied since the switches allow for half of the bright fluorescent fixtures to be on at a time.

Assistant Director of Personnel Thomas O'Conor also was disatisfied with the lighting and uses desk lamps and window light. O'Conor and Assistant Superintendent for Program Henry Atkins each have half of Superintendent Fink's old carpet.

New carpets are in the offices of Fink and his assistant, Lillian Radlo, and other offices, but additional carpeting requested for the MRC and offices with peeling floor tiles was not approved by the Finance Committee.

During the tour Cornelius would not answer a question posed by Commissioner Larson on whether or not there is only a single hanging lightbulb in School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell's office. Apparently no one in the School Department has the key to the office' as it was not part of the tour.

The basement hallway has been painted off white with a special durable paint, but some first and second floor hallways and doorways still display the initials of some former junior high school students.

There was a spider on the floor of the animal center during the tour, but all the other animals were locked up and receiving air from a makeshift ventilation system.

The pupil personnel office had a few heating problems. Director of Special Education John Cullinane and Chief Psychologist Joseph Massimo originally had thermostat controls for the other man's office, and across the hall on the night of the tour the thermostat was set for 62 degrees but it was 75 in the room.

The elevator put in the building to make all floors accessable to the handicapped has a door that opens 32 inches , Larson said. Since the building was designed the minimum width has been increased to 36 inches.

The MRC is in the old stage area of the school. Administrators were fearful of an accoustical problem in the room and had a suspended ceiling put in. When Larson saw the room he said he would have put the new ceiling higher if he knew the bookcases were so high.

was Among those on the tour Hazelle Ferguson who said she will resign from the committee and ask the mayor to appoint another woman.

Also present were Jack Simmons from the Planning Department and committee member John Samuel.

The School Buildings Advisory Committee was established as a standing advisory committee to the School Committee Monday night.

Three citizen members are appointed by the mayor, three by the School Committee, and the other members are Cornelius, Atkins, Larson, Simmons (a designee of Director of Planning Charles Thomas), and a nonvoting alderman and School Committee member.

Marriott abatement application denied

The Marriott's recent application for another abatement has been rejected by the Board of Assessors, according to assessor Leonard Aronson, and the matter may be headed for the state appellate tax board.

The Marriott assessment was increased in December from $3.6 million to $4.6 million, resulting in an increased tax bill. A new tax bill was issued for $756,240, an increase of $147,960.

The Marriott paid the tax, then filed for an abatement, declaring that the hotel was overvalued. The Board of Assessors denied the abatement application.

The $3.7 million valuation was arrived at in 1975, after several years' valuation at $4.6 million.

The Marriott's new assessment in December was based on new figures provided by the hotel after Ald. Sidney Small persisted in his contention that the hotel was underassessed.

If the Marriott takes its case to the appellate tax board and proves that the earlier $3.6 million assessment is in fact correct, the city will have to return the additional taxes paid.

Aronson said this week that the tax board "is now following the law" and not granting interminable delays as it did until recently. The Board of Assessors has not lost a case since Aronson has been a member of the Board of Assessors, he said.

Transfers made to cover school budget deficits

Unpaid food bills of $123,000 from the school year 1975-1976 contributed to the $623,000 deficit which the School Committee made up by transferring funds from accounts with surpluses Monday night.

The School Budget Director James Egan explained that the current revolving account for food services is now facing a deficit of $67,000 projected to the end of the current fiscal (and school) year.

During the last budget session then Budget Director Harry Vienneau suggested raising cafeteria prices by about five cents per item to provide start-up money in the revolving account for the next year.

That increase was to have given the account a surplus of $58'000 for next year, but this year's cafeteria sales are down, in addition to the unexpected deficits from previous years.

The Budget Monitoring Subcommittee headed by Michael LeConti was to have more closely examined this account this week.

School Committee Chairman Alvin Mandell said of the $123,000 in past food bills, "It's not so amazing if you know how accounts can be screwed up and covered up."

LeConti added, "It's not so amazing if you knew how complicated this account was."

The School Committee members were not as upset with the other deficits which they have little or no control over.

The accounts and deficit amounts are Blue Cross-Blue Shield, $204,000; utilities, $91,000; workmen's compensation, $37,000; special education (required by state law), $171,000; and teaching substitutes, $30,000.

The total expected budget deficit of $622,535 will be made up from these four main accounts and their surpluses: professional salaries, $378,000; custodial salaries, $128,000; teacher aides, $54,000; and natural gas, $58,000.

The professional salaries surplus is the result of a difference of 1.6 percent from the budgeted salary increase of 7 percent. The custodial surplus was discussed in executive session by Support Services Director Cornelius because there is litigation in progress regarding custodial layoffs.

Sidewalks

Once upon a time Newton residents were required to shovel their sidewalks within 24 hours after a snowfall.

Today only businesses are required to remove snow and ice from sidewalks.

The unusual severity of this winter is causing renewed concern among residents and city officials about the state of the sidewalks, and the aldermen are beginning to take another look at the question of whether or not it is time to go back to having homeowners clear residential sidewalks.

They are considering several alternatives, including having city crews plow all sidewalks in Newton. Currently, city crews plow school-route sidewalks.

The issue is a complicated one.

Do the majority of people in Newton have either the muscle-power or the means to see to it their sidewalks are taken care of?

Would such an ordinance create a genuine hardship for the elderly, handicapped or people on fixed incomes?

Would residents obey such an ordinance and make sure their sidewalks are attended to? There's nothing more useless than one clear sidewalk on a street of 25 homes.

Would taxpayers prefer to take on the additional expense of having the city plow the sidewalks?

And finally, what effect should the issue of public safety have on the governmental decision?

A lot of our pedestrians are schoolchildren, many of them elementary schoolchildren.

How many times during the past month have you driven down one of the snow-narrowed, ice-covered side streets of Newton and come upon a group of children on their way to school, forced to walk in the street because the sidewalks are impassable?

The aftermath of a snowstorm is the most dangerous time for any child, or any other pedestrian, to be forced to walk in the street because not only are the roads more narrow, the ice and snow make the cars more difficult to control.

The odds are there will be an accident, not that there won't be one.

As the aldermen begin studying this issue, and as we look forward to February and March storms and predicted severe winters for at least two more years, we hope you will take the time to consider this issue and tell our aldermen how you feel.

Communicate with them directly, or write a letter to the editor. We want to know what you think; and we're sure they do too.

New location for employment office

I am writing with respect to published reports of State Rep. Joe DeNucci's objections to the moving of part of the Massachusetts Division of Employment Security to 215 Needham St.

The function of the DES is two-fold, namely to assist persons finding employment and to pay claims to those eligible due to prolonged unemployment. In the past few years, when the unemployment rate in the area has fluctuated between 7 and 10 per cent, the importance of claims payment demands naturally have been heavy.

A few years ago, following a national study which showed that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts had practically the worst record of any state in its federally-funded employment security administration, the state undertook an improvement project under the direction of the Greenleigh Associates. It should be clear that whatever improvements are now being made are to the credit of the relatively new director, John Crosier, and his staff.

The Employer Service Improvement Program, cosponsored by the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, initiated in 1974 and completed in 1975, consisted of meetings of DES officials and representatives of local businesses to act on recommendations made by staff task force acting on evaluations of services performed by the DES offices. The report, thus, is a concerted effort by DES to revitalize its service by cooperatively working with the ad hoc business committee formed by the Chamber of Commerce.

Almost all of the recommendations in the interim report for making improvements in the Newton office hinge on separating the employment and claims functions heretofore handled in Newton Corner in an office which both the department and the business community is too small. area

The Newton Corner office does not serve Waltham. It serves Newton, Needham, Watertown and Wellesley.

In the past dozen years there has been an obvious employment trend away from Newton Corner toward Needham Street and its adjacent industrial areas in both Newton and Needham. A major reduction in the workforce in Watertown, mainly due to closing B.F. Goodrich, Lewis-Shepard, William Underwood Co. and the Watertown Arsenal, has taken place at the same time. Therefore, locating the job employment center closer to where the jobs are makes a lot of sense. Seventy percent of all job opportunities are within three miles of this site on Needham Street.

Surveys conducted by the DES officials at Newton Corner show, contrary to common opinion, that about 65 to 70 percent come by private auto, in spite of excellent public transportation to the door.

Further, we hope to enlist the aid of the City of Newton and the state to encourage public transportation on Needham Street either extending out from the Newton Centre or Newton Highlands MBTA stops.

Unless business cooperates and lists more jobs with DES, those who are seeking employment can not be aware of existing jobs. The major drawback in the past has been that job listings have not been made available, that employers have found it difficult to get full service and that the local staff efforts have been impeded by poor surroundings, inefficient space and lack of job orders.

Rep. DeNucci is aware, I'm sure, that the unemployment compensation levels, both in terms of dollars paid out and in terms of the rates levied on businesses in Massachusetts, are among the highest in the nation. The unemployment compensation is paid for by the employers, not the workers.

In order to have an efficient system which will reduce the number of unemployed, which will help more people find jobs and which will reduce the cost of unemployment on the state's business community, it makes sense to try to solve the problem.

Furthermore, the employment service office is not meant to serve only the unemployed. It is meant to serve the entire community including those looking for better jobs.

What the Chamber is trying to do is reverse a long-running trend where jobs go unfilled on the one hand and yet unemployment continues because there is a poor match between available workers and available jobs. To properly administer this system you need to have cooperation between government and business. This is what the move of the job service to Needham Street, Newton Upper Falls, is all about.

We hope that you will reconsider your objections and instead offer support for a program which needs all the help it can get if we are to effectively reduce unemployment, help people find jobs and retain business in this area.

Girlie mag spices the steel union contest

Analysis by Gus Tyler, national columnist

NEW YORK — A girlie magazine has become an issue in a presidential contest again. This time in the race for the top post in the steelworkers' union.

The election, to be held in early February, is between challenger Ed Sadlowski and Lloyd McBride, the favorite of retiring President I.W. Abel. Up to now, the argument revolved around Sadlowski's charge that Abel had sapped the spirit of the union by his no-strike entente with the steel industry and, on the other hand, around McBride's charge that Sadlowski was the candidate of the "outsiders," namely, southpaw intellectuals and limousine liberals.

Now a Penthouse magazine interview with Sadlowski has spiced the struggle. Sadlowski talked to the mag in the rough-and-rumble rhetoric of the street. McBride registers shock: "unbelievable" and "disgraceful."

Just how many votes will be decided by the linguistic style is questionable. There may be just as many steel workers who are turned on as off.

Nor is McBride likely to get too far with his charge that Sadlowski's talking to Penthouse "demonstrates he is unfit to speak for USW members and their families." Although Penthouse is not a family magazine, it is a familiar magazine to many distinguished Americans who write for it and read it.

McBride does hit pay dirt, however, when he gets to the substance rather than the style of Sadlowski's statements. For instance:

"We've reduced the (basic steel industry's) labor force from 520,000 fifteen years ago to 400,000 today," says Sadlowski. "Let's reduce them to 100,000."

What the union rebel sees as an idealistic objective — to cut to a minimum the number of people sweating away their lives in the steel mill inferno — is bound to upset some of the regular residents of the hot place. After all, a job is a job is a job, especially to workers worrying about jobs elsewhere in an economy with a high jobless rate.

"Working in a steel mill drains the lifeblood of a man."

" says Sadlowski. "Nothing is gotten from that."

"Nothing," says the steel worker, "except bread and butter and the highest factory pay in the country."

"We don't need any more steel mills," says Sadlowski. He sees expansion as "industrial growth at the expense of what the environment should be."

The steel worker is apt to spring back with a caustic cliche: "Hungry? Eat an environmentalist."

Sadlowski is against jobs that are a drain on a man and a dreg in the environment. So is the steelworker — but not at the expense of his livelihood.

The U.S. created the Liberian tankers menace

By Bus Tyler, national columnist

NEW YORK — Within two months, five Liberian tankers have troubled American waters.

The Argo Merchant ran aground off Nantucket, Mass., was torn apart in a storm, and spilled 7.6 million gallons of heavy crude oil into the Atlantic. The spreading slick has turned the surrounding into a disaster area.

Shortly thereafter the tanker Olympic Games spilled 134,000 gallons of oil in the Delaware River, en)dangering the huge Tinicum Wildlife Reserve.

A few days later, the tanker Daphne ran aground in Puerto Rico.

Earlier the tanker Oswego Peace leaked oil near New London, Conn. And the tanker Sansinena exploded after unloading oil at Long Beach, Calif.

Last year, November 1979, the tanker Garbis dumped 5000 gallons of oil waters around the Florida keys.

This pile-up of disaster has suddenly made America aware of the Liberian menace. Their ships are unsafe.

David Marston, the U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, who ordered the arrest of the master of the Olympic Games, says that Liberian registry gives it "absolute immunity from adequate safety standards."

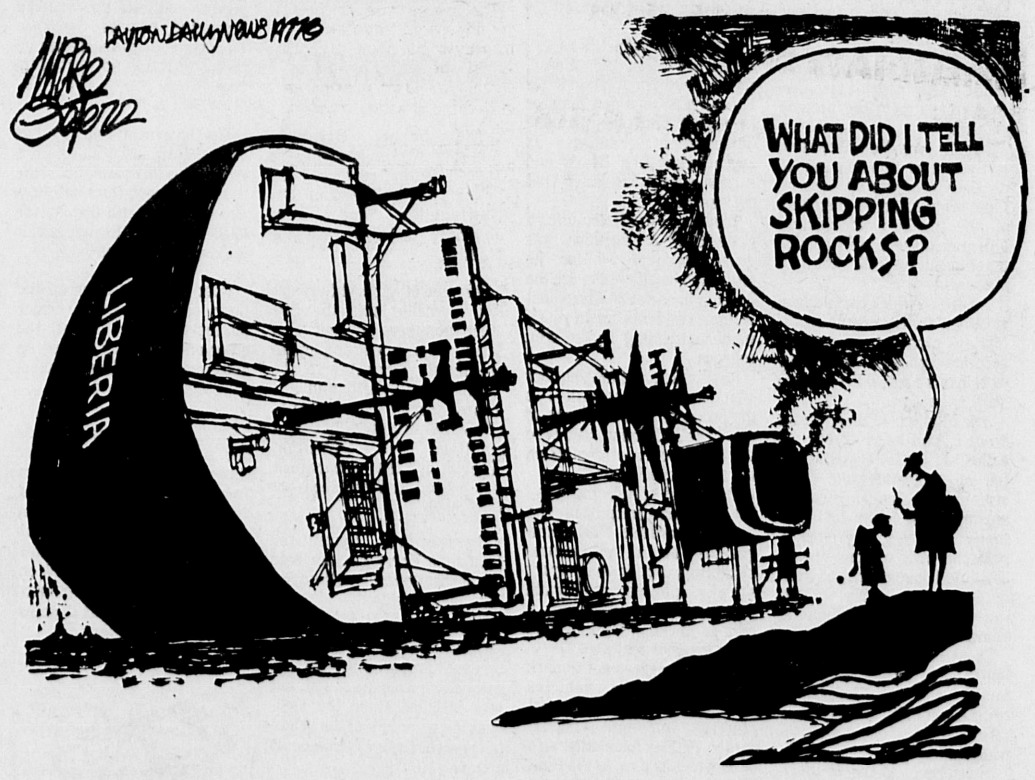
Marston is now saying that American seafarers have been saying for some time: The Liberian fleet is hurting this nation.

The first complaints of the seafaring unions were not directed against the threat to the environment, but the threat to American jobs. The Liberian registry – as well as the Panamanian and other foreign industry has been called the runaway shop.

These ships from Liberia and Panama are not owned by Liberians and Panamanians. They are owned by American shipping companies who do not want to pay American wages, American taxes, or to meet American standards of safety. Rather than carry these costs of the Aerican civilization, they run away to other countries to place their ships under a foreign flag.

Consequently, Liberia had the largest merchant marine in the world although it does not have a single worthwhile port.

Marston described this operation as "an international shell game and a tax dodge."



Up until now, very few people have taken notice. Indeed, the seafaring unions were lonely voices, heeded by none.

But now a new dimension has been added. These ships are endangering our waterways, shore lines, marine life breeding grounds, fish, birds, shellfish. But don't blame the Liberians. They are not the culprits. Once again, like Pogo said, we have met the enemy and this is us.

That state trooper shakeup is paying off

By J.J. Smith state columnist

With two years under his belt as the state's chief law enforcement officer, Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti has already written one of the political surprise stories of modern times in Massachusetts.

Remember election night 1974? Most of us went to bed not knowing who had been elected attorney general. Frank Bellotti or Josiah (Si) Spalding' his Republican opponent. It wasn't until mid-morning when the issue was resolved.

Since then, Bellotti has turned in an administration which has surprised and dumfounded his critics and delighted his friends and supporters. He's proven himself the best attorney general in modern times, and done more to depoliticalize that sensitive office than most had dreamed possible.

Most folks are familiar with some of the major steps he took to activate the office of attorney general. He named an 11-member committee to screen appointments for professional ability rather than political connections. He named a total stranger, Robert M. Bonin, as his first assistant attorney general. He literally changed the department overnight by requiring fulltime work from everyone and firing over half the holdover lawyers. Professionalism has been the hallmark of the Bellotti administration thus far.

Nowhere is this better illustrated than with the sweeping change he instituted in his Criminal Investigations Bureau in July, 1975. That's when he transferred all the Massachusetts State Police detectives at that time working out of his office, and replaced them with state troopers specifically trained to work in that area.

This was a bold, innovative step and set up the first State Police uniformed mini-troop of its kind in an area which traditionally utilized detective lieutenants. The move provided twin benefits — a fresh, eager new band of investigators for Bellotti's office and full utilization of the carefully honed skills of the transferred detectives at State Police headquarters and various district attorneys offices. Most of the transferred detectives, some jaded with the familiarity of the criminal bureau's operations, took new leases on life and have turned in inspired work in their new environments.

Meanwhile, the 15-man mini-troop in the Criminal Investigations Bureau has carved its own anti-crime niche in law enforcement under the command of Capt. Richard N. Loynd and Sgt. Richard Schneiderham. Loynd, a graduate of the FBI Academy, formerly headed an elite unit at State Police headquarters specializing in gaming matters. As for Sgt. Schneiderham, he's a vital holdover at the bureau where his 18 years of experience has proven invaluable.

Unlike attorney generals of yesteryear' Bellotti envisioned this bureau as a hard-hitting, elite investigative force that could be fashioned into a battering ram at all segments of crime. Right now Bellotti and the bureau are gearing up for a three-pronged assault on economic crime, violent crime and organized crime.

That should send tremors of apprehension through wrongdoers in those areas judging by the record compiled thus far by Bellotti's unique mini-troop investigative bureau. Consider just a few of the achievements in its lusty baptismal era:

the Springfield odemeter "spinback" cases.
the hijack cases.
nursing home indictments.
successful probes of the Hellenic Credit Union and Brighton Five Cents Bank.
the cigarette tax evasion rip-off.
the Boston fire department scandal.
welfare money thefts.

Department of Youth Services investigation in Taunton.
investigations which led to resignation of public officials for wrong-doing.

There are more but the above gives some of the flavor of this fine unit's work to date. Ahead are probable indictments in Middlesex and Essex Counties on arson cases — all coupled with on-going involvement in a host of other law enforcement activities. Previously these included stakeouts, undercover work, frequent callouts during busing troubles, maintenance of intelligence files, electronic sweeps, voice print work and preparation of affidavits and warrants.

Under prior attorney generals, the Criminal Investigations Bureau was noted principally when sporadically there would be well-publicized bookie raids or announcements of plans for investigations into political corruption.

Sound and flamboyance rather than hard results ensued; something Bellotti determined to change, and did.

Opinions

Tribute to a school

To the Editor:

The Memorial School closing has a different meaning to many people. With the present school committee's decision to close our neighborhood school in June, 1977, there are many mixed feelings. Obviously, it will take time to feel the full emotional impact. However, we have lived with the indecision for the past two years.

As a parent of two children who completed their education at Memorial School, and presently having one child in a lower grade, I have played an active role in the PTA. It is a school where I have always felt welcome and shared in the educational planning for my children. Because of its unique size and location, the principal and staff have known each child on a personal level, and this has generated a feeling of friendliness and warmth.

Educationally, the school has maintained a traditional program formally established under the capable leadership of Dr. Olive Eldridge (former principal). Moreover, there was emphasis on self-exploration while accepting new innovations whenever possible.

Upon Dr Eldridge's retirement, a new acting principal, Mr. John McAdam, who had previously taught in the school for several years, was appointed. Mr. McAdam is a young, dedicated, and sensitive principal who continued the focus on sound educational methods while meeting the needs of the individual child.

These past two years of indecision on the school's future, have been difficult for Mr. McAdam aside from his regular educational duties, he has demonstrated his sensitivity and receptivness to the teachers, children, and the needs of the community.

Due to Memorial's unique location, we have a close-knit community which has reflected predominantly in school activities. There was much parent involvment exhibited when Memorial initiated its Creative Arts committee and began after-school programs. Memories of our annual parent-teachers thank-you luncheon, career days, after school holiday workshops, a flea market, Halloween parties, and more recently a Fun Festival, bring to mind much team cooperation and spirit.

The prospect of declining enrollment and trying to maintain a stabilized school budget, has pressured us into the vulnerable situation of accepting Mr. Paul Ash's proposal for our school closing. In addition he has appealed to the community's pleas for an appropriate use for our school building which many are relying on. Hopefully we will not be cited as the only test case for closing.

With mixed feelings I come to the realization we must look to the future planning of educational goals and needs for our children. We are advised options for better education are available with a larger school enrollment. Through the genuine support and efforts of the teachers, principals, and parents, we anticipate and hope that cooperation will prevail and bring us a smooth transition for the new Memorial-Spaulding School.

Censorship

To the Editor:

I read in the Newton Graphic that the City of Newton seized an x-rated film from the Paramount Theater in Newton Corner and the owners were charged and convicted of disseminating an "obscene" film, and allowing minors to see it.

I take no issue with the charge involving the minors, but I believe that adults should be allowed to see whatever they wish.

A movie house is public in that anyone may pay admission and go in, but it is also private in that anyone who does not want to see the movie being shown does not have to go in.

If I wish to see an x-rated movie, I don't see why someone else should have the right to prevent me from doing so.

I know that the latest court rulings do not have the same interpretation of the law, but their references to local community standards gives the city flexibility in applying the law.

I disapprove strongly of this censorship, as it limits unnecessarily the freedom of all of us and wastes the time of the police and the courts, which costs us all money.

Newton Centre

Murley Farm tactics

To the Editor:

I must applaud Dr. Kaplan's recent letter to the Newton Graphic. It was a reply to a letter which Mr. Stephen Hopkins sent to the abutters of the Murley Farm property, as well as to other homeowners of Ward 8, in regard to the proposed apartment development on this land.

The Board of Aldermen, and particularly the Land Use Committee, has repeatedly stated, and voted accordingly, that it must afford the developers "every opportunity" to modify or present once again their proposal.

In fact, the basic issue as most abutters see it is zone change. No modification of a proposed apartment development short of abandonment will allow it to be constructed without a zone change.

I fear our Board of Aldermen, in its zeal to be fair-minded, is condoning the tactics of these developers. The proponents of this project have repeatedly attempted to either mislead, coerce or scare the neighborhood into acceptance of their proposal.

As Dr. Kaplan points out, none of the alternatives the developers have tried to scare us with are allowed under current zoning except single family homes, residence A.

I object to the sort of letter Mr. Hopkins has sent. I object to Mr. Malm's attempt to represent himself as just another abutter and eliminate the mention, let alone the detils, of his involvement in the proposed development in a letter to the newspapers.

I am dismayed at the apparent concealment of the identity of those financing this project. The community is entitled to full disclosure and openess on the part of the developer before its Board of Aldermen is so willing to extend "every opportunity."

Dr. John Loewenstein,
Newton Centre

Parking

To the Editor:

We are seriously alarmed at the suggestion of permitting all-night parking on the north side of Newton and hope the undesirable consequences will be seriously considered.

For example, George Street, a single-family area, has an apartment house built many years ago and intended for occupation by families. Instead, it has been occupied in recent years by groups of unrelated persons each with a car, but without adequate parking.

The owner has tried to provide spaces, but rather than maneuver into these difficult spaces, the owners leave their cars on the street, making an intolerable situation much of the time.

It is often dangerous to try to turn into the street from Centre Street, and sometimes impossible to back out of one's driveway.

During the recent storm, George Street was not even plowed for some time. Last year, a fire engine responding to a fire could not get through the street.

At present, even with fairly diligent tagging by the police, with no limit on night parking, we will be overwhelmed wih with cars.

There is also a safety aspect. It is now possible to notice strange cars on the street at night.

Brookline, with many more apartments, maintains a parking ban successfully, and some of the northern communities that have given in, have lived to regret it.

The police have trouble enough now. But checking every car at night to see whether or not it has a proper sticker I should think would be extremely difficult and time-consuming.

John and Louise Swanton,

Superb job

To the Editor:

If a less than satisfactory job had been done, there would be a howl of criticism.

But we take a superb performance for granted.

Let's applaud the excellent work of our snow-fighting crews and the effectiveness of our city's administration.

Newton Observer

Boycott

To the Editor:

A simple method for individuals to express their dissatisfaction with the handling of the Abu Daoud affair is to boycott French wines and champagnes.

This is a direct method of expressing our indignation at the flaunting of justice by the French government.

CETA gets $1M for public service work

The Newton area CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program has been allocated $1 million for public service projects in Bedford, Brookline, Dover, Lexington, Lincoln, Needham, Newton, Waltham, Wellesley and Weston, Mayor Theodore Mann announced this week.

The $1 million will go to projects authorized under an extension of Title VI of the CETA Act. Additional money beyond the $1 million is also available to sustain and expand the present public service employment program. Target groups for Title VI monies are area residents who have been unemployed for a long period or are AFDC recipients.

Applicants must also have family-income levels below the federal low-income guidelines.

All Title VI projects are intended to have a substantial impact on the economic, educational, environmental, social or cultural aspects of the local community, and to provide an innovative approach to job creation by employing Title VI participants. Projects can last from 4 to 11 months, with 90 percent of monies earmarked for wage and fringe benefits for the public service employees.

Mayor Mann encourages government and nonprofit agencies located with the 10-town area to submit project proposals to Area CETA Director, Richard V. Moynihan, before the Feb. 18 deadline.

Proposals for projects will be reviewed by the Newton Area CETA office, the local Advisory Manpower Planning Board, and Mayor Mann, chairman of the Planning Board. A bidders' meeting for interested parties will be held at Newton City Hall, Room 209, Jan. 31 at 2:30 p.m. The Massachusetts Balance-of-State Prime Sponsor Planning Council must give final approval to those projects chosen for funding. Final selections will be made in early April and projects will start in May and June.

Project guidelines, details on submitting proposals, and application forms are available through the Newton Area CETA office at 103 Moody St., Waltham; telephone 899-7800, ext. 64.

Backman proposes federal welfare system

"A federal takeover of welfare would save Massachusetts nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars," said State Sen. Jack Backman recently in his keynote address at the annual statewide conference of Community Action Program (CAP) directors.

"This kind of saving would extricate the Commonwealth from its fiscal chaos," Backman said.

At one time, Backman said, federalizing welfare was considered radical, but now many members of the financial community, spokesmen for both parties, and leading political figures of the industrial Northeast are concerned with the federalization of welfare as well as minimum annual income and national health care insurance.

"The financial institutions of the area have come to the realization that welfare and health care must be taken over federally in order for the banks to begin helping with the restoration of the economy," said Sen. Backman.

Backman sharply criticized the Division of Employment Security. "DES has stated that the unemployment rate was going down. However, when DES was notified that it would receive less federal funds because of the 'lower' unemployment, the director issued a statement saying that the unemployment rate was actually higher." "DES now admits that our unemployment rate is 1.5 to 2 percent higher than their figures show. DES did not count those persons who were considered employable and therefore removed them from the welfare rolls. They also did not count those persons who had exhausted their unemployment compensation. Such manipulation of statistics distorts issues and causes a loss of confidence in government," Backman stated.

Backman also discussed job opportunity rights for all citizens, saying that individuals have a right to a decent, meaningful job.

"The state's proposal for jobs for welfare recipients is a sham," Backman said, "which 'may' create between 500 and 1200 jobs in the ensuing two years. However, we have close to 300,000 persons looking for work today. This is far too little and too late. What we need is a federal program, as well as an effective state job opportunity program."

Mayor participates in Washington meeting

Mayor Theodore Mann and other members of the U.S. Conference of Mayors had an opportunity last week to present their recommendations to 11 new senior officials of the Carter administration, including Cabinet officers.

The Conference of Mayors presented to the officials its National Urban Investment Program, a comprehensive package of proposals presented to then President-elect Jimmy Carter Dec. 14.

The Human Development Committee, of which the mayor is a member presented the following recommendations of its Task Force on Aging:

Strengthening of the Social Security system.

Prohibition of mandatory retirement and all forms of age discrimination; expansion of senior employment programs.

Development of a single, comprehensive health care program, including home health programs and preventive health care for all older persons as a basic right.

Development of programs to enable social services to be directly linked with elderly housing, thus providing an intermediate step between independent living and institutionalization.

Development of comprehensive mass public transportation, including transportation to better serve the elderly.

Mayor Mann commented, "I am working through the U.S. Conference of Mayors to express to the new federal administration the needs of our cities. The Human Development Committee is concerned that the needs of our elder citizens occupy a prominent place in the Urban Investment Program.

"Here in Newton, where we have a large population of elder citizens, we are aware of the needs. We have a responsibility to communicate this awareness to the federal government."

Pines urges repeal of blue laws

State Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) recently testified before the Legislature's Commerce and Labor Committee to urge passage of a bill to repeal the state's Sunday-closing laws. Pines introduced similar legislation in 1973 and has been fighting for repeal of the blue laws since.

Pines, along with other witnesses, cited the substantial economic benefits of Sunday business operation. Based upon data collected and analyzed by the Executive Office of Economic Affairs, Pines said, a 3 percent annual rate of increased retail sales, amounting to as much as $450 million, and the creation of 7200— 10,800 new full-time jobs can be expected. Increased revenues for the state from additional sales and income tax receipts could reach $10 million, Pines said.

"Antiquated" and "unresponsive" were the words Pines used to describe the statutes, which were enacted over 300 years ago as a reflection of the mores of that society. The many exemptions that have accumulated follow no discernible pattern, according to Pines. For example, they permit a person to place a bet on a horse race or buy a lottery ticket but prohibit the purchase of groceries, clothing and other necessities.

Public support for repeal is statewide. The citizens of 302 cities and town (86 percent) voted for abolition in the November nonbinding advisory referendum, with the total margin of victory nearly one-quarter of a million votes. In Newton, 59 percent of the voters approved the measure by a margin of 6900.

Pines underscored the responsibility of the legislature to repeal the obsolete statutes, stating: "The voters have very clearly demonstrated their understanding of the inequities of the blue laws. They are tired of losing jobs and money to other states. I believe that they realize that our society has evolved to the point where statutorily imposed prohibitions of this kind are neither necessary nor appropriate."

Rep. Pines stated her opinion that the laws are unconstitutional as well. She cited the "due process" clause of the 14th Amendment as an explicit statement of the right of citizens to "pursue an ordinary calling," and she called the blue laws a "negation of the basic precept of the right of people to be granted and guaranteed the use of their property as they see fit so long as they do not infringe upon the rights of others."

In Pines' opinion, her proposal for total repeal rests on much sounder constitutional grounds than the proposal of the governor, seeking repeal subject to local option. She does, however, support the governor's call for making Sunday work voluntary only.

"There are more than enough unemployed people who would like to work Sundays. In addition, there are many students, and workers who could benefit from part-time Sunday work," Pines said.

Burglary and fight followed by arrests

An Auburndale man was arrested for burglary a and Framingham and Newton men were both arrested for being disorderly persons early Monday morning, police report.

Joseph LeBrun, 25, of 280 Melrose St., Auburndale, was arrested for allegedly burglarizing the house at 269 Adams St., Nonantum.

Police report that a woman at the house found the suspect in the kitchen and scared him out of the house and behind some cars on the other side of the street where police arrested him at 1:45 a.m.

Bruce J. Houston, 35, of 12 Prospect St., West Newton, and Thomas J. Harney, 32, of 14 Napine Rd., Framingham, were charged with being disorderly persons in front of the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale Monday at 12:01 a.m.

Officers Vincent Lipoma and Francis Fall assisted in breaking up the alleged fight that reportedly began after an argument in front of the hotel.

Political groups must register at City Hall

Well-meaning citizens can find themselves a nonelected political committee, subject to the state's law governing political finances, Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie warned this week.

If a few citizens get together and chip in even $10 each for a candidate, Licarie said, they may be regarded as a committee and must register with the Election Commission.

The same goes for committees originally formed for other purposes, as, for example, a village improvement association, which may raise money for or donate services to a candidate.

Candidates contemplating running for office and establishing a "committee to elect" should also register the committee with the Election Commission. A committee is not required.

Copies of the state law on political finances are available from Licarie.

Committees that have filed the requisite Jan. 10, 1977, report with the Election Commission are Friends to Elect Mayor Mann, Voice, Concern' Committee for Better Education, Committee to Preserve Neighborhood Schools, and A Committee To Improve Our Newton (ACTION)

Ward 3 hears Sen. Backman

The Ward 3 Democratic Committee will hear State Sen. Jack Backman discuss new legislation and answer questions on Tuesday, Jan 25, at the Franklin School on Derby Street.

The talk "What's Coming up in the Legislature?" will begin at 8 p.m.

Members are asked to send their $5 dues to Tony Salvucci at 23 Eddy St.

Please mail census forms

Census forms received earlier this month should be returned as soon as possible, the executive secretary of the Election Commission urged this week.

Alan Licarie, who is also in charge of the city's annual census, asked that the forms be returned immediately to avoid having to send a policeman to obtain the information.

The census information is required by state law and is the basis of the annual residence list used for voter registration.

Troopers nab trio on parkway

State police arrested two men and a woman on the Hammond Pond Parkway in Newton early Monday morning for allegedly driving a stolen car.

Troopers John Kelly Barry Halloran, and ' Philip Lynch of the Framingham barracks charged Stephen Goldstein, 26, of 37 Bruce La., Newton, with using without authority.

Jeffrey W. Widol, 21, of 73 Pinehurst St., Roslindale, faces charges in Newton District Court for larceny of a motor vehicle, using without authority after suspension of a license' and possession of a hypodermic syringe.

Beverly Mahoney, 22, of 49 Taunton Ave., Mattapan, was charged with using without authority.

The Framingham barracks had no information later Monday morning on the events leading up to the arrests.

Correction

In a picture on page one last week two men working on equipment repairs at Newton North High School were incorrectly identified as North custodians. They are maintenance men for the city's Public Buildings Department.

Senator Edward Brooke

Sen. Brooke speaker at Lincoln Day dinner

Senator Edward W. Brooke will be the guest and principal speaker at Newton's Seventeenth Annual Lincoln Day Dinner and Dance being held Thursday, Feb. 24, in the Ballroom of Nonantum Post 440, it was announced today by Charlotte R. Thornbury, dinner chairman, and Julius L. Masow, president of the Newton Republican Club.

Since his election to the United States Senate, Senator Brooke has moved rapidly up the seniority ladder, now holding key positions on the banking, housing and urban affairs, and appropriations committees. A formidable campaigner, he was reelected to the Senate in 1972 by a margin of almost 700,000.

Earlier, as attorney general of Massachusetts, Brooke won a reputation as an activist, independent crime-buster. In that election in 1964 he won by more votes than any other Republican in the country and the largest margin of any Republican in the history of Massachusetts with a plurality of nearly 800,000 votes.

Prior to entering politics, Brooke practiced law after graduating from Boston University Law School where he was an editor of the Law Review. During World War II, he served as a Lieutenant with the 366th Combat Infantry Regiment, earning the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Because of the early response by subscribers for tables, the co-chairmen of reservations, Mrs. Donald M. Budge and Mrs. Paul W. Swift urge those wishing to attend the event to make their reservations early. Subscriptions for tables are being made with Norman Buchbinder and Adelaide B. Ball, who head the committee of patrons.

As in past years there will be presentations of special awards to local Republicans. Anthony J. Medaglia heads this year's Committee on Citation Awards and he will make the presentations in behalf of the various Republican groups of Newton.

Details of the complete program will be announced soon, according to Mrs. Stephen P. Heiser, program chairman.

Among those serving on the various committees as chairmen are: Henry J. Wilson, VIP arrangements; David A. Lurensky, press relations; Wendell Wilson, dinner committee treasurer.

The Newton Republican Club, Julius L . Masow, president, is principal sponsor, in cooperation with the Newton Italian Republican Club, Francis A. Tambascio, president; Newton Republican City Committee, Maudyea Campbell, chairman; and the Republican Women of Newton, Mrs. Stephen P. Heiser, president.

Finance Committee votes on department head raises

The Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen compromised among its members last week and changed all but three of the mayor's recommendations for department head salary increases.

City Solicitor Howard Levine was honored by a request to the mayor from the committee to increase his wage by $3500 retroactive to July 1, 1976.

Like most of the other 12 department heads considered, Mayor Theodore Mann had recommended 10 percent raise above his current salary of $24,500.

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small said Levine's department has grown into one with increased demands upon it, especially with more departments relying on his department .

Voting against the raise were Ald. Andrew Magni, WendellBauckman, and Richard Bullwinkle.

Public Works Commissioner Gene Larson was recommended for a $4000 raise to $31,000 by Mayor Mann, but the aldermen knocked this back to $30,000 effective April 1, 1977, because Larson has only been in charge of this department since April, 1976.

This compromise, the only one to change the retroactive date of the raise, was approved 6-1 with Magni opposed and Joan Saklad absent.

Planning and Development Director Charles Thomas fell $1500 short of the 20 percent raise recommended by the mayor. Thomas's present salary of $22,500 was voted 6-2 to be $25,500, with Magni and Bullwinkle opposed. Ald. Mark White, John Stewart, Ed Richmond, and Saklad favored $26,000 for, among other reasons, Thomas to keep his salary above subordinates. They compromosed with the other half of the committee that approved a salary of $25,000.

Mayoral assistant Jane Pitt and Personnel Director John Ritchie presented the recommendations to the committee based upon a report by Ritchie rating department head jobs in terms of management responsibilites.

The report included a recommended salary scale with about a 30 percent spread between the minimum and maximum wage in each of the 10 grades for department heads.

No formal vote was taken on the tables which were compiled from standards in the private sector, but at least one alderman, Stewart, used the tables in considering his vote.

Ritchie was recommended by the mayor for a 10 percent raise but was voted a 6.5 percent increase by the committee to make his salary $24,500, $800 less than the mayor wanted.

Recreation Commissioner Russell Halloran got his 10 percent raise past the committee with a bonus of $450, raising his salary to $23,000.

The committee voted down the request to increase Water Commissioner Willard Pratt's salary of $22,630.

Chairman Small and Vice Chairman Bullwinkle recalled that when Pratt took the newly created job in 1970, Mayor Mann promised that Pratt would receive no raise while he had the job. Pratt will be 70 in August.

Recommended to the full Board for a 10 percent increase and their possible salaries are Library Director Virginia Tashjian, $22,550; Veterans' Agent Carelton Merrill, $17,820; and Weights Measures Sealer Robert Silver, $16,500.

Data Processing Director Janice Capofreddi and Health Commissioner Carolyn Zavarine were not voted increases because they were recently appointed. Jane Pitt said they mayor will request raises for them and other department heads in the next budget.

Purchasing Agent Blair Kanbar was recommended to the Board for a 5 percent increase to $21,000, and City Clerk Joseph Karlin was recommended for a $1000 raise to $20,000.

Mayor Mann will have to approve the Finance Committee's recommendations for the recreation commissioner and the city solicitor since they were above what he had asked the Board to approve.

The Board of Aldermen will probably vote on the raises Feb. 7.

Mofenson on health care panel

State Rep. David J. Mofenson, House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs, told a legislative forum of the Massachusetts Health Council last week that regulations are "a double-edged sword" in the delivery of better health care to Bay State residents.

"No one likes snarls of red tape," the Newton Democrat said, "but if we are serious in our commitment to providing better and increased access to health care opportunities, we almost by definition are talking about the use of public funds, and this in turn means regulations."

While some health care providers have charged that the industry is already over-regulated, some state administrators take the opposite view, believing that even more regulation is needed.

Mofenson said he is sensitive to the growing dissatisfaction with government regulations generally, but explained that if public funds are being expended, the state has both the right and the responsibility to develop fair and equitable guidelines in order to give effect to the legislative intent which mandated the programs in the first place.

"We need more accountability in government," he said.

"The issue is less an all-or-nothing battle between over-regulation and under-regulation," Mofenson continued. "It is more aptly the search for reasonable standards, fair to all parties, which permit taxpayers to get their money's worth and those who need service to get them with the minimum amount of inconvenience."

Mofenson made his remarks while serving on a panel with Mrs. Annie May Moore, special services assistant and community services liason of the Boston City Hospital; David M. Kinzer, president of the Mass. Hospital Association, and Steven M. Weiner, chairman of the Massachusetts Rate Setting Commission.

Airman Dennis McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy P. McCarthy of 7 Durant St., Newton, has been selected for technical training at Chanute AFB., Ill., in the Air Force aircraft equipment maintenance field. He recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

DeNucci appointed to House committes

State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci (D-Newton), has been appointed to the Committee on Health Care and the Committee on Public Safety.

"I am pleased by the confidence that Speaker Thomas McGee has shown by appointing me to both of these committees. They are two of the most important and hard-working committees in the legislature and I hopeto justify his confidence in the weeks and months to come," the freshman representative said.

The Committee on Health Care deals with all matters pertaining to health care programs and the regulation of the health care system, including rate setting, licensing of health facilities and personnel, certificates of need, and health programs including Medicaid.

The Public Safety Committee is responsible for all matters pertaining to the safety of the public, including civil defense, firearms and gun control, fire laws, motor vehicle laws, and soldier's homes.

'Simulated disaster'

A "simulated disaster" was conducted Monday morning at the Woodland MBTA Station.

The disaster involved the derailment of a street car and was planned by Police Chief William Quinn and Newton-Wellesley Hospital authorities.

At 6 a.m., Capt. John Bartinelli briefed officers and supervisory personnel. The location was not given and officers were advised that each "victim" would have a card indicating injuries.

TRAVEL TRAILS
By Josephine Arria

"Rent-an-Irish-Cottage" is a scheme devised by the Shannon Free Airport Development Company aimed at providing comfort conscious visitors with some instant Irish ambience. In picturesque locations in tiny West-of-Ireland villages, the company built new cottages that are scrupulous replicas of traditional country houses, right down to the thatched roofs and flagstone floors. They've been selling like IRish coffee on a wet winter afternoon! . The price alone would probably ensure that. Depending on size, the cottages sleep five to nine persons, and are fully equipped with cutlery and bedding. Weekly rent ranges from a low of $31 from October to March, up to $98 for July and August . . . Reaction to the "Rent-an-Irish-Cottage scheme has been enthusiastic!

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 at The Union Church.

Mr. Stewart M. Brooks, teacher of medical science and author of more than two dozen books on history, science, and medicine will talk on "Variations on a Theme." His subject comes from his latest book, "Going Metric," published last year by A.S. Barnes & Co. Mr. Brooks is a teacher at Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing.

Chairman and committee members from St. Philip Neri include Mrs. James Fitzgerald, Mrs. Marie Tesoro, and Mrs. Domenic Franchi; from The Church of The Good Shepherd are Mrs. Frederick Hunt, Mrs. Edward Uehlein, and Mrs. Horace Morton; and from The Union Church are Mrs. George MacDonald, Mrs. Matt Jones, and Mrs. Donald Nordbeck.

Miss Ruth Underhill is in charge of decorations and Mrs. Donald Gosch is in charge of sewing. Mrs. Domenic Franchi is in charge of surgical supplies.

IT'S TRUE THAT GOD HEALS.

Since God isn't a far-off ideal, but divine Love, always here — "a very present help in trouble," as the Bible says — it's natural that He should heal.

Many people have found this true, not only in Bible times but today. If you'd like to hear some personal experiences of healing, visit our Wednesday evening testimony meeting. We'd love to have you come.

The well dressed closet

Two problems encountered by men and seldom discussed are: insufficient closet room and pockets that hold very little, therefore making unsightly bulges.

First, the closet.

Actually, "closet" is a word that has had a stigma about it. One usually considers a closet someplace where things are stashed, not organized. Those over 40 will recall Fibber McGee's cluttered closet. Yet the closet is one of the most important areas in your apartment or house and the one least considered.

"People just look at a closet as it is presented to them," says Bob Patino, president of his own interior design firm. "The clothes bar is there, and they hang up their clothes. People really should look at closet space in the same manner they size up equivalent space in a house or apartment. If you're crowded for space in the kitchen, you figure out a way of rearranging and remodeling...the same should hold true for the closet."

Following are a few down-to-earth suggestions for people who would like their closets to be well-dressed and organized:

(1) Try using two hanging rods, one on top of the other in a closet. This means folding men's trousers over a hanger rather than hanging them full length; but, in the cases of some fabrics this is advisable to eliminate stretch.

(2) Buy an adjustable rod unit. It gives you much more flexibility in arranging the closet. Women will especially find this helpful. As skirts get longer or shorter, they can adjust the bars accordingly.

(3) A peg board on the inside of the door can be used to hang belts and for the installation of dowel rods (or swinging towel hangers) for ties. Hinge one end of the dowel rod so that it can be swung out for better tie selection.

(4) Install a full-length mirror on the outside of the door rather than the inside. You will have a better vantage point for appraisal, and it also doubles as room decor.

(5) If you lack drawer space in a closet, get unpainted dressers and install them under a high-hanging bar. The dresser can be painted to match the closet decor.

(6) Drawers should be gauged for their contents. Jewelry should be placed in a shallow drawer and not wasted in a high drawer. The jewelry drawer will stay better arranged if you install (either with glue or double-sided tape in the corners) a ⅛-inch thick layer of foam....in this way, your jewelry won't shift every time you open the drawer.

(7) Luggage should be stored on the highest shelf, out of the way, and if you aren't a constant traveler, you may want to store out-of-season clothing in your luggage.

AVOID OVERLOADED POCKETS (AND THOSE UNSIGHTLY BULGES)

It's long been a fact that boys who stuff everything from frogs, marbles and slingshots into their pockets, grow up to be men who cram keys, wallets, change, etc., etc. into every available pocket.

In a recent survey, a dozen typical American men were asked to empty trouser, shirt and coat pockets. Even the men themselves were amazed at all they tote as the pockets sag and bag and the slim line of the clothing is gone forever. Most of the men produced loose change, either folded bills or those held together by a money clip, keys, a handkerchief, one comb (mustached gentlemen generally carry two combs, the second designed especially for the mustache).

One man, most conscious of what all the weight was doing to the fit of his slacks, came up with a package of gum, breath mints, comb, cigarettes and a lighter in addition to the rest of the usual array in his pants pockets. He moaned about the fact that he had no room for his checkbook, notebook, pen and credit cards. He'd like to put everything into a shoulder bag, but felt that his image would suffer if he carried out the act.

A young man who overheard the conversation pointed out that he had just returned from Copenhagen where every man carried a very masculine shoulder bag. He surmised that American men are the only ones who worry about their masculinity if such a down-to-earth practical accessory is added to the wardrobe.

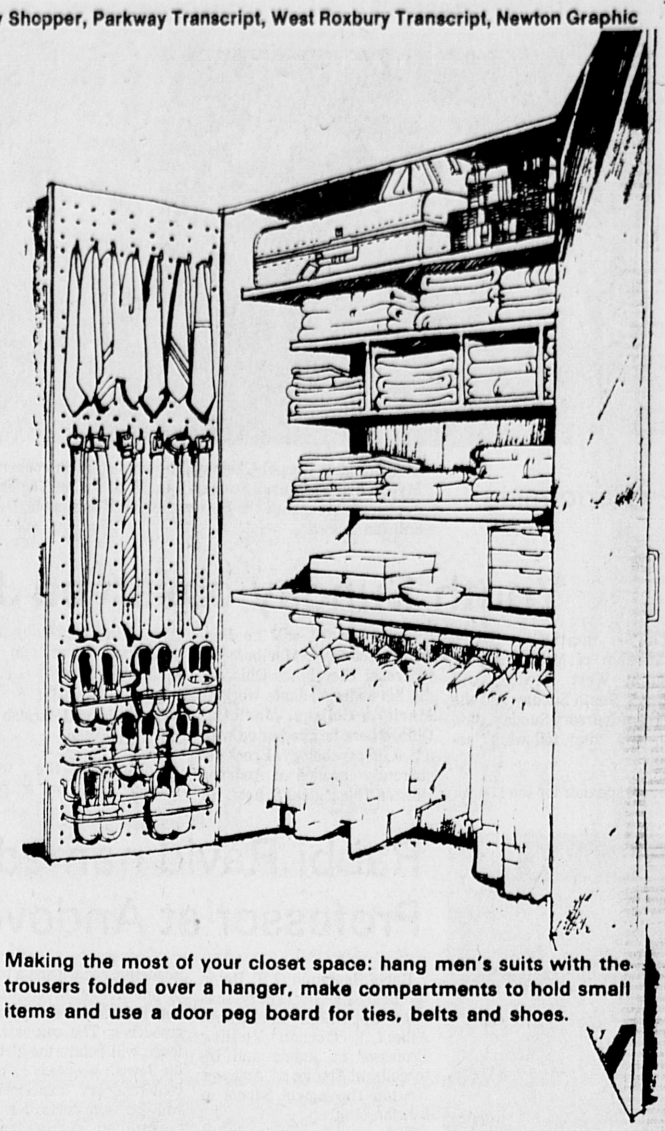
Suggestions from the experts:

The best place for the wallet, in the interest of safety as well as bulge, is in the inside coat pocket. Then when the suit or sport coat is removed, the man should transfer the wallet to the trousers left hip pocket which has a safety button closure.

The wallet, of course, is a definite necessity, unlike many of the other items carried by most men. Recently, even wallets have been trimmed to be as slim as the rest of the man's attire.

Many fashion-conscious men who wear expensive designer suits or those custom-made, usually carry their gear in a brief case. Italian designer Luciano Franzoni, maintains that European men carry the shoulder bag which holds all that is needed and keeps his belongings in one spot, safely. "An attache case is another solution, and this is the place for a notebook, address book, passport, etc.

"After all," he insisted, "men's fashions today are to show off the slim, athletic man and bulging pockets just don't do a thing for the look!"



Making the most of your closet space: hang men's suits with the trousers folded over a hanger, make compartments to hold small items and use a door peg board for ties, belts and shoes.

Tuna Potato Casserole combines an unusual blend of tuna, cottage and Swiss cheeses and spinach layered with potatoes.

How do you like your potatoes? Baked, fried, whipped, boiled? Or, you may be one of many whoshysaway from potatoes because you had heard at some time that they are fattening. Sad, because a baked medium-sized potato provides only about 100 calories (approximately the same amount as a large apple or banana) and has no more carbohydrate value than these fruits. It's the fats, gravies, and sauces commonly served with potatoes that increase the calories.

Let's talk about Idaho potatoes, the Cadillac of all potatoes. Though well known as the finest baking potato, they are also excellent for hashing, mashing, french frying, scalloping, salad-ing, as well as baking . . . but how you cook these potatoes makes the difference in bringing out the best in them.

When baking potatoes, spare the foil or spoil the potato. The much too prevalent custom of enclosing a potato in aluminum foil to bake ruins the texture — it steams rather than bakes. The moisture is retained rather than driven out, which is the ideal goal in baking potatoes. In an emergency, when baked potatoes must await diners, it's OK to wrap the baked potato completely in foil to keep them warm, but only as a last resort.

Scrub potatoes well. Dry. Make tiny steam vents in potato with a few pricks with a fork, before baking. It's to assure fluffiness and that desirable dry quality in the perfect potato. As soon as the potato is baked to the soft-to-the touch stage, use a fork to cut an "X" in the top and push some of the potato through with slight pressure so that some of the snowy inside shows. Potatoes should bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour and 25 minutes to 1 hour and 30 minutes.

Boiling potatoes — warning: Don't drown them! A mere inch of water in the bottom of a tightly covered pan is the gourmet way to boil potatoes — and, keep the potatoes' jackets on. For certain potato dishes, potatoes must be peeled, but to serve these potatoes at their best for flavor and nutrition, boil them in the peel. After boiling and draining, shake the potatoes in the pan over low heat for a few moments to dry them out and "fluff" their texture.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

4 potatoes
one-third cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
4½ teaspoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk

Pare potatoes and cut into ⅛-inch crosswise slices. Place in a buttered 1½ quart baking dish. In a medium saucepan melt butter; add onion and cook until tender. Remove from heat and blend in flour, salt and pepper. Stir in milk. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly and comes to a boil. Pour over potato slices. Bake, covered, in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 1 hour longer, or until potatoes are tender. Yield: 4-6 servings.

TUNA POTATO CASSEROLE

2 cups (1 lb.) creamed cottage cheese
1 egg
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Swiss Cheese
1 can (6½ or 7 oz.) tuna

1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
2 teaspoons salt, divided
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 potatoes, pared and sliced

In large bowl mix together cottage cheese, egg, onion, Swiss cheese, tuna, spinach, lemon juice, thyme, 1 tsp. salt and pepper. Pare potatoes, slice very thinly. Place half of potatoes in greased 2-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt, spread half of cheese mixture over potatoes. Repeat with remaining potatoes, salt and cheese mixture. Cover and bake in 400 degree oven 30 minutes, uncover and bake 30 minutes longer, until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork. Yield: 6-8 servings.

BEEF AND POTATO CASSEROLE

In large skillet break up ground beef. Cook over medium heat until browned. Add onion, celery and celery leaves; cook 5 minutes. Stir in mushroom soup, milk, Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper. Remove from heat. Pare potatoes and slice thinly; place half of potatoes in greased 2-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon salt. Spoon half of ground meat mixture over potatoes, repeat with remaining potatoes, salt and meat mixture. Information please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Ma. 02026.

Mrs. J.W., Norwood, writes:

"This past summer, our family toured the midwest in a camper. People in trailer parks are unusually friendly and I was given the following two recipes by a retired school teacher, Miss Emily Nightingale. I am sure your readers will enjoy them as our family has again and again.

OVEN CHICKEN FRICASSEE

3 tablespoons all purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1 2-½ to 3 pound broiler chicken, cut up
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
1 can (10-½ oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
two-thirds cup evaporated milk

Combine flour, salt and paprika. Brush chicken pieces with melted margarine; coat with flour mixture. Arrange chicken in an 11x7-inch baking dish and bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Drain off all excess fat. Meanwhile, while chicken is baking, in saucepan combine soup and milk; cook and stir till heated through. Pour mixture over chicken. Cover baking dish with foil. Continue baking till chicken is tender, about 40 minutes. Remove foil the last 10 minutes. Serves 4.

Question: I've inherited my grandmother's waffle iron and have decided to have a waffle and coffee get-together. The recipe I have for plain waffles is good (we tried it out this past Sunday) and I thought I'd give my guests a choice of waffles. Could you recommend something other than the plain waffle which I serve with warm maple syrup and honey? Thanks.

Mrs. C.F.M., Canton

Answer: You'll find these waffles delicate, delicious and very special topped with a drift of lightly sweetened whipped cream!

GINGER DESSERT WAFFLES

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon orange peel, grated
2-½ cups all purpose flour
1 tablespoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
two-thirds cup buttermilk

Cream butter or margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla and orange peel. Sift flour, measure and sift again with ginger, cinnamon, salt and baking soda. Add flour and buttermilk alternately to butter mixture. Bake in waffle iron. Serve with ice cream, whipped cream or warm syrup.

Question: Is it possible to find a recipe for baked macaroni and cheese that does not call for making a white sauce? Somehow, everytime I attempt to make a white sauce I end up with paste and yet I'd like to serve the macaroni and cheese to my family. Hope you can help me.

B.R., Norwood

Answer: I do have a recipe for baked macaroni and cheese that doesn't call for white sauce, however, I suggest that if you buy a small wire whisk, your white sauce problems will disappear. Here is the recipe you're looking for:

EASY BAKED MACARONI AND CHEESE

7 oz. elbow macaroni
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¾ pound American cheese, thinly sliced
2 cups milk

Cook macaroni, following directions on package. Rinse in cold water and drain. Arrange a layer of macaroni in greased 2-quart casserole. Dot with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover with a layer of cheese slices; repeat layers until all ingredients are used, ending with cheese on top. Add milk. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour, or until milk is absorbed. Serves 6

We encourage readers to share their recipes in this column. Our thanks to Mrs. Maryann J. for her recipe for Chinese Pepper Steak which she says has been a standby for many years.

CHINESE PEPPER STEAK

1 pound round steak cut 1 inch thick
¼ cup shortening or oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons soy sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
1 cup canned bean sprouts
2 tomatoes, quartered or 1 cup canned tomatoes
2 green peppers, seeded and cut into 1 inch pieces
½ tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
4 green onions, sliced

Slice steak as thinly as possible in short crosswise pieces. Heat shortening or oil, garlic, salt and pepper in a skillet and in it cook the beef until brown on both sides. Add soy sauce and sugar, cover and cook over high heat for 5 minutes. Add bean sprouts, tomatoes and green peppers. Cover and cook for 5 minutes. Stir in cornstarch dissolved in cold water and cook, stirring until sauce is thickened. Sprinkle with green onions and serve with cooked rice. Serves 4 (This recipe can be doubled.)

Question: Do you have a recipe for a plain pot roast that cooks with vegetables. I'm rather new at cooking and the dish I'm looking for is one that my mother would have called a Sunday Pot Roast.

C.T. McD

Answer: For Sunday or any day this is a stick-to-the-ribs kind of main dish!

POT ROAST AND VEGETABLES

3 to 4 pound boneless pot roast
1 can (10-½ oz.) condensed beef broth
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 small carrots, cut in half lengthwise or larger carrots cut in chunks
2 medium yellow turnips, pared and quartered
8 small whole white onions, (about ½ pound)

In large heavy pan, brown meat on all sides (use shortening if necessary). Pour off fat. Add soup (undiluted) and seasonings; cover. Cook over low heat for 2 hours. Add carrots, turnips and onions. Cook 1 hour more or until done. Stir occasionally. Remove meat and vegetables to heated platter. Spoon off fat; thicken sauce with flour for desired consistency. Serves 6-8

The Baptist Youth Fellowship of Myrtle Baptist Church, West Newton, will observe Youth Sunday and the BYF anniversary Sunday, Jan. 30, with the following activities:

Guest speaker for the 11 a.m. worship service will be Bernard Brooks of Marlboro. A native of Cleveland, Ohio, he did his undergraduate work at Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, where he graduated with a B.A. in psychology. Brooks is currently enrolled at Andover Newton Theological School. He is married to Nancy Parker and they have one child, Cinamin Joy.

The Baptist Youth Fellowship will furnish music for the service.

Following the worship service will be a pot-luck dinner in the fellowship hall of the church.

At 3 p.m. that afternoon the Brandeis University Gospel Chorus will be presented in concert at the church. The community is invited to worship and fellowship with our youth throughout the day.

Rabbi Benjamin Ravid

Rabbi Ravid named Gordon Professor at Andover Newton

Rabbi Benjamin C. I. Ravid of Brandeis University has been appointed the Rabbi Albert I. Gordon Visiting Professor in Judaic and Intercultural Studies at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre.

The professorship is a memorial to the late rabbi of Temple Emanuel in Newton Centre who was a lecturer in Judaism at Andover Newton from 1952 until his death in 1968.

"Rabbi Albert I. Gordon left a deep and lasting impression on the lives of all who knew him at Andover Newton," said Dean George W. Peck.

"It is therefore with gratitude that we are able to announce the appointment of the first person to occupy the visiting professorship established in his memory."

"Prof. Ravid brings to Andover Newton a brilliant academic record and a breadth of knowledge which will add significantly to our educational resources. The course he will teach will relate the history of the Jewish people in Europe to contemporary experience. It will be available for cross registration within the nine schools of the Boston Theological Institute."

Born in London, Prof. Ravid came to the United States in 1948 and now resides in Waltham. He is associate professor of Jewish history in the Department of Near Eastern and Judaic Studies at Brandeis and previously taught in the Department of History at Canada's McGill University.

He earned his B.A. degree from Brandeis magna cum laude with distinction in history. His M.A. and Ph.D. degrees are from Harvard University and he received an M.H.L. degree and was ordained as a rabbi at Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He also studied at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Rabbi Ravid has served on the Academic Advisory Board of the Canadian Foundation for Jewish Culture and is presently on the Board of Directors of the Association for Jewish Studies. He is currently engaged in research on the Jews of Venice with emphasis on their legal and economic history.

The rabbi is editor of the two volume Hebrew "Iyyunim Bemahashevet Yisrael" by Simon Rawidowicz, and his book, "Economics and Toleration in Seventeenth Century Venice," will appear in the monograph series of the American Academy for Jewish Research. His articles and book reviews in Jewish history have been published in numerous Jewish and general journals.

Student wins smoke detector

Robert Heaps of 734 Centre St., Newton, a student at Bigelow Junior High School, won a smoke detector this week from the Fire Prevention Council, a nonprofit agency in Boston.

Heaps, 13, filled out a contest form that his aunt brought home from a Boston school. He told the importance of fire escapes and knowing where they are, and also mentioned that fire drills are used to teach about how to act when a fire is found.

Over 100 school children from 20 Greater Boston communities won smoke detectors in the contest called "What Fire Safety Means to Me."

Wall-to-wall carpet no longer a luxury

It wasn't too long ago that wall-to-wall carpeting was considered a "luxury". Cushioning plus installation costs were an integral part of the total cost of the carpet purchase.

Today 12"x12" carpet squares are designed specifically with the do-it-yourselfer in mind. As homeowners and apartment dwellers — men and women alike — have gained more experience and confidence in home improvement jobs, the task of installing self-stick carpet squares has become more and more popular.

When carpet squares were first introduced, they came only in a limited selection of styles; now there are luxurious sculptured shags as well as level-loop qualities. With pressure-sensitive adhesive on the backs, there is no mess, and little preparation of the floor is necessary other than making certain the surface is perfectly clean and dry.

Most carpet squares have a texture or a tweedy pattern, so that no matching is required; seams are scarcely noticeable when all squares are down.

Available in a broad range of colors, styles and prices for every room in the home, these handy squares achieve a wall-to-wall "look" in a job that appears professionally done.

After extensive consumer testing, one manufacturer — Armstrong — is now packaging ten squares to a box to make it simpler for the consumer to determine the approximate cost per square foot as well as to estimate the number of packs or cartons needed for a room.

Installation of carpet squares is easy.

1. Measure the room first to find its center point. At mid-way points of opposite sides, snap chalk lines to locate the center of the area. Use a carpenter's square to make sure you have a right angle.

2. Lay a row of loose squares along the chalk lines in one quarter of the room in the shape of a large "L". (Notice that as you peel the protective paper from each carpet square, there's an arrow on the back to indicate the direction of the carpet pile; be sure to place all squares with arrows pointing in the same direction.)

3. To fit the squares along the room perimeter, place a loose square on top of the last full square, pile side down. Then take a second square and fit it against the wall. Make a pencil line on the paper side of the first square. Cut the piece and drop it into place.

4. In or around an irregular area like a pipe, simply make a paper pattern of the space you must fill or allow for; trace the pattern on the square and shape it with a scissors or knife. For a finishing touch on exposed edges in doorways, use metal door trim or reducer strips available at dealer or hardware stores. While not absolutely necessary with higher pile carpet squares, shoe molding nailed to baseboard over carpet edges will give a trim, professionally installed look to a finished floor.

Thousands of average "handy" persons are installing carpet squares every week. It's one of the easiest and most rewarding of do-it-yourself jobs if planned with care and if directions are followed.

Complete instructions and illustrations including a chart for estimating exactly how much carpet to buy, together with maintenance instructions are available free by writing Armstrong Cork Company, Dept. 4-76, Lancaster, PA 17604, for "How to Install Do-It-Yourself Carpet".

South five bows to Concord, conquers Acton

By ROBERT GOLDMAN

On Tuesday, Jan. 18, the Newton South Lions traveled to Concord to meet the Dual County League leading Concord-Carlisle Patriots. Concord came into the game with a 3-0 record in the Dual County League.

One of their victories was an impressive win against Lincoln-Sudbury, a team that crushed the Lions by 30 points a couple of weeks back. At the outset the Lions had a disadvantage; guard Gary Simon wasn't able to make the trip to Concord because of illness, and Steve Tankel was out with a broken nose.

The first quarter was a low scoring one as both teams played defensively. However, Concord came out on top in the quarter 16-12. For South, Mike Stollar and David Frim combined for 10 of their 12 first quarter points.

In the second quarter South did a little better as they outscored Concord 14-12. Peter Baumberg directed the offense well throughout the quarter while also scoring 4 points, both baskets coming on his own steals. But the big story of the game so far was the fact that through 2 quarters Concord had yet to shoot a free throw, as the Lions were able to stay out of foul trouble. This enabled the Lions to go into the locker room at halftime down by only 2, 28-26.

The third quarter was the Lion's best of the game. Their defense held Concord to only 8 points while their offense poured in 15 with Stu Taylor getting 10 of them for South. When the third quarter ended South had a 5 point lead at 41-36 and it looked as if they were going to win their third game of the season.

In the fourth quarter Concord came back, and with 1:30 left in the game, they had pulled to within 1, 49-48. Then with 1:04 left, Peter Baumberg was fouled and injured on the play and had to be helped off the floor. Barry Green replaced him to shoot two free throws; he made them both to put South ahead 51-48. But not to be counted out, Concord came back.

Peter Pestalozzi made a free throw with 30 seconds left to make the score 51-49. Then Bill Craig hit 2 free throws with 20 seconds left to tie the score at 51 all. And then with 14 seconds left John McNally made 2 free throws to account for the final score of 53-51 in favor of Concord.

BEAT ACTON-BOXBORO

Last Friday the Acton-Boxboro Colonials traveled to Newton South to meet the Lions in what will probably be the most talked about game of the season. With 17 seconds left in the game and the Lions leading by 10, the referee called a technical foul on Acton for delay of game. The Acton coach objected and was tossed out of the game. Gary Simon made 2 free throws and then the entire Acton team walked off the floor, rrsulting in a final score of 75-61 and South's third win of the season.

The first quarter of the game was all Newton South as their defense limited Acton to 6 points while their offense scored 17, with Mike Stollar and David Frim combining for 14 of their 17 first quarter points.

Balanced scoring in the second quarter provided South with 23 points while they held Acton to 13 points. The first half ended with South in a commanding lead by 21 points 40-19.

In the third quarter Acton outscored the Lions by 7, 20-13 closing the gap to 14 at 53-39. But they still had a long way to go.

In the fourth quarter each team scored 22 points with Mike Bryant of Acton getting 12 and Gary Simon getting 12 for the Lions. Six of Simon's 12 points in the quarter came on free throws, four of them coming on technical fouls against Acton's coach

South's third win may prove costly since Michael Stollar reinjured his ankle and may have to miss their next game. However, on a good note for South, Andy Wise returned to the starting lineup after missing the first half of the season because of a broken wrist; and he played the entire game.

The Newton North hockey team won its seventh straight game last Wednesday, beating Suburban League rival Brockton, 4-1, at the Brockton rink.

Tom Hagerstrom potted a pair of goals for the winners, while teammate Glen Buckley added a goal and assist and Gordie Moore a pair of assists. Jim McHale had Newton's other goal.

The Tigers went out to an early 1-0 lead after one period, but were tied at one in the second. Newton came back with its second and winning goal later in the frame and then added two more scores to insure the victory in the final period.

Hagerstrom's first goal came at 7:41 of the opening frame. Tom came out from behind the net and tucked it in. Assists went to Buckley and Moore.

After Brockton tied the game, Jim McHale, just a sophomore, got Newton's second score, assisted by Jack Bellevue and John Gaudet.

In the third period, Hagerstrom's unassisted tally made it 3-1 at 2:21, and then Buckley scored on a power play tip-in at 4:36. Moore and Lee Waxman assisted.

The Tigers were to meet Quincy last evening, before meeting Rindge Tech in a makeup this afternoon at 3 p.m. North will meet Rindge Tech again this Saturday at 5 p.m. at Boston College. Next Wednesday, North will face Brookline at BC at 3.

North's high-scoring junior line of Hagerstrom, Buckley, and Waxman are really netting the goals now. Hagerstrom has 21 points on the season. During the seven-game win streak, Buckley and Waxman have helped out with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

North's 7-3 record keeps the club in title contention, along with Waltham, Weymouth North, and Weymouth South.

North grapplers down Weston, Brookline

By STEVE KRUTT

The Tiger matmen have really come on strong at this midpoint of their wrestling season. This week's victims were Weston and Brookline. The seasons slow start can be attributed to the involvement of a number of wrestlers and coaches in the football super bowl. That is only history, because the Newton North wrestlers have arrived and they are making their presence felt.

On Wednesday against Weston, the JV's once again started things off on the right foot by winning 24 to 8. This gave the varsity a psychological advantage going into their match. The Weston team consisted largely of lower classmen.

However, Newton North found itself in trouble at the outset, as Greg Sotir was pinned. Dave Gasdia also lost in every hectic match by the score of 14 to 13. At 114 pounds Kevin Bengtson came through for the Tigers winning easily 14 to 2. He has been one of their most consistent wrestlers as of late.

Rich Kim returned to the lineup, after missing most of the season up to this point, with a back injury. He made his comback known as he pinned his opponent in just 32 seconds of the first period. Roy Hebard and Tim Scarlett at 128 and 134 respectively, both lost by two points. Scarlett made a fine showing as he wrestled a Division Two state champ by the name of Brian Leach, and held his own.

At 140 pounds the second half of the Kim Brothers, Eddie, got an escape just before the buzzer to obtain a 3-3 tie. Co-captain Neil Johnson lost, 6 to 2. That was Weston's last taste of victory for the evening, as Newton North pummelled the remaining four weight classes. John Angelucci filled in for injured co-captiin Jim Acheson and he did a remarkable job. He managed a 9 to 5 win, wrestling with reckless abandon.

Exciting was the only way to describe the next match as Dave Larkin pinned his opponent in only 57 seconds. Big Tom Parker followed with a head-lock pinning combination to clinch the contest for Newton North. Peter Hiltz put the icing on the cake with yet another pin. He used a head-lever pin to do away with his opponent. The final score was a convincing 34 to 20 victory.

The next match pitted the Tigers against Suburban League rival Brookline. There was an unbelievable spirit of camaraderie and team togetherness, as the Tigers filled the gym with a deafening noise. First the varsity cheered on the JV's to a 42 to 8 win.

Then the Tigers put on an amazing show of team depth. Newton North wrestled its Varsity B team and soundly defeated the Brookline varsity lineup. It was a night that will always be remembered in Newton North wrestling history.

Greg Sotir accepted a forefeit at 100 pounds. Dave Gasdia acted as the catalyst to start the explosion of points which were to follow. He picked up 5 team points for the Tigers with a 12-0 victory. There was no stopping Senior John Robbins, who took advantage of the opportunity to break into the starting lineup. He pinned Stuart Blackman of Brookline in the first period. At 121 pounds John Larkin stayed right with the Brookline co-captain and in the third period Larkin turned him and picked up a pin.

Steve Krutt wrestled one weight class above his usual 121 pounds, but he overcame the weight disadvantage. In a free scoring contest he came out the victor 16 to 13. The next so called "second-string" was Brett Goldberg. He pinned his opponent with all the poise of a varsity "A" wrestler. Newton North now led 32 to 0.

The fireworks continued when 140 pounder Harry Shainian recorded Newton's fourth pin against Brookline. Steve Rowland lost Newton's first match, as he couldn't pick up the needed point in a desparately fought 1-0 loss. E.A. Morgan bounced back with a 7 to 0 win.

At 169 pounds, Shota Aki wrestled a scrappy match and lost to a strong opponent 10 to 2. Rich Kent proceded to pick up 3 team points for Newton North with a convincing 6 to 2 win. Heavyweight Peter Hiltz recorded his second pin of the week in the second period. The final was an unbelievable 50 to 7 win for the Tigers.

This victory exhibited the overall depth, as they used only 2 of their regular varsity starters. More importantly, it pulled the team closer together, since many of the unsung heroes got the opportunity to show their wrestling abilities.

This week the Tigers battle Methuen on Friday. On Saturday, Newton North will travel to Wayland to participate in a quad. They will team up with Concord-Carlisle and oppose Wayland and a team from upper state New York

Tiger quintet splits

By BRUCE DANZIGER

The Newton North basketball team played two games last week, beating Brookline, but losing to North Quincy.

Neither Newton nor Quincy put many points on the board in the first quarter at the start, but as the quarter wore on, the tempo picked up. The score after one period was Newton 10, North Quincy 6.

In the second quarter, it was neck-and-neck all the way, with the teams exchanging the lead several times. North Quincy led, 22-20, at halftime.

Newton held a few brief four-point leads in the third quarter, but North Quincy came back and made it close again. The tempo was very fast. After the period, it was 32-all.

In the final quarter, it remained close throughout. With one minute left in the game and the score tied, 40-all, North Quincy got two buckets and won the game, 44-40.

Newton's leading scorer was Tom Morog with 13 points. Mike Gill led No. Quincy with 16.

Top Brookline

This game started quite close, but Brookline began to take control near the end of the period. They led, 15-12. In the second quarter, Brookline continued to dominate the game and built up a nine-point lead. The Tigers, though, didn't quit and cut the lead to 30-26, at the half.

Newton took control in the third period, playing good all-around basketball and at the end of the frame it was Newton 40, Brookline 38.

In the final quarter, it was nip and tuck. With one minute left and the score tied at 51, Mike Gloor made a field goal and then Rich Proia clinched the game with two free throws. The final score was 55-51.

Newton's leading scorer was Gloor with 14 points.

Newton Catholic five splits pair

By CHRIS SWAN

The Newton Catholic boys varsity basketball squad split in action played this past week at the Newton Catholic Gym. On Sunday, they played the team from Saint Josephs, in a game that proved to be no problem for the boys.

The Lancers broke it open early and after the first period, the score was 20-6, N.C. Saint Josephs then tried to come back in the second quarter and pulled that lead down to eight, 33-25. But, like in the first quarter, Newton Catholic got hot and blew Saint Josephs out.

Not only did the offense get moving, but the defense also rose to the occasion and turned in their best single quarter total, by allowing only four points in that quarter. The final score was 70-46. Ronny Moan (16 points), Lenny Connaughton (17 points), and Danny Taylor (12 points) all had good names.

This was the first non-league game of the year for the Lancers, and even their "in all" record at 4 and 4.

In the other game this week Newton played Saint Patricks of Watertown. The Lancers couldn't stop the leagues hottest team. The Green and Gold of St. Patricks came out strong and pulled away from the Lancers early. At intermission the score was 56 to 31. The second half proved to be no more successful for Newton Catholic as they lost the game by the score of 95 to 51.

Danny Taylor had 12 points for Newton Catholic while league leader Kevin Mannix added to his average, scoring 34 points. This loss puts Newton Catholic's league record at 3 and 5.

The girls also split this week. They won their first game of the season by beating the Saint Columkilles Crusaders. The final score of this game was 53 to 44. Sandra Bradley was outstanding for the Lancers in this winning effort. In the other game played, the powerful Saint Patricks team from Watertown proved to tough for the Lancer team and walked off with a 62 to 44 win. Once again Sheila Daly had a strong game.

On the Junior Varsity scene the girls keep rolling on, winning two more, running their winning streak to 4 and putting their record at 4 and 2. The girls showed their dual versatility by playing and excellent defensive game on Tuesday on their way to an 18 to 12 victory over St. Columbkille's and then coming back and scoring 39 points against St. Patricks on Friday, winning 39 to 15.

The experience being gained by such players as Carmel Conaughton, Fabiene Anselme and Lisa Del Grasso should help make Newton Catholic the team of the future in this league.

The Junior Varsity boys also had an excellent week. They beat St. Josephs by a score of 63 to 52 with Billy Kearney and Timmy Hoban leading the way. The followed up this win with a victory over Saint Patricks. This was the first defeat by St. Patricks in over twenty games. The score of this game was 36 to 34 in overtime.

Swimmers bow to Bedford

By PAUL CUTLER, SCOTT SEIDMAN, and EILEEN GOODMAN

Despite their gallant effort, Newton South's varsity swim team lost to Bedford, 111-59.

Bedford is one of the strongest teams in the league. Even with Newton South's best effort, they only managed to pick up one first place and that was by co-captain Mike Feldstein in the 200 individual medley.

Throughout the entire meet, the Newton South swimmers dropped their times considerably. Specifically, those were the times of John Miller and co-captain Scott Seidman, who received times of 1:18 and 1:23, respectively, in the 100 butterfly.

Paul Cutler received his best time by getting a 1:00.5 in the 100 freestyle. Many sophomores' efforts have proven to be great assets to the team. First-year swimmers Kevin Hayden, Chris Chaloff, Mike Kanehelias, Bob Goodman, and Jim Flemming help to strengthen the team.

Mike Agulnick's efforts were especially appreciated in diving against Bedford. Juniors Rich KOsowsky, Steve Phillips, Paul Cutler, and Scott Seidman have the much-needed experience and they strengthen the team considerably.

Coach Bill Grimes along with the rest of the team will be very disappointed if the swimmers do not reach their potential this year.

Although so far, the team has a poor record of 1-2, this year's swim team has proven to be the strongest in many years. The swimmers are optimistic for the rest of the season because they have already faced two of the strongest teams that they'll swim against all year.

The next several swim meets are against weaker teams and South's chances of victory are becoming greater with each meet.

Newton South girls' basketball

By ELLEN KORELITZ

After a four day vacation from school because of snow, the Newton South girl's basketball team had their first game against Weston. With one days practice on Tuesday the 11th the girls headed toward Weston on the 12th. It was tough getting there because of the roads but they arrived safely to play the game.

The game didn't go well for Newton at all. The four day vacation was clearly a main factor in the loss. Newton was not prepared nor psyched for the game. Throughout the game, the whole team was in foul trouble. Although there were a few good plays by Newton, the game was just not played well. This was Newton's first loss in the Dual-County league. The final score of the game was 48-35.

Newton will look forward to meeting Weston later on in the season on their home court to even up the win-loss column.

The very next day, Thursday the 13th, Newton faced Bedford at NSHS. This game was originally scheduled for Friday the 7th but unfortunately it was snowed out.

This was a first in Girl's Basketball at South. It was a 6:30 night game. The stands were fairly crowded, the cheerleaders were on hand and the band provided entertainment during time-outs and intermissions.

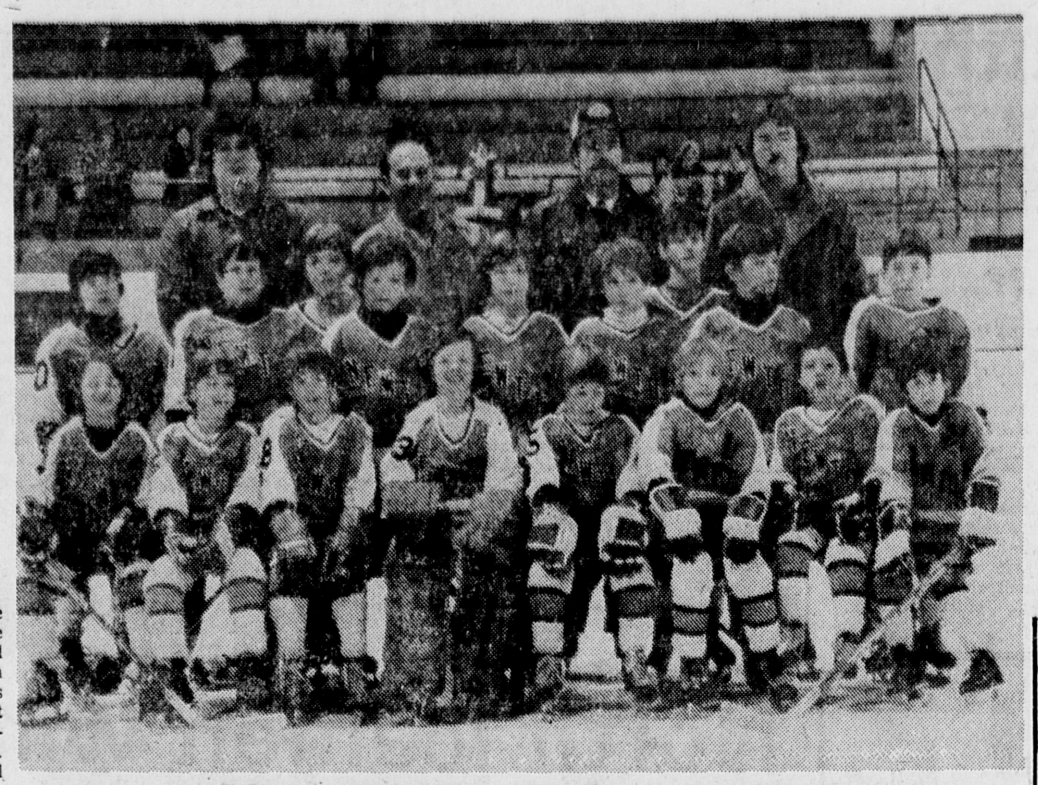
The J.V. girls played first and clinched their game with a 23-12 victory. The varsity was all ready to match (even double) the J.V. score.

Mindy Kingston jumped and controlled the tap. Newton did not score on the first play but they scored soon after. Bedford took the lead at first and Newton played basically a "catch-up" ball game. At one point the team morale got very low as Bedford racked up a 12 point lead. The game was a very fast moving game and it was hard for Newton to set up their plays with Bedford pressing.

After a while the Lions read the defense and played a fine game. There was some excellent individual play as well as team play by both teams.

The key point of the game was when the Lions put on the man to man press. Sophomore Kim Seaborn stole the ball twice in a row to chalk up a quick 4 points. After that it was all up hill for Newton. A vast improvement from Wednesday's game was evident.

The team did not get into foul trouble and they kept up the good clean play. The final score of the Newton victory was 54-43. As of now, the Lions record in the Dual-County league is 2 wins and 1 loss.



Youth Hockey Mites

South sextet bows twice

By BRIAN J. KILEY

Newton South's hockey games last week were against first place Concord-Carlisle and third place Bedford. After a disastrous loss to Concord, South bounced back only to lose a heart-breaking game to Bedford.

The Concord-Carlisle Patriots are probably the best team in the Dual-County League and I'm sure South would agree, as the Lions lost, 10-0.

The Patriots scored the winning goal a little over a minute into the game, when Dave Denaro slipped it past Albert Pazos. A few minutes later Captain George Favaloro drilled a wrist shot in the top corner.

George Favaloro then shot one past Pazos giving Concord-Carlisle a 3-0 lead. The Patriots were still not happy and Lloyd Stevenson slipped it in putting South down by 4. The period ended, but South's misery continued as in the 2nd period Fran Dee tipped in Favaloro's slapshot.

Rick Terrio joined in the fun putting the puck past Dean Kahr giving the Patriots a 6-0 lead. The Lions started pressing, but Concord goalie Harry Hederson handled hard shots easily and South couldn't put it past him. The Patriots had no such problems and with 4:32 left, Dave Chase fired it in giving Concrod-Carlisle a 7-0 lead at the end of the third period.

At the start of the third period, it was clear that the Patriots were not going to let up. Fran Dee scored his second goal again with George Faverolo assisting. At this point, the Lions skaters were trying to do it all alone and were getting no place. The Patriots on the other hand stuck together and Chuck Higgins after stick-handling nicely drilled the puck into the top left hand corner making the score 9-0. A few fans stayed the rest of the game only to see if Concord-Carlisle would reach double figures. During a jam in front of South's net, the puck popped in and South had given up 10 goals, the most they had surrendered all season. South welcomed the siren as enough was enough.

South on Saturday night went to far away Assabet Rink. Strangely there were more Lion fans at this game then on Wednesday. Maybe they had not heard about the 10-0 loss. The Lions and Bucks proved to be gracious hosts as they played an exciting and hard hitting game.

Unfortunately for South, Co-Captain Howie Cooper was not able to play, but Jimmy Hendrix took his spot on the power play doing a fine job. South fore-checked well and kept Bedford in their zone for most of the period. In a face-off in Buck territory, the draw came back to Peter Cappadona who blasted a slapshot through goalie Arthur Sevienac and the Lions were on the board. The Lions were overjoyed with their lead, but their happiness didn't last long, 25 seconds to be exact.

Buck Captain Pete Bifafer sandwiched by the South defense passed the puck to Assistant Captain Jim Griffiths who poked it in. The first period ended in a stalemate in every sense of the word.

The second period was much like the first. During a Buck power play Dean Kahr came up with a great save. After making a save, the puck squirted loose, Kahr found himself down and out of position; he reached with his stick and blocked a shot that looked like an easy goal. After the penalty had expired Don Moore stole the puck in front of the Bedford goal. Moore's play surprised everyone including Arthur Sevienac and the score was 2-1, South.

This time the lead lasted 48 seconds befoe Dave Collins fired a slapshot through a screen past Kahr. The Lions got into trouble with penalties at the end of the period and had to play defensively.

The defensive trio of Bobby Tresca, Peter Cappadona and Nat Heard played well and on one Buck power play allowed no shots on Dean Kahr. When the period ended the teams departed in to the lockerrooms with the game still unsettled at 2.

In the third period, the Lions made a mistake resulting in a pass to a wide-open Bedford man in front. Dean Kahr came up with the save of the game, keeping the score a tie. The play was getting rougher and the pressure mounting as the time was running out. When Steve Comley's slapshot was apparently drifting wide, Winger Neil Anderson tipped it in and the deadlock was broken. A short time later, Dave Collins beat Kahr with a wrist shot.

On a 2-1 break Don Moore picked up the puck and lifted it over Sevienac. Down 4-3 with a little over a minute to go, South gambled and pulled Kahr putting on an extra skater. That move was very risky and Mark McGary showed why, scoring an empty-net goal.

Steve Comley then scored two goals with 21 and 2 seconds left. So the game ends 7-3 in what was actually a very close game. Dean Kahr played his best game of the season stopping 31 shots. If South plays this well the rest of the season all their games will be Standing Room Only!!!

South runners lose to Concord, 50-36

By ROB MOREHOUSE

A good effort gave results as the Newton South runners went gainst powerful Concord. It ws not a win but the score (50-36) was fairly close and gratifying after previous years. It showed some wonderful efforts by many runners.

In the two mile, Eddy Koning took secondin a fairly run race. The mile was a shutout despite a great race by Jay Broadnax (5:08) who just missed third. Tim Willimas and Frank Oten had troubles but still finished strong.

The 40 was uplifting as Greg Jackson and Fred Hochberger (both 5.0) tried for first with powerful efforts. The 300 had had a nice surprise as newcomer Stan Samkange (36.8) showed his mettle as he took second. John Fraser (37.7) pushed hard and took third with John Forti (38.3) right behind him.

The 600 went well as Paul Daniels (1:21) ran a beautiful race and won. Dan Alsup and Jeff Rubin (who was pushed) tried hard but did't make it. The 1,000 had Dave Arons (2:35) run a very strong race to take second while Charlie Strandge (2:38) had a great kick at the end to take third. Tom Alsup was a bit off.

Steve Hall (6.4) won by a great effort in the hurdles and Freddy Amisangioll (6.8) took third with a strong run. The high-jump went well as Mike Westerkamp (5'6") had a good day and took second, but backups Charlie Strange and Frank Otten did not place. Despite little warmup in the shotput, Adam Ostrach (46'8") threw well and took second. It affected Kenny Green who didn't do too well, but Mark Kase (37') improved.

The relay (Adam Ostrach, John Fraser, Paul Daniels, and Steve Hall) ran well but lost a close one.

It was a great effort agains a strong team and surprisingly close. Maybe it is an indication of what's ahead for the season. Only time will tell.

Girls Track

The girls had a busy week with two meets (practice and regular). In the practice meet they demolished Somerville 60-16 as many girls shone. The Concord meet was a loss, and though not as close as the boy's (49-28), the girls had a lot of good efforts and ran well. It was a good week.

The practice meet was a highlight as Somerville won only one event. Times were good (atmosphere relaxed) and the girls did wonderful with big winners being Suzanna newton (40,300, and High Jump), newcomer Dianne Wilcox (600) with a great effort, Kathy Brauneis (Shotput), Steffie Jacobsin (1,000) who made a beautiful kick to win it, Debi Spielman and Sue Steinberg (hurdles) who got a tie. A large number of seconds and thirds came from Penny Shockett (300 and 600), Wendy Shahon (40 and high jump), Mara Seely (mile), lene Tocci (mile), and Jeannie Dimichael (300) who had a especially fine effort. It was a great meet for all.

The Concord meet was not such a great meet, though the effort were still good. A wonderful surprise came in the mile when Linda Irvine, running it for the first time, ran a marvelous race to take second. Mra Seely (6:39) ran well but mised third while Sandy Calderone hung right in there. The 40 went well as Wendy Shahon (5.4) and Marion Kirshen (5.6) took second and third with great races. Michelle Leblanc, trying it for the first time, did not quite make it.

In the 300, Suzanna Newton ran a masterful racd and won it. Jeannie Dimichael (43.9) and Leslie Propp (44.1) ran beautifully but just missed third. The 600 had great efforts by Penny Shockett (1:40) and Dianne Wilcox (1:41) as they took second and third.

In the 1,000 Steffie Jacobson (3:13) put on another marvelous kick but could only get third. Ilene Tocci finished strng to back her up.

The hurdles were a bit disappointing as only Sue Steinberg(7.7) placed, taking third with a good effort. Joanne Lefuere and Debi Spielman did well and finished right behind Sue.

The shotput came out well as Kathy Brauneis (27'8") and Lianne Corbierre (23'4") took second and third. Debi Spielman and Sue Steinberg (both 23') were very close to third. In the high jump a bit tired Suzanna Newton (4'10") took third. Wendy Shahon tried hard.

The relay team (Wendy SHAHAN, Marion Kirshen, Penny Shockett, and Suzanna Newton) ran marelously to win in 1:23. But it was too little and too late; the girls had lost.

Still the meet was well run and all tried hard.

"Meet the Bruins" dinner February 7

The 7th Annual "Meet the Bruins" Dinner will be held at the Chateau de Ville, Saugus on Monday February 7th.

Mt. Alvernia five wins 1st two contests

The Mt. Alvernia High School girl's basketball team opened its season with two big victories defeating St. Clement's of Somerville on Friday 47-30 and St. Columbkille's of Brighton 57-30 recently.

Coming off last year's championship record the team was spurred by its speed and sharp shooting. In each of the games 3 members of the team scored in double figures.

Nancy Murphy '77 was the top scorer both days with 13 and 19 points. Other high scores in the games were Kelly Flynn '78, 21 points; Margaret Anglin '77, 20 points; Aimee Mulvey '78, 18 points and Laurie Barron '77, 11 points.

The key to their victory was the total team effort and the defensive quickness which caused many steals and breakaways. Mount Alvernia has a 14 game schedule this season and is looking forward to each game.

CAR CORNER

Night driving is the most common of all difficult driving situations. It is three times more dangerous than daytime driving. First of all, you cannot see as well at night. Further, one driver in five has a vision defect, ranging from impaired depth perception to night blindness. Moreover, drivers are generally more tired at night, and there are more drunken drivers at that time. A recent five state survey found that between 7 p.m. and 4 a.m. one out of every 25 drivers was inebriated.

Police get CB radio to give aid, catch crooks

The governor's special account that saved the Metco program last year may indirectly help citizens when they have accidents in homes or on streets.

Newton police recently recieved one of 36 Citizens Band radio units that were purchased by Governor Michael Dukakis to monitor the standard emergency channel of the popular two-way radios.

Chief William Quinn said Tuesday that the radio will be used to listen for pleas of help that come across the air from radios in peoples' cars and homes.

Chief Quinn said he also plans to broadcast over the radio descriptions of persons or vehicles wanted for robberies or holdups.

He plans to talk to the Newton-Waltham Area REACT group that monitors channel nine, the emergency channel, about how they might help with police protection. and assisting citizens.

CBers who come across accidents transmit on channel nine and the messages are called into police by listeners.

REACT, an anacronym for the Radio Emergency Associaed Citizens Teams' has 53 members in the five-town area that includes Needham, Wellesley, and Watertown, according to Frank Sistilio, treasurer of the club.

Sistilio, a Newton firefighter and resident, said his group is anxious to meet with the chief at their meeting Jan. 26. CBers interested in joining must be 18 and should write to Newton-Waltham Area REACT, Box 633, Newton Lower Falls, 02162.

Secretary of Public Safety Charles Barry and Civil Defense Director Louis Saba designed the program for distribution of the radios that cost $230 each. Twenty more towns will receive radios later, officials said.

Makeshift ladder used in Upper Falls break

A makeshift ladder was used by thieves to enter through the second-floor window of Paullette's Ballet Studio in Upper Falls and took $160 in cash.

Police at the scene shortly before 9 a.m. Saturday also discovered the Savoy Leather Manufacturing Co. at in the same building at 1039 Chestnut St. was ransacked. An unlocked washroom door led thieves to $45 in a cash box.

Also over the weekend police arrested Louis J. Homer III, 20, of 101 Ritchie St., Roxbury, for theft of a motor vehicle, possession of burglarious tools, and possession of a Class D substance (marijuana).

Marriott security noticed Homer driving around the parking lot and Newton detectives assisted in the arrest Friday night.

At 3 a.m. Sunday police arrested Philip Nicolazzo, Jr., 21, of 6 Gannon Ct., West Newton, for assault and battery on a police officer.

Police answered a call of a fight at Nicolazzo's home.

When Officer James J. Keegan tried to break up the fight, he was allegedly bitten on the hand by Nicolazzo, police said.

interview with a national televison network , she said.

She regretted having to use tactics similar to those she deplored and resisted, but found it was the only way that worked.

She told of another Newton man, Wally Rawlston, who received a dishonorable discharge and is now in the Bermuda Islands looking for a job.

Frank Adams, 31, of Chestnut Hill received a pardon under former President Ford's clemency program, but was strongly criticized by friends in the amnesty program for applying for it.

He performed alternative service in prisons and was cited by the state legislature for his work in a center run by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Legal In-Service Project in Boston is helping persons trying to revise discharge papers.

Joan Sherman of Brookline, a former employee and volunteer for the American Friends Service Committee, provided legal counseling for several Newton men who resisted the war.

She helped Dana Mason of Beaumont Avenue in Newtonville who had charges against him dropped before either the Ford or Carter pardons.

Frederick Salvatore Camerato of Derby Street, West Newton, was originally indicted for not fulfilling Selective Service requirements, but later was disqualified from service because of medical reasons.

Carter's pardon also covers anyone cited for failing to supply the Selective Service with the correct address, failing to register, and failing to show up for a physical or induction from the period of Aug. 4, 1964 to March 28, 1973.

Sherman noted however that the draft law was on the books until March 31, 1975, and she does not know how persons who violated the law during from 1973 to 1975 will be treated.

The veterans' agent for the City of Newton, Carleton Merrill, does not know of any stand the seven local veterans' groups have taken on Carter's pardon, but he said, "I think that any statement from any state or national group would speak for their position."

Veterans groups across the state have condemned the pardon and expressed doubts about the ability of the country to fight any future war.

Commander of American Legion Post 440 Anthony Bicchieri could not be reached for comment.

One prominent city veteran was uncertain of all the ramifications of Carter's pardon, but said, It's setting a hell of a precedent."

He realizes there have been 37 other amnesties in the country's history, but expressed fears that this one might pardon people who just wanted to get out of their duty without having a moral reason.

"I believe every person has an obligation to the country which gives us many things we take for granted.

"It goes back to the John Fitzgerald Kennedy statement, 'Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country,'" he said.

Department tried for nearly all of last year to write a suitable definition to prevent the use of a single-family house by too many unrelated persons, but could not agree on how many is too many.

The use of the Cole-Layer-Trumble real estate revaluation data may be used to determine whether there are more housing units in a given area than are allowed under the zoning ordinances, Planning Director Charles Thomas said at Monday night's City Planning Committee meeting, but that will not weed out the the legal nonconforming housing units that were created by the 1951 blanket upgrading of some north-side areas of the city.

Revaluation data will not be used to locate illegal apartments in individual houses, Thomas assured the committee.

A man attending the meeting disagreed with the prospect of perhaps not enforcing some of the zoning ordinances.

Kenneth Hartford, a leader of the conservative political group, Voice, said, "It turns my stomach to hear people talk about not enforcing the laws . . . I want what my neighborhood was, not college kids, not three families in one unit . . . We're a government of laws, dammit — enforce them!"

Ald. Wendell Bauckman commented that he does not believe in "legalizing illegal situations," to which Ald. Ethel Sheehan, sitting in on the meeting though not a committee member, responded, "You call the apartments 'illegal,' I call them 'accessory.' Sheehan said she thinks many people rent apartments in their houses just to be able to continue living here.

There may be several kinds of zoning violations, each with a different effect on the city, Chairman Morris said, and several remedies that may be applied.

Morris is particularly disturbed by absentee landlords who have subdivided houses illegally, collecting large amounts in rent. This practice puts pressure on housing costs of legal apartments and real estate in general, he said.

Building Commissioner Allan Fraser will conduct the sample investigations for building code violations as well as zoning violations.

The locations of the two-block samples were not given at the City Planning Committee meeting.

The report of the findings will be given to the committee at its March meeting.

was an ordinance requiring homeowners to shovel their walks. Somewhere between then and 1965, there was a switch from homeowners to owners of property in business districts, who are now the only people required to clear their sidewalks.

Since that ordinance and the ordinance against throwing snow from private property into the street are not enforced, members of the committee felt there is little chance of enforcing a shoveling law.

Ald. Ethel Sheehan commented, "There is no enforcement by police of anything in Newton, in my opinion." And Ald. Eliot Cohen said, "Sidewalk plowing (by the city) is a luxury. Once you have a luxury, it's hard to take it away."

But the luxury is only for the half of the city that happens to live on a school route, leaving out people on other streets, those without a car, people walking to transportation, and most of all, children.

John Densler of Auburndale told the committee that he and neighbors took pickaxes to clear corner piles and walls of ice caused by plowing of driveways.

When sidewalks are not cleared, children have to walk in the street made narrow by snowbanks, he pointed out, another hazard.

Some of the committee felt that having a path shoveled along the sidewalk would prove to be too great a hardship for the middle-aged and elderly, physically, financially or both.

Ms. Silbey commented that neighborhood children are usually eager for work at reasonable rates, and Densler suggested that a used snowblower may be bought at a reasonable price. Neighbors can help neighbors, he added.

The committee took no action on the matter and will invite city officials who would be affected to the committee's next meeting.

The committee also asked for a cost estimate on city plowing of all sidewalks. There are about 300 miles of streets.

The Conservation Commission has asked that a public-access easement to viewing sites on the property and restoration of the grounds be made part of any agreement to see sell the land and buildings.

Ald. Robert Stiller of Ward 8, who has many times said he is opposed to any multifamily housing in his ward, disrupted the committee meeting when he came nearly two hours after meeting began and found that the committee had just taken its "preference" vote for the Jung-Brannen proposal.

Stiller, who is not a member of the City Planning Committee, loudly criticized the committee and its chairman, Ald. Terry Morris, for having acted on information provided only that day, and complained that he had not received the summary of proposals.

Morris told Stiller, "You are NOT a member of the this committee, and you will NOT disrupt it!"

Ald. Robert Tennant pointed out that the request for a proposal had been out for months and that the matter had been on the docket for some time. "Where ya been, Bob?" Tennant asked.

The matter by ordinance must go next to the Finance Committee. It is not quite clear whether the Finance Committee must advertise the land and buildings for bids, since the requests for proposals might be considered bids.

The Finance Committee must determine whether the price offered is proper and make a recommendation to Mayor Theodore Mann, who will have the final say.

accepted the award on behalf of the Graphic staff.

The Daily Transcript, also published by the parent company of the Newton Graphic, Transcript Newspapers Inc., won 15 awards.

Among the recipients of Daily Transcript awards was Eleanor Siegel of Newton Centre, editor of the In Focus feature page of the Daily Transcript.

Mrs. Siegel, won a third place award in the "living page" category and a third place award for community service.

Mrs. Siegel is a former women's editor and feature writer for the Newton Graphic.

A record 1,800 entries were made in the newspaper competition. The New England Press Association includes newspapers from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The banquet was one of the highlights of a three-day NEPA convention in Boston last week that featured workshops and seminars in all areas of newspaper production.

would not change the predictions for declining enrollment for that district.

Mayor Mann changed his vote from abstaining on the closing to voting for the rescission because he feels the vote to close for any year should be made when making of the school budget for that year.

Delicata voted to rescind to be consistent with his stand against closing any elementary school.

Weeks Junior High

The closing of Weeks Junior High School was suggested in the subcommittee's report to the School Committee, but the Committee decided to wait for a faculty report on grade reorganization before considering Weeks. The report is expected in May.

LeConti distributed enrollment figures that showed that Meadowbrook Junior High School could hold all of the seventh and eighth graders from Weeks and Meadowbrook in 1978, and the ninth graders from both schools could fit into Newton South with an an overcrowding of 109 students.

texture, it begins to stiffen and must be annealed again. It is then ready for extra designs, special details, and soldering

The piece is finally treated in acid to check oxidation and tumbled clean. The jewelry can then be buffed, or lacquered to prevent any later oxidation.

Leon Apters makes earring, napkin rings, and cuff links. He has 2" cuff bracelets, belt buckles, and pendants. He also has 1 ½" scarf rings to fit any 22-24 inch silk or polyester scarf, and he now has the 3" rings to fit most longer scarfs.

Apters said, "I can actually see the finished product in my mind." This ability to picture things and then work to realize them, helps with his work. It also provided some assurance with which to begin a new career.

Kiwanis will award college scholarships

Leonard Garfield, president of the Kiwanis Club of Newton, announced that high school students of all public and parochial schools in Newton are urged to check with their school principals or guidance counselors for information regarding the annual New England Kiwanis Scholarship Awards.

These scholarships provide second semester assistance for one year towards the tuition and other costs in a two-year or four— year college, or a two-year technical, or a three-year nursing school of the recipient's own choice.

Basis for the awards are need, scholarship, character, and leadership qualities and the awards are made to deserving young people in New England without regard to sex, race, creed, color or national origin.

Funds for these scholarships come from voluntary contributions made by individual Kiwanis members in the New England District of Kiwanis International.

Kiwanis will award 27 scholarships of $550 each.

Home offices ordinance enacted by aldermen

With one last-minute change making it easier on home occupations, the new ordinance to control home offices was passed by the Board of Aldermen last week.

The ordinance allows home offices for doctors' dentists and members of other "recognized" professions and for home occupations. The offices may not occupy more space than the area occupied by 30 percent of the ground floor of the house without permission of the Board of Aldermen.

Doctors and dentists may employ two nonresident employees' neither of which may be another doctor or dentist.

The change made at a recess meeting of the Board allows one nonresident secretarial employee in a home in which a home occupation, such as a music studio, photography studio, or sales representative office, is conducted. Until the change, nonresident employees would have been banned in home occupations.

Professional offices constructed legally under building permits more than six years ago are not subject to the new ordinance, and will be considered valid nonconforming uses in regard to zoning regulations.

All others will need to obtain building permits to become legal.

Off-street parking requirements for doctors and dentists are somewhat less stringent than those for other home offices. No off-street spaces will be required for the former unless the office area is 400 square feet' when one space will be needed.

When a homeowner with an office in his or her house is unable to comply with these and the many other requirements of the new law, for the person may petition the Board of Aldermen for permissive use.

Land Use Committee Chairman Eliot Cohen commented, "If we are inundated with 70, 80, or 90 requests for permissive use, we'll know we have to go in another direction."

Fire Dept. talk, exhibit available to organizations

The Fire Department exhibit of smoke detectors and a lecture on fire prevention and conduct during a fire are now available to civic, fraternal and women's organizations.

The installation of only one smoke detector in many cases can save lives, according to Fire Lt. Joseph Daniele, although two are usually recommended.

In Daniele's lecture, he explains the types of detectors and the best locations for them.

Fire Chief Harvey Preble and Lt. Daniele extend an invitation to all organizations in the city to contact the Fire Prevention Bureau at 244-0030 if they wish to have the demonstration and lecture at their meetings.

City physician post made permanent

Burt Whitney Hall, M.D., has been appointed by Mayor Theodore Mann to be permanent city physician.

Dr. Hall has been acting city physician since October, succeeding Dr. Charles Lipson.

The 32-year-old physician is on the staff of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, where he completed his residency last year. His medical degree was earned at the University of Heidelberg (Germany) in 1971.

The recent aldermanic defeat of the Personnel Department reorganization proposed by Mayor Mann leaves the office of city physician a minimal position. The mayor's plan would have put the primary responsibility of the city physician — health care for city employees — into the Personnel Department to be conducted as the department saw fit.

The city physician's salary is $11,000 per year, and the doctor is expected to work about two hours per day.

The physician is responsible for examination of applicants for city jobs before they are hired.

He is also responsible for verifying workmen's compensation claims and for retirement claims.

Dr. Hall lives in Newton Lower Falls.

His appointment will be final if the Board of Aldermen does not actively reject it within 60 days.

The satisfaction that belongs to volunteers

Eleanor Swartz

Eleanor Swartz could be enjoying a life of comfort and leisure now that her four children are grown. She could relax and enjoy the handsome paintings hung on textured gold silk walls in her gracious home in Newton. She could be content to share the involvements of her husband, Jack, a professor and assistant director of admissions at Boston University's School of Medicine. Yet there is something in Ellie Swartz that drives her out into the world.

She is hooked on her work, first as a volunteer and now as a paid staff member of School Volunteers for Boston, Inc.

Ten years have slipped by since she left her serene environment to tutor English in the coat closets, hallways, and stairways of the dingy, poorly lit Williams and Abraham Lincoln Schools in Boston's South End. For those she tutors, English is a second language.

"There is terrible isolation," she says, "when you are in a group and you don't understand what is being said."

School Volunteers began in 1966, at a time when U.S. immigration restrictions were being eased. Non-English speaking families poured into coastal cities, and their children poured into the schools. To meet the challenge, Boston accepted a new concept: non-educators working in the schools.

Swartz' work began when the program did, but it was not long before her volunteer efforts had expanded to five full mornings a week. She screened potential recruits, led orientation and workshop sessions, and matched volunteers with requests from teachers.

Like her own involvement, School Volunteers has also grown over the years. From an organization of 28 charged with tutoring English and reading and with establisthing libraries in schools where there were none, School Volunteers now fields more than 2,500 volunteers, employs a staff of 20, and initiates enrichment programs of every variety.

Mrs. Sawartz admits that she is a crusader. "I recruit volunteers whenever I open my mouth," she says.

The organization's director, Isabel Besecker, identifies her as "a pioneer who cogently interpreted the aims of School Volunteers to the general Boston community."

Last year Besecker offered Swartz a full-time paid position as coordinator of volunteer services in the newly formed magnet schools. (Magnet schools combine a strong emphasis on basic skills with an identifiable theme such as science and technology, creative writing or performing arts. Admission, based on choice and racial balance, is open to all Boston children.)

Fearful, yet too flattered to refuse, she accepted.

'Full-time employment meant an entire change of life style." she acknowledges now.

"I can't visit art galleries and museums or spend as much time with my plants. There isn't time to work with my hands—I used to dabble in sculpture, drawing and ceramics. Running the house always interested me, and I feel dreadful that I can't give dinner parties regularly because by the end of the day on Friday, I'm spent."

Nevertheless, when her husband, whom she calls her "top priority,' travels, she often manages to accompany him. Recently they spent three weeks touring Russia, Mongolia and Siberia while Dr. Swartz gave a series of lectures to their traveling companions, American physicians and their spouses.

"I really wanted a part-time job," she confesses. "But there is nothing irrevocable about my decision. If I can't handle it, I can always give it up. I'm excited about the job, though, and the adrenalin keeps pumping."

Mrs. Swartz is the daughter of a Russian immigrant who settled in Boston and made a comfortable living from food and real estate. She has an older sister, an artist, and a younger brother, who is a radiologist. She met her husband, Jack, at Boston University and married him in 1944, the year she graduated from the School of Education. They have lived in or near Boston ever since.

"There are greater options open to women now," she says. "We didn't think of delaying things in my day; we were programmed. Girls grew up, met someone, got married and had children." (Her own children, two male and two female, range in age from 20 to 30. None are married.)

Although Swartz had her B.S. in education and two years' teaching experience when she became a school volunteer, she is quick to emphasize that experience and education are not the essential elements necessary for such work. Most important, she says, is interest in the children.

"A volunteer is not a substitute for the professional staff. Rather, the volunteer assists and enriches. Further, the volunteer has no curriculum to develop or complete.

"It's far less intimidating," she adds, "for a child to meet with a volunteer on a one-to-one basis. The volunteer can provide the kind of relaxed atmosphere which enhances learning and trust."

Swartz also credits School Volunteers with easing the transitio to desegregation in the Boston schools by "creating a climate that allowed for non-educators, community residents and parents, to come into the school system." Formerly, she points out, schools were hostile to the idea of parents becoming involved in the formal education process.

Today, working out of a small, high-ceilinged office overlookin the Ritz Hotel, Swartz is one of four staffers with a newly founded Intergenerational Program. Her job: to find openings in schools for older volunteers and to help the schools identify areas where retired business people and other senior citizens can put their skills to us

Although senior citizens, like 92-year-old Edward Clark, have served as volunteers for years, the new program provides for expansion of such efforts. Clark, the son of a slave, is a "living historian." He talks to classes about life in the rural South when he was a boy, providing a rich resource to modern urban youngsters.

"While people are vigorous, willing and interested, they should be allowed to work," Swartz says. She deplores mandatory retirement. "Too often the older person feels out of the mainstream, unwanted and useless," she says. "It's pitiful to lose this resource, the creative talent and the experience.

"In our present society," she continues, "few young people have the opportunity to call upon the wisdom accumulated by age. Too often the young person has acquired certain misconceptions about older people, and the converse is also true.

"The nicest thing about older persons interrelating with youngsters is that both experience attitudinal changes."

Under Swartz' aegis, older citizens have become involved in teaching crafts or ethnic cooking, telling stories or showing slides, or cataloguing and mending library books. Depending upon their skills, they may even be called upon for administrative assistance or to provide expertise in data processing, computer programming or audiovisual presentations.

"Ellie has worked to enhance the sensitivity to the older volunteer and to learn how best to use their talents and life experience," says John O'Loughlin, director of the Intergenerational Program. "She has given dimension to the Program."

For Swartz, however, there is also an additional dimension to her urban educational crusade. "Education was always my thing," she says. "But it's more than that. I'm uncomfortable and resentful when people identify me as a suburban person. I consider mysel a Bostonian.

"People who live in surrounding areas take from what the city has to offer. It would be very short-sighted and provincial for them to limit their involvement with the city. I believe everyone should do what he can to contribute."

Third year development plan submitted to Board

Mayor Theodore Mann has submitted to the Board of Aldermen the third-year application for $776,000 for Community Development Plan for Newton under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The third-year plan reflects the opinions and revisions obtained by citizen participation in hearings and neighborhood meetings.

The purpose of the act is to encourage the development of urban communities by the provision of decent housing, a suitable living environment and expansion of economic opportunities, principally to persons of low - and moderate-income.

In a related action, Mayor Mann has appointed five new members of the community development program's Human Services Advisory Committee, which screens and recommends proposals for funding from the human services component of the program.

New appointees are Lilly Jefferson of Adena Road, Isabel Coleman of Church Street, Maura Griffin of Central Street, Judy Stone of Manchester Road, and Janice Danielson of Linden Street.

This is an artist's conception of how Lechmere Sales latest store will look. It is currently under construction in Manchester, N.H. and will be in the Mall

Lechmere Sales' newest store to open in Manchester, N.H.

MANCHESTER, N.H. — Lechmere has broken ground for a 60,000 sq. ft. store that is scheduled to open in the early fall of this year.

The store will be the first Lechmere unit outside of Massachusetts. Lechmere is expected to employ 200 full and part time employees at the new unit.

The location of the mall is at the junction of South Willow St. and Rte. I-93, and is easily accessible from all areas of southern New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

The other two anchor tenants at the new mall will be Filene's and Sears Roebuck and Co. When completed, the mall will have over 500,000 sq. ft. of retail shopping space under one roof, and parking space for approximately 2,500 cars.

Lechmere Sales was founded by Abraham Cohen in Cambridge in 1921, specializing in hand-making and selling harnesses and other equipment for horse-drawn vehicles.

At the conclusion of World War II, the firm expanded into appliances, opening a store in Cambridge. With the introduction of television in the early fifties, further growth was rapid.

The first store expansion took place in 1963 when Lechmere doubled their space in Cambridge, then opened a store in1970. Dedham in 1965, and another in Danvers in . In February of 1970, Lechmere Sales became a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Dayton-Hudson Co. of Minneapolis. A Springfield store followed in 1971.

"We are extremely pleased to enter this fine state and The Mall of New Hampshire," commented David Banker, president of Lechmere. "Lechmere has continued to grow by going today's where the people are and merchandising for shoppers. We look forward to getting to know and serving the people of New Hampshire."

Lechmere Sales specializes in television, audio equipment, small and large electrical appliances, cameras and jewelry.

State Properites of New England, the developer of the new mall, is one of the most diversified commercial real estate firms in the area. In addition to the Mall of New Hampshire, they were the developers of the Liberty Tree Mall in Danvers. The architect for the new store is Sumner Schein of Boston. The general contractor is Davison Construction of Manchester. Store interior and fixtures will be done by Barnett Store Fixtures of West Roxbury.

First violinists needed by Newton Symphony

Openings now exist for qualified violinists in the Newton Symphony Orchestra, it was announced this week by Gary Good, manager of the orchestra.

"The need is for first violinists, and we are confident that musicians of this caliber living in Newton and surrounding communities will find participation in the Newton Symphony to be a rich and satisfying experience," Good said.

Newton Symphony Orchestra is made up of professional musicians, members of the arts, sciences and professions, students and housewives. The 1977 season still has two full concerts Feb. 13 and May 1 and a special children's concert (March 6) to play. Works by Bach, Ravel, Mahler, Saint-Saens and Bruckner are to be performed.

Regular concerts are conducted by Michel Sasson of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Soloists will include Elizabeth Mann and Jules Eskin.

For further information concerning these positions please call Mark Budd at 244-7560, evenings.

'Dark of the Moon' set for two weekends

The Newton Country Players will be presenting the folk drama, "Dark of the Moon," as their next production at the Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

Performances will be on Feb. 11, 12, 13, 18, and 19. For ticket information call 244-2160.

This tale of strange occurrences in the Southern backwoods features a large cast of area residents.

Cheryl Kaplan is playing the role of Mrs. Summey. She will be remembered for her portrayal of Flo Owens in "Picnic" and Bernarda in "House of Bernarda Alba" and has fulfilled many backstage and production assignments for the Players.

Howard Melnick of Chestnut Hill will be remembered for his role as one of the sailors in the Players production of "South Pacific" last year.

A newcomer to the Players is Margaret Sounder of Newton Centre. She has performed with the Florida Players at the University of Florida and the Lake Erie College Theatre.

Matthew Cail will be making his first appearance with the Players. He is presently a student at Chapel Hill-Chauncy Hall, where he appeared with the Barn Players.

The role of Preacher Haggler will be performed by John McGovern. He has played roles in plays ranging from Shakespeare through Albee and Kopit.

Apple Hill concert Jan. 27

The Apple Hill Chamber Players will present the third concert of the Newton Winter Series on Thursday, Jan. 27, at 8 p.m. at Temple Mishkan Tefila.

The program will consist of Mozart's Flute Quartet in D, Nielsen's Wind Quintet, and the Schubert Octet.

Richard Luby, of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y., who teaches at Apple Hill during the summer, will join the group in concert.

Tickets will be available at the door, although seats are numbered and may be reserved by calling 547-7727, the telephone of Apple Hill in Boston.

'See How They Run' is coming

The Playhouse at Piccadilly Square in Newton Centre has begun rehearsals for the third show of the 1976-77 season.

"See How They Run," a comic romp by Philip King, will be the change-of-pace show at suburban Boston's only resident professional theater and will play Feb. 17 - 27.

A mad-cap farce incorporating all the ingredients of great comedy-mistaken identity, swift pace, double-takes, and much physical action - is what "See How They Run" is all about.

According to the producers, "Anyone from 7 to 90 will enjoy this play."

Those playgoers who enjoyed last year's production of "Charley' Aunt" should repeat that experience with this show.

For ticket information and rates for groups and theater parties call 734-0400. Public previews begin Feb. 12, 13, 14, 16, and 22.

The best Boston restaurant of 1902 opened in Dedham this year.
Back when Route One was the fastest (and only) way to Florida, my father was a chef in London.
He served some of the best stews and chowders in England.
He did good and honest things to beef.
He never met a fried clam he didn't like.
And he passed away in 1918, in the Great War, never having heard of Route One.
But he left behind a legacy:
Of sincerity in sirloin, principle in prime rib, and veritas in vino.
Because he also left behind . . . me.
My tavern opposite the Prudential Center has been called the "best Boston restaurant since 1902."
And my new J. C. Hillary's Ltd. in Dedham is equally behind-the-times.
Were it not for the sometimes sound of eighteen-wheelers on 128, you might almost hear the wagons clattering along Route One toward the Keys.

Spring forecast

Mary Lawlor's

In New York Spring fashions are serenely sane. Except for a delightful dash of fantasy. The designers are finally giving the American women what they want...feather-light and unconstructed fashions, with emphasis on softness. Even the sportswear people have gone the route of softer, easier tops, fuller skirts and marked waists.

At the American Designer Showings, presented to fashion writers from across the country, well-knowns such as Halston, Oscar de la Renta. Bill Blass, Donna Karan of Anne Klein, and others, were on hand to show their collections.

In New York collections covered two color extremes, either bright and bold ... pinks with reds and purples with turquoise,or they were pale and ranged from the off-whites to the grays.

Noticeable trend accessories that popped up on the runway included:

Hair Ornaments: the casual coiffures of the Manhattan models were accented with combs, flowers, barrettes and gold bars for both daytime and evening.

Jewelry: for those on a fantasy trip, there were all kinds of big, chunky necklaces as well as the colorful rope or cord lasso and the knotted fabric choker. Shown with gowns were dramatic earrings and bracelts of all widths.

BELTS: waists were marked with belts of many different versions. One of the newest belt looks was the knotted rope worn with sportswear. Handsome wide belts were worn obi style with the long, ruffled skirts. For evening, narrow metallics were shown.

Handbags: for daytime it was the perennial envelope and a few light-weight shoulder bags. And for evening, tiny pouches and see-thru bags.

Hats: there were turbans, lots of romantic straws and a few scull caps.

Shoes: the flat ballerina is back looking great with new full skirts. There were also colorful espadrille wedges for day and high-heeled, plastic see-thrus for evening.

Final Note: there were no shockers shown for spring but rather pretty fashions amidst some fantasy.

Albert Nippon

It's been said that designer Albert Nipon got women back into dresses. Could very well be because his collector's item cottons from Europe and the United States, are super well-made dresses seen these days on such notables as First Lady Rosalyn Carter and TV's Barbara Walters.

The main fashion signal of the collection was perhaps the clearly cinched waist and swirling full skirts.

As Pearl Nipon (of the husband-wife team) said, "It's an accentuated waist but nothing is tight and many of the clothes simply follow the body without a marked waistline."

Bill Blass

Ann Klein

Anne Klein's collection by Donna Karan and Louis Dell'Olio, stressed costumes of the Americas ... Bahia flowers and colors of Brazil, Mexican shirts and shawls, Guatemalan balloon pants and Peruvian homespun cotton mesh. Altogether, the folkloric fashions were a festival of bright colors and whirling skirts.

de La Renta

Oscar de la Renta showed some beautiful fantasy fashions. There were ruffled skirts teamed with striped tops and taffeta skirts with matching vests and full-sleeved blouses.

"This look is for any woman who is romantic and well-proportioned," he said. The handsome designer also re-introduced cloque' silk, used originally by Balenciaga.

Halston

Halston, known for his statusy Ultrasuede, adds a new fabric to his collection: "Charmeuse;" a satiny-like material he's using for both daytime and evening. The one-name designer is continuing his strapless gowns and asymmetrical necklines. As in the crepe de chine striped dress shown here.

Albert Capraro

Albert Capraro, who zoomed to instant national prominence via Betty Ford's endorsement, came up with a well balanced collection. He had something for everybody – shirtwaists to fantasies. And it was all fresh, new and as colorful as the rest of the collections. After viewing his fashions, no one can say there aren't any pretty dresses around. He's got them and in wonderful ice-cream shades.

Pat Sandler

For the woman who wants non-gimmicky clothes, Pat Sandler of Originala has them. He believes in free-moving, go-anywhere outfits that are uncomplicated. For example, he's done a group of cotton knits in crisp patterns.

The fabric, which is the dictator of the designer these days, is an imported cotton and polinosico from Italy. It provides the comfortable wearability and packability needed by today's mobile woman.

Sandler has taken a stand on elasticized waists using different ways of making them look attractive. He's used sashes and self belts to do the job. He's also added some interesting scarves and bordered stoles to many of the outfits.

New Yorkers MADABOUTS

Passionate people, parties and poppies are zing-ing up the New York scene, replacing last year's tired blood. Jimmy Carter was the initial fix, our new love-God who flung his feelings at us, lifted us onto a new high. The Carters' Just Plain Folks Act might draw a few yawns from the Super-Set later on but right now everyone finds it a real good wakeup - like a smack of frozen peanut butter in the kisser at 4 A.M.

At impressario Peter Gravina's cultural crush the other night nobody needed a smack of anything to turn on. If anyone knows how to smolder it up it's those types from the Metropolitan Opera. The place was so packed with Met stars and musical wonders that it could have been a backstage coffee break at Lincoln Center. Included were powerhouse John Alexander who sings opposite Beverly Sills in Lucia di Lammermoor, the lovely Johanna Meier who just made her debut in Faust, Richard Westenburg, head of New York's famous Musica Sacra and other big deals. It is hard to make a dent in a group like that but mezzo-soprano Tatiana Troyanos did it. Tatiana has made dents before. Last year, in Boston, as the hot tiger-bodied Carmen under Caldwell's direction, Tatiana jolted opera goers to their tippy toes. This year she has the music buffs raving again about her new recording of Carmen under Sir Georg Solti's baton. If that isn't enough, Tatiana will debut this month at La Scala in Norma. That's enough.

Hanging around Peter's home-made meatballs and sluiced pate was another 100-watt bombshell: Lush blonde singer Joanna Simon. She and Gerald Walker, cultural editor of the New York Times Sunday Magazine have just returned from a Caneel Bay honeymoon. If you don't turn it on then when will you?

Pianist Byron Janis and his son Stefan showed up solamente. Byron's wife, Maria Cooper, the late Gary Cooper's daughter, wasn't able to make it, spent the weekend visiting her mother in Southampton. Byron chatted with pianist Eugene Istomin, and his wife Marta, widow of the immortal Pablo Casals. Marta and Eugene have taken over as co-directors of the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico where Byron had his smash hit last year. This year the Istomins' asked host Peter to do publicist chores for the event which will be held sometime in the spring.

Peter will also aid promotion for the Spoleto Festival which will be held in Charleston, South Carolina, May 25th to June 10th, - the first time ever in the U.S. Later it will go on to Italy, as usual.

Passion In Fashion

PASSION IN FASHION WAS SOMEPLACE ELSE ... over at Bloomingdale's you could have freaked out with Koko Hashim, fashion director of ready-to-wear who was pop-pop-poppying all over the place. "Flowers are Everything," raved Koko. "Accessories in hair, at the waist, ankle, the wrist." The big important print for spring is also floral. "Sometimes provincial," says Koko, "Then there's the chic kind in beige, black or the pretty kind in lavender." Lavender is very big this spring according to the fashion expert.

At Halston's showroom more pop-pop-poppies in Matte jersey, the vital necessary fabric. Pontificated the designer, "Large florals, shown in different combinations - is where it begins."

By now you must realize that poppies are the thing. Even in bathrooms. Sherle Wagner, bathroom designer has out-poppied them all with his new blossomy handsome bathroom and accessories. Everything in it goes mad with organic fertility; the co-ordinated wallpaper, the hand-painted basin, the faucet set, the accessories. But then Sherle is doing his usual number. Everything he touches has always shot to the top including his fabulous clients who read like an international Who's Who. Princess Grace at the head of the list.

A Sherle Wagner super-bathroom fully equipped can cost as much as $50,000. However, a simple washbasin can be had for a mere $600. Awhile back Sherle introduced semi-precious stones into his accessories and fixtures ... malachite, amethyst, rose quartz, lapis lazuli and the like. Whether he will translate all this gemmery into more poppy patterns is anyone's guess. Perhaps the Shah of Iran, another of Sherle's clients, will commission a second Peacock Throne, for the bath of course.

Passionate Painters

PASSIONATE PAINTERS ... "Murder?" cried Mexican artist Hadelin Diericx. "Nonsense!" The impressionistic painter who showed his fabulous fling of canvas fantasies in Palm Beach this month scorned the notion that hunting elephants is evil. He should know. Diericx and his wife, Maria, daughter of the late Carlos Trouyet who owned the famed Las Brisas, have gone searching for them on at least five African safaris. Diericx, a member of the international Council for Game and Wildlife Conservation, says, "The fact is, in the case of elephants, it actually ensures their propagation!" According to the artist, when you shoot an old male, you liberate the females who scatter with the young bucks - and eventually increase the elephant population." You females in the mood to scatter with young bucks should remember that.

A few years back the Mexican couple, fooling around on the border between Kenya and Tanzania, were caught between warring tribes of Masai - about three hundred of them armed to the teeth and ready for action. But the beautiful Maria hung in there and still does no matter how rough the scene. She would never dream of letting her Hadelin go off in the bush by himself. Thus the five safaris and God knows how many more to come.

At the galleries ... in Palm Beach the turnout to view Hadelin's moody masterworks was about the best you can do if you don't want to use your inherited title. Hadelin, who got one from a noble ancestor, doesn't bother with that stuff. Let the art speak for itself is his credo. It spoke well according to the bloodlines present; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lion Gardiner, Judy Grubb from Texas, Ambassador Benjamin Oehlert, Jr., Princess Evangeline Zalstem-Zaletsky ... we can stop with the Z's, but you get the idea.

But Manhattan ... Painter Gustavo Novoa, the Chilean-born artist, famed for his anxiety-free canvasses of pacified beasties was showing off his new super-calm lithographs to a bunch of elegants. This crew doesn't like its Freudian anxieties stirred up. Kurt von Schussnigg, of the Selected Artists Galleries, Inc. where Nova's works were displayed was firm about that. Kurt's father was once president of Austria and he learned all about that stuff right there in Vienna.

PARIS MATCH

John Dellaria: Bostons French Connection

John Dellaria, a name prefacing Continental Coiffure — The Choppin' Blocks. A twenty salon chain that in just ten short years are considered to be the most exciting and sophisticated operation of its kind in the United States. Dellaria and his salons are so exciting and innovative that New York now looks towards him in Boston for the latest in hair fashion trends. The same excitement recently prompted a group of the leading French beauty editors to invite Dellaria to jet over to Paris to coif models for the covers of their publications. While there Dellaria confered with Roger Para International Director of Inter Coiffure and other industry greats who prompted his decision to open a Dellaria salon in France.

France the fashion capital of the world calling an American hair-stylist, was it possible? This was the question I asked myself as I entered Dellaria's fashion headquarters housed in a five story converted brownstone, situated just off Kenmore Square in Boston. The answer came to light as I viewed a three-tiered beauty salon leading up to fourth and fifth floor executive offices and conference rooms. The subtle color scheme and uncluttered decor, blending perfectly with uncredible graphic designs, were definitely well planned. This was a totally unique approach, much different from the frilly beauty salons I remembered, giving just a hint of the man I was about to meet. The man you read about in the Vogues and Bazaars, the innovative stylist whose hair designs are perhaps the most copied in the industry. Obviously a thinking man with a winning combination of artistry and uncanny business sense that have propelled him to the international recognition he now enjoys.

John Dellaria turned out to be as unique and uncluttered as one of his salons. He is a soft spoken young man in his mid thirties and not in the least bit affected by the recognition which makes his name a household word. I was fascinated by the tale he related to me, about how it all began for him. Starting with his first salon in Newton Center working an average of twelve to fifteen hours a day. (Today his schedule calls for an eighteen hour workload). "People were always watching me work and asking how", Dellaria offered, "so I began documenting what I was doing." Things that came naturally to him seemed to amaze others. This is perhaps why every young kid who graduates beauty school in New England wants to work in one of his salons. Dellaria's techniques are now available to other professionals through his haircutting club that boasts a membership of 1,000 plus, with members from all over the globe. Most hairstylists go to schools of advanced training to further their knowledge, not so with Dellaria who is self taught and is refered to as "The teacher of teachers". A client need not bring a hair style photo to a Dellaria salon, she just has to glance on the walls of the salons to chose a Dellaria creation for herself. "I have tried working with other photographers but they can't seem to capture the feeling I want." John Dellaria turns out to be a self taught photographer also. What else can this man do? The answer is clear to me and it has to be conquering the hearts and heads of the French who are eagerly anticipating his return.

Dellaria loves France and the people. He commented "The French women and men are perhaps the most together I have ever seen." "They have a way of coordinating themselves that works." He went on to explain this by describing how even the unattractive French look great because they have a head to toe fashion aura that is super. "Working with Votre Beauty and Coiffure de Paris was great fun" said Dellaria who managed to produce over a dozen of his masterful creations for the editors, in between salon hunting in the fashionable sections of the Rive Gauche. Dellaria finds the French techniques to be about fifteen years behind his own and by going to France and doing his own thing Dellaria forecasts a bright future for his salons all over Europe. He intends to return to the Continent in early March with his American financial advisors to secure a definite location.

John with Roger Para

The Masters meet John and Guillame

Where to from there for this local fashion standout? Dellaria has his sights fixed on New York next, a reverse of the norm for most but not for this leader who continues to do his own thing. Judging by his success pattern I look for him to land on the moon any day now. FRANCIS X

HERE COMES THE BONWIT BRIDE

An audience that braved the elements was treated to one of the most beautiful bridal shows of the season. The elegant background of the Colonnade enhanced the beauty of the brides, the bridesmaids ... the handsome groom and the really handsome ringbearer. As the fashions graced the runway, it was evident that beautiful, romantic, feminine weddings are back in style. Brides with attendants, brides with ringbearers, brides with flower girls ... colors everywhere ... veils, extravagant headpieces, flowers! There were gowns by Bianchi, Piccione, Phillippa, Bridal Couture, Galina ... along with trousseau pieces by Glass, Trigere, Halston, Julio, Reiko, and Klein. All costumes were enhanced by jewels from Dorfman, but the 'jewel' of the show was Bianchi's Irish chiffon ... with the Queen Anne neckline and the flowing bishop sleeves with sprinkles of seed pearls. The 'bouquet' of the show ... the Mexican peasant gowns designed by Jeanne Fantasia and imported from Mexico. Super-formal or super-simple ... no one is more beautiful than a bride on her wedding day.

Ginny McSherry

The wedding ring ... an ancient symbol of marriage dates back to primitive times when a caveman bound the ankles of his bride-to-be with grass braid ... the Egyptians signified unending love with a bracelet ... the Greeks later adapted this in the form of a ring worn on the fourth finger of the left hand...we have continued this custom.

A popular tradition is that on her wedding day the bride shall wear ... "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue." "Something Blue" comes from the Ancient Israelites because the color blue was considered the color of love, fidelity, and purity. The Israelite bride wore a "Blue Ribband" on the shoulder of her wedding garment ... "something old" is for good luck...

The wearing of perfume dates back to the days of Ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome when young maidens preparing for their wedding day were annointed with many oils and precious fragrant bridal ungents. (I hope all brides continue this ritual.)

According to folk lore the most propitious time to be married is on a Wednesday afternoon, when the minute hand is rising after the half hour and when the moon is full. June is named for Juno, wife of Jupiter, and patroness of women. The Romans believed that prosperity came when married in June.

The honeymoon is a relic of primitive times when the groom had to remain in hiding with the bride he had taken away from her family until they had abandoned the search for her .... The word itself is taken from the Ancient Norse custom of a bride and groom drinking mead wine made with honey each day for a month to insure good luck and good health.

Grooms ... once the shoes are tied to your getaway car you assume the entire responsibility for the bride ... according to an old legend, the father of the bride gave her sandals to the prospective groom to symbolize her transfer to his care....

SHIOBAN AND CAROL

TWINKLING EYE TO EYE

Why does one decide not to write about Shioban McKenna the renowned Irish actress holding claim to the title 'one of the seven great ladies of the theatre'? It's because I have the opportunity here to erase those false journalistic rumors that paint Caroline Kennedy as some kind of an ogre, thanks to a chance meeting with her while "T" was interviewing Shioban in her dressing room at the Shubert. Shioban McKenna has been the subject of multitudes of painted praise; therefore, what little this poor pen may have added will hopefully conjure up a few adjectives for the charming and pleasant Caroline, instead, whose Irish smile has the warmth of Dublin's midday sun.

I am not concerned or burdened here with sensationalism, just a simple essay about a young Radcliffe student who arrived backstage with her entourage of young friends and a bag full of champagne which was shared by all. Watching the interview she chatted excitedly about the festivities planned with Shioban that included dinner and a round of Irish ditties to be sung at Warrenton Street's popular Stage Door piano bar and restaurant. It's hard not to notice the nonchalant sophistication that Caroline wears just as well as the twinkle she has in her eye. Was this the camera shy "better than thou" girl I had heard about? Certainly those are the words formed from the figmants of pressing photographer's imaginations, brought on by a harrassing many, at uninvited situations. On the contrary Caroline was relaxed and didn't seem to notice the photographer at all. She was openly delighted with the whole backstage scene instead. She spoke casually about her unfinished homework, left behind for a night on the town with her actress friend, to have some good old fashioned fun. My delightful experience was culminated later at the Stage Door where Caroline agreed to a photo with Shioban.

Perhaps I should continue, yet how many times can I repeat simple, direct words to describe this oft-maligned young lady who I found in no way deserving of such poor treatment. Who are we to misjudge the mighty? If the shoe were on our foot, would we wear it as well.- Was it the "T" approach that made Caroline approachable or maybe she is just a super down to earth person like you and me. I thought so and the camera never lies. It's right there for you to see! Both those Irish eyes are smiling. One set belongs to a great lady indeed, the other set to an unassuming young lady who just happens to be nice. I tip my hat to both of them and to the unnamed Chinese philosopher who said "One picture is worth a thousand words."

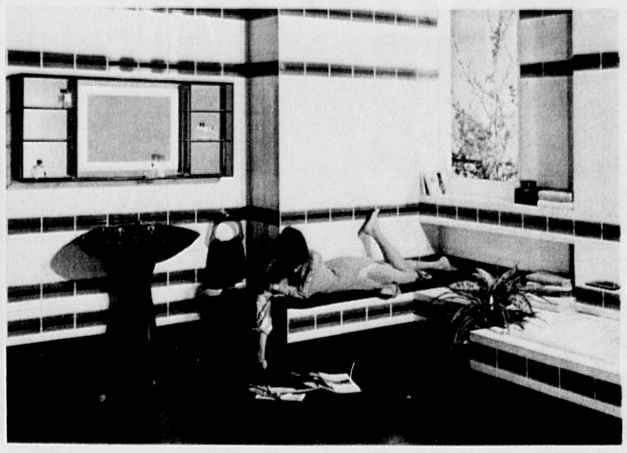
PERSONAL SPACE



There is no reason that the bathroom must be literally a "water closet." How many times have you been in a home, perhaps your own, where the foyer presents a dramatic welcome, the living room a chic showplace, the bedroom a luxurious retreat, while the bathroom resembles at best a cell in solitary? For too long we have relegated to the bathroom all the warmth and grace of a hospital laboratory. We have been content to camouflage it with wallpaper patterns of insipid pink and white swans drifting through fronds of algae. Most recently, we have turned it into a jungle habitat -- the ideal spot to humidify our most prized of prized possessions, the houseplant. Meanwhile in Europe, from sophisticated capitals to exclusive resorts, continental designers have been transforming the common salle de bain into the epitome of the Haute Monde.

Just as Yves Saint Laurent's fantasy extravaganza has captured the imagination of the fashion world, European designers such as Francois Catroux have taken over the bathroom with their spirit of adventure, innovation and flair. "Luxe, calme and volupte" are paramount. Quality materials and bold personal statement -- a real sense of style -- transfigure the tired white-on-white tiled cell into a sybaritic delight.

> The last status symbol of the twentieth century is space. JOHN SALADINO

To explore these impressive trends in bathroom design, I spoke to Joe Ciarmello, manager of TileFashions, the largest and most complete ceramic tile showroom in New England, located at 525 Providence Highway (Route 1) in Norwood. (There are two other TileFashions stores in the Boston area, one at 85 Newbury Street, Boston, the other in the Beverly Plaza, 45 Dodge Street, Beverly.) TileFashions is dedicated to introducing exciting European design concepts and materials to the American consumer at affordable prices. The Norwood showroom has many bathroom displays offering complete settings of new products to stimulate the imagination and to prove how innovative the smallest bathroom can be. Having just returned from one of his regular European visits, Mr. Ciarmello is very enthusiastic about the latest approaches to bathroom design there.

In Europe, the bathroom is not an afterthought," Mr. Ciarmello maintains. "...Their bathrooms are like our living rooms. The Europeans consider it a focal point of their homes." In Europe the bathroom of the future is already a reality. In addition to counter and cabinet space for all the cosmetic necessities and luxuries, ample space is provided for dressing and undressing. You can relax in the bath with a television nearby to catch up on the daily soaps, a stereo to offer mood music, a telephone extension for those lengthy chats with friends (reclining in their bath with their telephone extension), a jacuzzi to jet away those daily tensions, a refrigerator to chill the wine you sip while soaking. In one corner there is a platform for you to lounge on with a sunlamp or skylight for you to lounge under. Here you can read the current bestseller or practice your yoga or TM. Exercise equipment turns the bathroom into a mini-gymnasium. Taking the cue from Japan or ancient Rome, there may even be a communal area where you, in your Fernando Sanchez robe, can leisurely entertain your most intimate friends. In short, the European bathroom is a room for living – less antiseptic, less anonymous, more inviting, more personal.

Space, of course, is a primary criteria -- the physical space to incorporate this all-encompassing fantasy environment and the psychological space to provide a sense of privacy in our overcrowded world. The bathroom of the future is destined to be no longer the smallest room in the house. Meanwhile, even with the limited size of the average American bathroom, it is possible to create the illusion of space with the sleek streamlined look of European design. Throughout the TileFashions Norwood showroom, for example, bathroom settings like those photographed above re-create the continental style and sophistication. Here imported decorative tiles in vivid colors form bold graphic patterns to expand the visual dimensions of the room -- a very different effect from the small scale and timid pastels of the American versions! Color can alter the complexion of any space, for dramatic effect and, especially in the bathroom, for cosmetic value. TileFashions personnel, trained in color, provide help in selecting tiles to complement and update even the dreariest of existing fixtures. For the total look, TileFashions also offers a line of Italian pedestal sinks as well as French cabinets, mirrors and accessories which revolutionize those formerly disparate, awkward fixtures into a play of elegant, sculptural forms. Because TileFashions stocks most of these imports, that touch of Europe is often immediately available. Isn't it time to transform that "water closet" into your own private world? If style is the art of living well, and if living well is the best revenge, isn't it time to pamper yourself with style?

Isn't mere functionalism no longer enough? In today's world the home is more and more a haven, a more comforting, more sheltering atmosphere in which to retreat from the tensions of the outside world. In these fast-paced, pressurized '70's, we are beginning to discover that the bathroom can be more than a strictly functional cubicle. It can assume a central role, as in Europe, as a place of physical and psychological renewal. It can be a "super-spa" where health is a state of mind as well as a condition of the body. It is a total environment -- the last refuge, an arena of joy and rejuvenation, the most personal of personal spaces.

Completely restored, the building provides a perfect setting for Old Ironsides memorabilia.

With not more than the few hours it required to change fortunes and make America a world Naval power, fortunes similarly changed at the U.S.S. Constitution Ball Dinner Dance and Casino Night Game of the Year at the Museum Building at the Boston Naval Shipyard.

Living up to its advance billing as the event of the year, the party was located on two floors of the U.S.S. Constitution Museum Building designed by Alexander Parris, the designer also of the Quincy Market Place near Fanueil Hall. It was planned in 1832 as a machinery house for a drydock owned then by John Quincy Adams. The old granite building hard by the Constitution provided a quite appropriate rallying point for Boston Socialites and Museum Foundation Members for the seventy dollars per couple Black Tie Dinner Dance.

The Museum was the inspiration of Rear Admiral Joseph C. Wylie (USN-Retired). After he had seen a museum in England commemorating Lord Nelson's victory he suggested a similar project for Old Ironsides at old Boston Naval Shipyard in Charlestown. Now children visiting this site can see all sorts of historical relics donated and loaned by museum supporters from all parts of the U.S. Included in a journal in which a captain's scribe recorded how the ship on an anti slavery patrol in the mid 1800's destroyed a slave ship and returned the captives to their homeland. Here also is a hand written copy of the poem, "Old Ironsides", the poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes that was believed to have saved the ship from becoming flotsam scrap in 1830.

The U.S.S. Constitution Museum launched with no government funds but mainly with keel money from several interested Bostonians, needed additionally some $225,000 to insure the preservation of historical artifacts so that 700,000 American school children who visit the Constitution each year might have films, slides and other study materials. Toward this goal a Dinner Dance and Casino Evening was provided under the auspices of the Ladies' Committee of the U.S.S. Constitution Museum Foundation Inc.

After being piped aboard and greeted by men dressed in the Navy regalia of the past the order of the evening was gambols, grog, and gambling (with play money of course). Winnings were converted into cash and used to bid on various auctioned items including a vacation in St. Thomas, use of a ski house in New Hampshire, jewels by Dorfman and gift certificates for facials at Elizabeth Grady.

Some 300 guests at the party of the year began the evening with gourmet hors d'oeuvres and cocktails served on the first floor and then moved upstairs for a dinner of lobster bisque, roast tenderloin and raspberry mousse. Carnations were given to the men; Chanel Vials to the ladies. Music was by the band from Betty's Rolls Royce.

Celebrants included restaurateur Anthony Athanas, the Lawrence Albres, the Sumner Dorfmans, Mercedes Bermudez deMeyer, Consul of Venezuela in Boston, the Julius Vogels and Mrs. William Cumming. As well as the F. Brooks Fenno Jrs., the Edwin A. Meyer III's, the James F. Hunnewells, the Peter Benninks, Mrs. Joseph C. Wylie, Natasha Vogdes, the Peter Wicks, the Richard A. Berensons, the Hugh Dysarts Jr's, Alfred W. Archibald, Francis P. Sears Jr., and the Carlo H. Tosis'.

Noted among the Navyminded supporters of the Museum were City Councilman Larry DiCara; Deputy Mayor, Mrs. Louis Kane and Mrs. Josiah Spaulding.

Mrs. Charles Francis Adams was honorary chairman of the evening, with Mrs. Colemen F. Church III of Boston and Mrs. Edward F. Logan of Hingham, co-chairmen. Among the 53 ladies on the committee are Mrs. Tyrone Martin of Cohasset, whose husband is captain of Old Ironsides; Mrs. Alexander MacMillan of Hingham; Mrs. Thomas E. Morris of Wellesley, whose husband is an admiral in the Naval Reserve; Mrs. Kenneth W. Bailey and Mrs. Robert Eddy of Scituate; Mrs. John M. Bleakie, of Cohasset who has charge of reservations; Mrs. J. Richard Lamere of Duxbury; Mrs. Robert Benson, Mrs. Gregory P. B. Boardman, Mrs. William Cox, Mrs. James Grinnell and Mrs. N. Frank Neer, Jr., all of Cohasset; Mrs. Alan G. Carr and Mrs. Charles A. Pearce of Hingham; and Mrs. Henry Vickers, Mrs. Donald Sohn and Mrs. Robert C. Dean of Wellesley Hills.

The huge success of the event has insured that it will be an annual event each December. The chairman for the 1977 U.S.S. Constitution Ladies' Committee is Mrs. Coleman F. Church III.

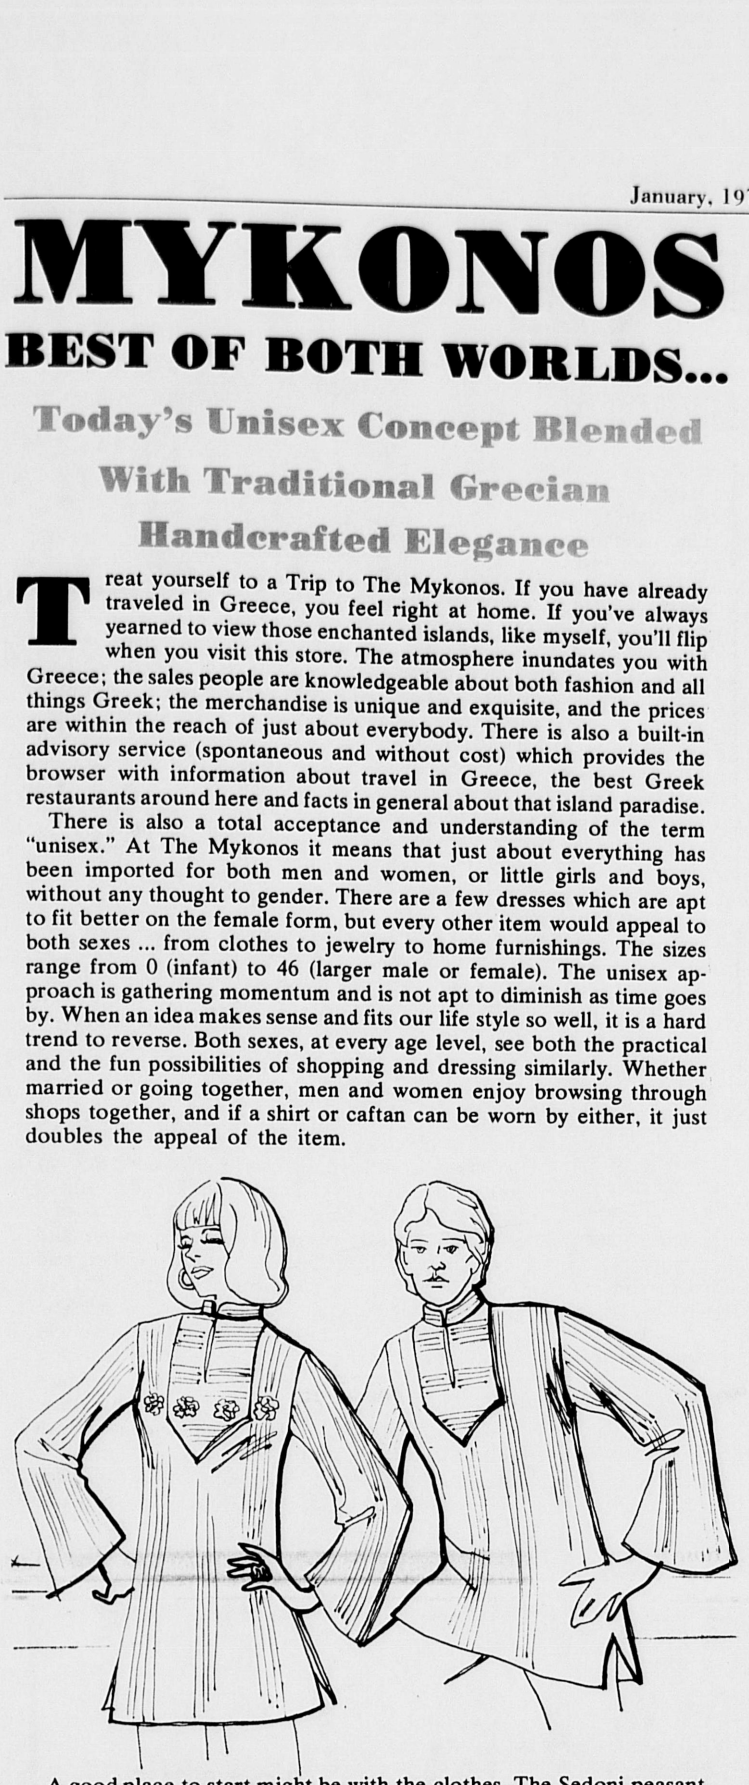
MYKONOS

BEST OF BOTH WORLDS...

Today's Unisex Concept Blended With Traditional Grecian Handcrafted Elegance

Treat yourself to a Trip to The Mykonos. If you have already traveled in Greece, you feel right at home. If you've always yearned to view those enchanted islands, like myself, you'll flip when you visit this store. The atmosphere inundates you with Greece; the sales people are knowledgeable about both fashion and all things Greek; the merchandise is unique and exquisite, and the prices are within the reach of just about everybody. There is also a built-in advisory service (spontaneous and without cost) which provides the browser with information about travel in Greece, the best Greek restaurants around here and facts in general about that island paradise.

There is also a total acceptance and understanding of the term "unisex." At The Mykonos it means that just about everything has been imported for both men and women, or little girls and boys, without any thought to gender. There are a few dresses which are apt to fit better on the female form, but every other item would appeal to both sexes ... from clothes to jewelry to home furnishings. The sizes range from 0 (infant) to 46 (larger male or female). The unisex approach is gathering momentum and is not apt to diminish as time goes by. When an idea makes sense and fits our life style so well, it is a hard trend to reverse. Both sexes, at every age level, see both the practical and the fun possibilities of shopping and dressing similarly. Whether married or going together, men and women enjoy browsing through shops together, and if a shirt or caftan can be worn by either, it just doubles the appeal of the item.



A good place to start might be with the clothes. The Sedoni peasant shirt (named for the virtually indestructible cloth) comes in a vast array of colors and patterns (with or without embroidery) and looks marvelous in his and her combinations. Incidentally, it just happens to be exactly the right look to top pants this spring for both sexes. It is sketched above in a striped blue version that blends beautifully with jeans ... sized 32 to 46, with adorable editions for the small folk. Caftans (hooded or not) are inspirational and dwell as comfortably at home as at the beach or poolside. Sketched is a classic style on him and a newer version dubbed the "aba" on her, which is actually just two huge squares which are stitched together from underarm to knee. The other sketches highlight the fashion-right drawstring waist pants which come in a variety of fabrics and colors. These styles are basic to the collection and are imported in appropriate colors and fabrics according to the season.

This spring, The Mykonos sees importance in the area of color. The handsome homespun naturals will continue in demand, as before, but there will be more emphasis on vibrant shades. Greek colors are muted naturally but, at the same time, they are intensely rich. The jumper dress promises to star for spring. Incidentally, cotton or wool tell the fabric story. The only synthetic carried is an Italian import ribbed turtleneck top that is so sensational in color and fit that it just could not be bypassed. The handmade, natural-colored, crocheted styles are sure-fire in warmer weather or winter trips to sunnier climes ... tunics, vests, fringed shawls, handbags and belts.

Jewelry is a story unto itself. The real fun item is a collection of hand-decorated huge beads in assorted shapes, colors and sizes ... one purchases a selection of them along with any length suede or rattan cord to string and knot as desired. "Do it yourself" fun at any age level. There are hand-wrought, exotic, sterling silver designs, old or modern, as only one-of-a-kind styles can look. Some are set with semi-precious stones as lapis, cornelians and hand-cut agate slabs. The unisex jewelry is merely sensational ... it is designed in every color and look and length ... there are some stunning black leather ropes trimmed with dramatic nickel and brass beads. Don't miss the brass bracelet keyrings which slip over the wrist and are actually findable in the handbag. Practical also is a string of "worry beads" and "evil eye" charms which certainly add to the psyche as well as the outfit.

Other import exclusives you should check for wardrobe prospects are the thin gauze Sedoni shirts, cotton or wool knit jackets and slipons, the striped peasant cloth jacket with heavy knit collar and cuffs and waist trim, rugby stripe sweaters, the caftan dress in incoming short summer lengths for town wear, the important little shorts looking new in wrap style, wool ponchos in unusual weaves, the Mykonos homespun cotton tote bag, solid babushkas trimmed with coins and beads, Greek fisherman shirt which looks like a skivvy with undershirt neckline, Captain's hats in wool or denim, children's accessories and clothes including hooded jackets with heavy woolen top-stitched seams and embroidered Sedoni shirts.

Boston's COLONNADE HOTEL is fast becoming the center of "firsts". They were the first hotel to revive a popular tradition of TEA DANCES that were a Sunday must of the late thirties and early forties. These afternoons of dance were inaugurated last season and became "instant successes". They were currently going into their second year (this season's series are being sponsored by the FRIENDS OF THE PUBLIC GARDEN) and are attracting capacity crowds of age levels running from teens to middle-aged and mature. All age categories are enjoying this current craze of "nostalgic playbacks".

This season another "first" for the COLONNADE are the CAMEO CONCERTS which represent an unprecedented musical format which should become a standard part of the social and cultural life of Boston. What are these Cameo Concerts?

Members of the BOSTON POPS ORCHESTRA, conducted by HARRY ELLIS DICKSON are presenting a series of two-hour programs including both classical and contemporary music. The setting for these concerts will be the intimate HUNTINGTON SUITE where tables are set up in "Pops-Fashion". The atmosphere is informal and very similar to the famed London "PROMENADE CONCERTS". During the concerts champagne and petit fours are served. This salon of the hotel has a limited seating capacity creating an intimate rapport between patrons and the orchestra.

This in a sense is another "nostalgic-revival" format. Many years ago several hotels offered this type of Sunday entertainment on a lesser scale. The famed old Boston HOTEL BRUNSWICK (now torn down) used to be the scene of Sunday concerts offered by a string quartet. That grand classic resort hotel WENTWORTH-BY-THE-SEA in Rye, New Hampshire still offers evenings (in the summer-during the Social Season) concerts by the WENTWORTH SYMPHONIETTA. One other hotel that was famous for their Sunday Musicales was the ST. ANTHONY in San Antonio, Texas. There they also featured string quartets.

This current series (three Cameo Concerts -- January 23rd., March 6th., and May 1st.) were the concept of AMOS O. JUSTER, Managing Director of the Colonnade Hotel. His idea was aided in development of the plans by Harry Ellis Dickson and WALTER PIERCE, Executive Director of the BOSTON UNIVERSITY CELEBRITY SERIES.

This debut season of the concerts is sponsored by the EYE RESEARCH INSTITUTE of RETINA FOUNDATION. Proceeds from the series will benefit this organization, the world's largest and most productive institute devoted exclusively to the study of the eye.

During a recent press interview, Harry Ellis Dickson spoke of the concerts in his inimitable "unstuffy manner". "These are intimate, informal concerts of fine music in varied styles. Some serious, some purely entertaining. This is the format of a so called Pops style."

Mr. Dickson introduces each piece the orchestra plays. He gives a brief background of the composer and he also talks about the musician who plays the work. The late great Deems Taylor was noted for this narrative prelude prior to hearing a work. Mr. Dickson's anecdotes are definitely not "music appreciation" talks. This form of narrative he personally abhors. He keeps his stories brief and down to earth. These concerts also include soloists such as Rolf Smedvig who was featured in the Trumpet Concerto in E flat major of Haydn. Two brilliant violinists Emanuel Borok and Victor Yampolsky will be featured in the March 6th. concert playing Bach's Concerto for Two Violins in D minor. The last concert of the series to be held on May 1st. will feature pianist Myron Romanul playing Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 in G minor, Op. 25. Mr. Dickson also said during his "T" interview that he hoped "In addition to the musicians of the Boston Pops, I hope from time to time to present outstanding, talented young people from Greater Boston, of which there are a wonderfully high number."

These concerts performed by 27 players include "something for everyone". For the pure classicist there is Mozart, Bach, Haydn, Vivaldi, Corelli and Boccherini. The romantics are represented by the music of Tchaikovsky, Schubert, Strauss and Massenet. If this serving is too "heavy to the ears", then there is the wonderful repertory of musical comedy scores, Loew's "My Fair Lady" and Bock's "Fiddler on the Roof".

The committee members of this series are drawn from some of Boston's most outstanding social leaders. Honorary Chairperson is Mrs. Edward A. Taft, a lift long supporter of the symphony; General Co-Chairpersons are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hynes, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pearlstein.

Accessories for the home offer a tremendous array of hand-crafted designs which can be found no place else. There are colorful ceramic Rhodes tiles and coasters of classical or modern Greek motif ... hand-woven wool place mats and runners ... hand-carved stone owls ... glycerine soaps in arresting scents ... beautiful icon pictures ... unusual Greek wrapping paper ... hand-carved Metsovon flutes ... records of Greek music ... Greek cookbooks and games ... stainless steel skewers with brass sword or steer handles ... decorative, old, copper and brass furnishings as large covered pots and pitchers ... flokati shaggy wool throw rugs which simulate fur ... hand-woven striped blankets and bedspreads ... hand-carved golden jewelry boxes. The list is endless. But you get the idea ... all the imports are exclusive, unusual, handmade and beautiful.

The Mykonos store on Lewis Wharf in Boston is 3 years old and there is a branch in Harvard Square and on Bowen's Wharf in Newport, R.I., as well as a cart in the Quincy Market. The quick success of the shop can be explained easily. Although the fashions and fabrics are unique and fill an important niche in the ethnic market, and the emphasis on unisex is timed exactly right for today, that is only part of the success story. The prime factor is that the people who shop there feel personally involved with the store. They feel that they have discovered an environment and merchandise that they can relate to, and really enjoy buying and wearing. They feel an empathy with Greece and its beautiful crafts and its warm and intimate atmosphere. How many shops can offer so much? Treat yourself to a Trip to The Mykonos. It's the closest you may come to Greece. For me, it was almost close enough.

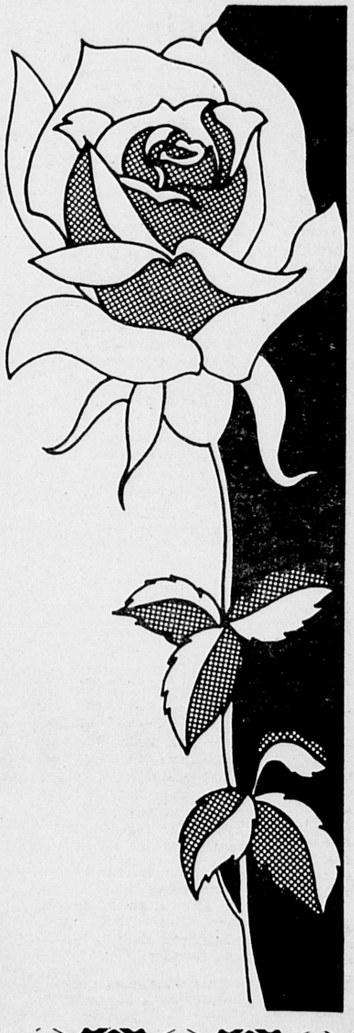
A Welcome...



. . . to the Bride and Groom edition for 1977.

Although many people associate a white wedding dress with purity, the color white actually symbolizes joy . . . certainly an appropriate wedding symbol. The early Romans wore white at their feasts, births and other celebrations. To the Greeks, the white rose was the supreme symbol of joy.

Thousands of years later, newlyweds still traditionally wear white to communicate their joy to the world.

Understanding that modern couples rely on tradition, we have designed this supplement as a blend of both customs and contemporary ideas.

Here you will find useful and up to date suggestions for budgeting, furnishings and fashion to fit the lifestyle of the 1977 couple.

So before embarking upon your loving voyage together, look through our new, practical guide designed especially for the new Mr. and Mrs.

Young couples can use practical gifts!

Since the age of liberation is upon us, it may be time to consider some new and different kinds of wedding gifts — gifts that may not be glamorous or beautiful heirlooms, but will be indispensable to the bride and groom as they set up housekeeping.

For instance — in order to set a good table and run a kitchen properly, they'll need a really good set of carving and chopping knives — the old-fashioned kind, with carbon-steel blades that'll hold an edge. A sharpening steel would be handy too.

Or, for the house or apartment, get them a good set of tools: a couple of hammers of different sizes, a monkey wrench, Stillson wrench, pliers, and screwdrivers. Or a power drill. Chances are they've both been making do with cheap tools, and not enough of them.

And for the car, if they have one — a set of socket wrenches. Perfect!

Emma's: tradition and style

For the bride-to-be planning to hear those wedding bells this spring (and it isn't so far away), a visit to Emma's of Dedham, at the lights in Dedham Square should be on the schedule.

Now in her 15th year in the Square Emma's has solid foundation under her when speaking of her popular bridal shoppe. "We have the selection, the know-how and the most qualified staff to make a woman's wedding a day to remember for the rest of her life", says the personable Emma Shapiro.

And what better testimonial can a prospective customer find or hear than from an already constant customer. Said Mrs. Doris Spink of Quincy one recent afternoon amidst the hustle and bustle of brides-to-be with their mothers, "I first came here for a graduation gown for my first daughter, and I have kept coming back". Mrs. Spink was with her second daughter to be outfitted by Emma's for a bridal gown.

"There isn't anything we won't do to please bride", points out Emma, "Whether it be an adjustment and another adjustment".

Emma says the shoppe is geared to please not only the bride, but also the bridal party, mothers and guests.

Emma herself is probably one of the main reasons people from all over New England make a stop at Dedham Square. "I'm very particular and I like to make sure every girl looks just right", she explains. Detail is an essential with the conscientious Emma.

"Our girls (Emma's has a staff of between 25-30) will attend to the most personal details a bride needs", says Emma.

And though bridal gowns are among some of the more expensive wardrobe items, Emma's can satisfy most everyone. "We cater to the budgets from the highest to the lowest, depending on customer requests. And there is always a rack with the reduced gowns for the budget conscious Miss", adds Emma.

Selection is the key word when talking about Emma's. Every type gown is available. "Our bible is the Modern Bride and Bride Magazine. The showroom carries gowns from the most casual to the most traditional and elegant. When asked how many gowns are displayed in her showroom, Emma could only respond, "Oh-oh-oh, there is no way, there are hundreds".

Emma, because of her long experience in the business, is an excellent consultant for the inexperienced bride-to-be and her mother.

For example, "It is very wrong" to plan on wearing a gown a size smaller and lose weight "unless the girl is on a controlled diet".

"Some girls will lose weight and others will gain before their wedding. I advise them to let our consultants give the propoer proper size", explains Emma.

She said every bride of every type imaginable has walked into Emma's and walked out a happy customer. From 16 up to over 70, and for ladies on their second and third weddings, we can please them all".

For the flurried mother-of-the-bride or groom, a full line of gowns are carried from the simple understated to the very elaborate chiffon.

Outfits for the complete bridal party, graduation group, choiral society, or whatever you need for formal attire, it is there at Emma's.

Emma appreciates a phone call from you before you make a visit.

Try Emma's. The rest of New England is.

Some helpful hints to keep a married-size wardrobe fresh

An unwritten part of today's marriage contract is the sharing of responsibilities. Hopefully, you'll be marrying a man who will do more than just throw out the garbage to help with the household chores, but chances are the traditional woman's task of doing the laundry will remain your responsibility.

To cope with the increased two person volume of laundry as well as the tough stains men can manage to get on their clothes, without an increase in your time and effort, learn to streamline your routine with effective methods, products and procedures.

Many stains and soils just will not wash out with detergent alone. To wash away the most stubborn soil and stain problems, pretreat clothes with Spray 'n Wash® laundry soil and stain remover. Just spray it on soil and tough stains, wait 60 seconds and then launder clothes in the usual way with your regular detergent.

If your husband-to-be wears heavy-duty clothes, it's also a good idea to wash these items separately from delicate wardrobe items.

Fine washables are best cleaned by a gentle cycle to keep them looking their best, and the rough agitation of work clothes could possibly damage them.

Always check the permanent care labels sewn into clothes by manufacturers for the proper water temperature before washing any garment.

Quality at Cooley's

Based in Boston on 34 Newbury Street, and having served generations of Boston brides since 1860, Cooley's dinnerware and stemware store continues to be the top specialist in the gift and bridal registry service in the area.

Cooley's have two other stores in Concord and Hingham.

Run by the same family since its inception, Cooley's present general manager - vice president Charles Thomas, a Cooley nephew, is very knowledgable in the china and glass field.

Renovated just before Christmas, Cooley's in Boston and Concord carry over 500 dinnerware patterns, perhaps, since it is the only facet of the business outside of an excellent bridal registry service, may be the best.

As for the bridal registry, Cooley's has the selection, so your friends will be happy knowing they are giving you exactly what you want.

With an extensive giftware selection, Cooley's will have everything you could possibly ever be looking for.

VEINS IN SPAIN

Women in Spain covet thin, porcelain-like skin. To achieve this effect, a few of the more beauty-conscious will trace the veins in their temples with blue eyeliner.

When applied with a delicate touch, this gives the skin a fragile, almost transparent look.

Helpful hints for the househusband

"I'm a househusband."

Sounds strange the first time you hear it. But you'll get used to it. You may even be one yourself.

More and more men are volunteering for the cooking-and-cleaning corps while their wives pursue an education or career.

If you're a husband who's made the big switch from breadwinning to bread baking, take heart. The Eureka Home Care Institute has some do's and don'ts to help you outshine the househusband next door:

Do set up a schedule of daily, weekly and monthly chores — and stick to it. Don't let things pile up until you can't stand the mess anymore and your wife threatens to send you back to work.

Do wash dishes, including pots and pans, after every meal. Three little jobs are better than one big one. Don't wait till you're in the middle of preparing dinner to scour out a pot that's still dirty from lunch.

Do straighten the living room early each day. Take out old newspapers, put away books and games, and empty ash trays. Don't let yesterday's debris greet your wife when she comes home at night.

Do give your living, dining and family rooms a good going-over once a week. Don't wait till your kids start writing their names in the dust on the table tops and the carpeting makes crunchy noises when you walk on it.

Thoroughly vacuum the rugs and carpets, and wash and polish bare floors. Use your vacuum's dusting brush on tables, mirrors, pictures and bric-a-brac, and the upholstery tool on pillows, slipcovers and draperies.

In the bathroom, do change the towels when they get dirty — daily if necessary. Don't put soiled towels in the hamper while they're wet, unless you like things growing on them.

Do clean the tub and spread out the shower curtain to dry every day.

Don't put off making the bed till afternoon, or you'll end up never making it at all. Make it as soon as you've straightened the living room. While you're at it, hang up clothes and put away slippers.

Do clean the bathroom floor, sink and toilet at least once a week. If you have bathroom carpeting, vacuum it as needed. Don't wait until things get so bad that you're embarrassed to have company use the bathroom.

Do set yourself a few big chores to do once a month or every six weeks: Wash the windows, clean venetian blinds with the dusting brush of your vacuum, wash the bathroom walls, woodwork and shower curtain, shampoo carpets in heavy traffic areas.

Do a little research on housekeeping, just as you would on any new job. One useful source of information is the Four Seasons Home Care Guide, available from The Eureka Home Care Institute, Dept. M, 1201 East Bell Street, Bloomington, Illinois 61701, for 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope.

Finally, don't let housework rule your life. With today's super-efficient cleaners and appliances, it's easy to keep your house looking great — and still have enough time for Thursday afternoon poker games with the boys.

Marion-Ruth is a specialty store

"Ask your mother", could well be the motto for the Marion Ruth Store of contemporary home furnishings and gift accessories. Since 1956, modern thinking brides-to-be have found their way to this fine shop where selections of gifts, table-top accessories and home furnishings has been an exciting and enjoyable experience; and now children of these early brides continue to frequent the shop.

When Jerry Kalman purchased the shop last year the tradition of offering quality merchandise with good design and fair prices from leading manufacturers throughout the world was assured to continue.

Kalman previously directed The Upper Story and Design Research operation, successfully developing resources that today supply the lifestyle products that make for easy living.

At the time of its establishment in 1956, the Marion Ruth store of home furnishings was one of its kind. Located at 1385 Beacon St. at Coolidge Corner in Brookline, the store was the only shop of contemporary furnishings in the Boston area

The range of goods includes dinnerware, flatware, furniture and glassware, all in the contemporary vein. Most are imported, and they have a large enough stock that most of the goods on display can be carried home by the purchaser.

Another interesting feature of this shop is they carry a number of handcrafted items such as ceramics, glass and weavings. These handcrafted goods are made by artisans from the northeast.

Former brides and brides-to-be staff the shop and are involved with the merchandise selection so that information and knowledge is readily conveyed by involved people

A bridal registry service and vast array of credit cards are among the offerings at Marion Ruth. Deliveries are free.

The business hours at Marion Ruth are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday - Saturday. Telephone calls can be made to Marion Ruth with 734-6620.

Marion-Ruth . . .
where June Brides get gifts that July Housewives won't return.

At Marion-Ruth we know how many bridal gifts that arrive one month go back the next, or are put on a closet shelf forever. So we spend lots of time selecting gifts that are beautiful, practical, and timeless; specifically designed to be used now and forever after.

Here you will find contemporary home furnishings from leading designers and manufacturers.

Dinnerware from Arabia, Block, Dansk, Denby, Royal Copenhagen, Rosenthal . . . Flatware from Lauffer, Dansk, Georg Jensen, Fraser . . . Glass stemware, barware, and accessories from Orrefors, Kosta, Boda, Holmgaard, Sven Jensen . . . Gourmet Items from Copco, Dansk, Sabatier, Heller, Guzzini . . .

And crafts and woods and linens and plastics and planters and just great gifts from great manufacturers, selected to make it better to receive and easier to give. So come in to Marion-Ruth with a list of things you would like to receive or give and our staff of brides and future brides will be delighted to help. At Marion-Ruth we make it better to receive.

Dreams come true at Dimitri's

"It's tears and laughter...it's music and the glances shared during the wedding toast...it's the pictures and the goodbyes. It's you...the bride...looking like his dream come true!"

The philosophy above was devised and will be followed by a designer named Dimitri Andros, who has opened one of Dedham's newest showplaces, called Gowns by Dimitri, Inc., located at 283 Washington St., Dedham, at the rotary.

Mr. Andros, or rather Dimitri, came to America from his birthplace, Athens, Greece, and has established a reputation of a man of outstanding design talents.

He is a designer par excellence and has thus put his talents in a brand new bridal salon - Brand New Everything! This new innovation in bridal merchandising, claims Dimitri, is distinctive in this area. The salon is designed for the utmost, updated, luxurious comfort and privacy (as it should be) for the bride or her party.

The Dimitri Salon has everything for the bride.

All this combined with the newest breathtaking 1977 collections of bridal gowns, bridesmaids, mother of the bride and flower girl gowns are backed by the stocks of all the leading gown manufacturers in the United States and Europee Europe.

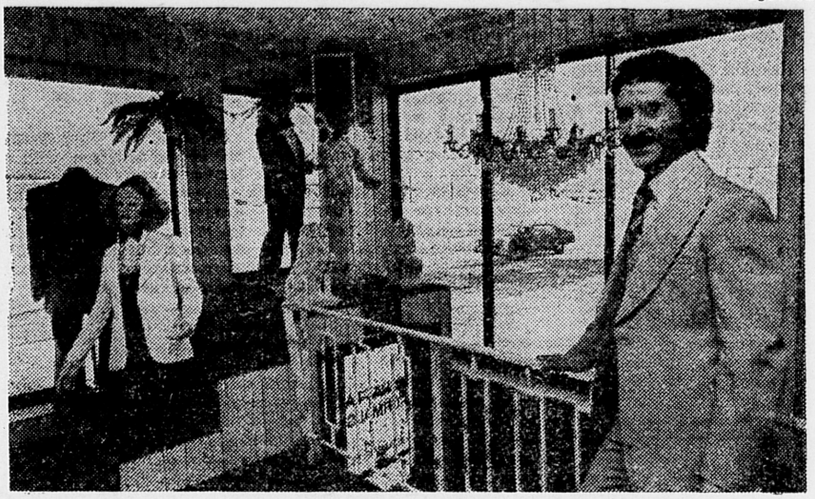
All this updated elegance, Dimitri states, is at old fashioned prices.

All of his lovely, sophisticated, soft flowing gowns are at strictly, strictly 'popular prices'.

He has to be popular with you, and your pocketbook! Being new...he feels he can't afford to be higher, but he can afford to give you a super, elegant wedding...in every price range... with the attention and personal service that will create a look that is distinctively you!

So that all the wonderful dreams a bride has had about her wedding day will come true.

Dimitri is open evenings and by appointment.



Dimitri welcomes you to quality.

The 'perfection syndrome'

If new brides share one fault above all in common, it is probably that of just plain trying too hard to be "the perfect wife."

The first months of marriage may find the newlywed woman caught up in a frenetic whirl of gourmet cooking and baking, French pressing, spit-'n-polishing – all done at the same time she is trying to adjust to her new spouse.

There is no real "cure" for this syndrome (which is not restricted to the female sex — you can be sure that the new groom is going through the same tortures in his self-imposed new roles of Don Juan, the Great Protector, Mr. Fix-It, Solomon, and the King of Muscle Beach!).

But it's a good idea for newlyweds to remember that no one in the world can (or will!) expect these towering heights of perfection, and he or she who adjusts slowly and reasonably will not be filled with guilt when the souffle falls or the new shelf comes crashing down.

Kept spinning

Back in the days of our great-great grandmothers, it was customary for the entire bridal trousseau to be hand embroidered. In fact, girls started at a very early age to "spin" and embroider the linens for their "hope chests." Those who never married continued to embroider and spin — hence the origin of "spinster."

Marco Polo wedding gifts

For one of the largest arrays of tabletop items to complement anyone's taste and decor of china and crystal, the Marco Polo store, located just before Wellesley College on Central St., in Wellesley has what you want. No doubt about it!

Complementing a bridal registry which the Marco Polo people entertain a special pride, a broad selection of the tabletop accessories including top quality china, glass and crystal are always at your disposal.

As Manager Arnold Hebert,who has been in th gift retail business and garden retail for 35 years, points out, "Marco Polo can fulfill anyone's need when it comes to gift giving".

The bridal registry at Marco Polo, unparalleled to many, is the largest in the area. "We have added to the gift lines", added Hebert.

Top brand names such as Royal, Copenhagen, Lenox and Royal Dalton can be had at Marco Polo's for the china and crystal shopper for possible prospective brides, or even for a spur of the moment gift buyer.

Other offerings at Marco Polo - and you can't help but to notice that name - is a garden section, a unique feature for a gift shop. And who isn't diddling around with some type of plants and accessories nowadays?

There are house plants and materials for 'light' gardening (gardening with use of indoor lights).

You can't miss an extensive candle shop, also offered at this unique establishment. Colonial candles are featured.

A selling point of which Manager Hebert is also very proud is a 10 person staff, "Very friendly and courteous group ready and willing to serve". Included in the fine staff at Marco Polo is bridal consultant Judie Chapman

A super special offering are the hand cut Waterford Crystal, imported from Ireland. You can bet it is one item most customers will not be fondling, without a very special interest.

Spring is one of the big times of the year to have gifts ready for marriage thinkers and friends, and the Marco Polo people are ready. The buyers are at the gift shows and stocking up.

With accessible parking available in the rear of the building, everything is there for you. Try it, you'll like it!

Follow in a queen's footsteps with rich, platinum set ring

The first bride to succumb to the allure of a platinum set engagement ring was Queen Alexandria of England. It was her love of fine jewelry that prompted her to command that even the crown jewels be set in platinum.

While today's bride may not have an assortment of gems to be concerned about, she should opt for the very finest of jewelry metals when choosing her diamond engagement ring or wedding band.

Platinum's silvery white color complements diamonds perfectly and never sheds any unwanted lights on the stone that you're so proudly showing to friends.

Whether your taste demands modern or a traditional style, rings made of platinum will wear longer, never discolor the skin and most importantly hold a diamond with greater security than any other metal.

Because platinum prongs and settings hold your stone so well, there's rarely a worry regarding the loss of a diamond or the fine points of a marquise, pear, square or baguette diamond becoming chipped or broken.

TIME HONORED SYMBOLS of love like engagement and wedding rings deserve to be made of platinum, the time honored and most precious jewelry metal.

Honeymoon travelers

Everyone needs a travel agent if he or she want to head out, whether it be for business, pleasure, study, or simply 'old shoeing it.'

Harry Fisher of Fisher Travel in Dedham Square is the man to see. "Right now is the busiest season", said the vivacious Fisher, who himself travels 12 weeks out of the year.

When asked which worldly landmark is his favorite, the travel man replies, "The last one, and the next one will be even better".

It's always nice to find a business where the manager-owner has a smile.

Fisher Travel has been in Dedham Square for the past 15 years, serving anyone who gets the travel itch. For honeymooners, which Fisher Travel is well renowned , a remote island where the biggest hotel has 15 rooms and a French chef, or a penthouse suite in Rome is only a phone call away.

Or you may be up for an 'old shoe' affair where the only items you will need in your suitcase is a pair of dungarees, sandals and a T-shirt. "We have had customers who have gone to the small island of Bequia in the West Indies for a ten day jaunt, then find they want to cash in their return trip tickets, with a post card reading, "Thanks a lot Harry, just what we needed. It's even better than you described".

"Because we are small, we can sit down and talk to our customers", said Fisher, who also takes his young son with him twice-a-year on trips.

Relates Fisher, "He will often say to me, 'Why can't we go back to the same place we went before', and I will say, 'Well, don't you want to discover new places so you can have even better places to look forward to?"

Good logic.

Walk in and tell Harry Fisher what you want, maybe how much money you have to spend, and he will have a place which will be perfect for you to go.

Fisher Travel is open Monday - Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., open Wednesday until 7 p.m., and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

All major charge programs are accepted at Fisher Travel.

Don't be left at the gate— have your passports prepared

If you and your fiance are planning a honeymoon abroad, you will need to do some extra planning and pre-nuptial appointment-making to be sure that you don't spend your first hours of bliss trapped in a customs office for insufficient documentation!

You should apply for your passports at least two months before your departure, in order to allow extra time for processing.

Because the bride is not legally a "Mrs." until the wedding, you will more than likely be traveling with separate passports, hers under her maiden name, and you will need to carry with you your certified marriage license.

When you return from your trip your passports may be revised to show your marital status

To apply for a passport, you need either a birth certificate, naturalization certificate, or a former passport. You will also need another proof of identification carrying your photograph or description and signature (a driver's license, for example).

The passport office requires two additional photos of you taken within the last 6 months, 2" by 3", on a plain light background (snapshots or photos taken in coin-operated photo booths will not do — best have professional passport pictures made)

Your passport will take two to three weeks to process, and is good for five years. Bon voyage!

Budget and avoid a fight

"Two can live as cheaply as one..." sounds good, but newlyweds find out that it isn't really true. Trying to stretch a budget to cover both everyday living expenses and new home furnishings requires some careful planning.

Avoid letting tight money mar the foundation of your new lifetime partnership. Instead, work out a reasonable budget based on mutual priorities where money should be spent.

To make out a budget, identify fixed costs, such as rent, mortgage and taxes, versus variable expenses. Just subtract fixed costs from after-tax income' and what's left is spendable.

Here are some ways to economize without feeling the "pinch."

1. Whenever possible' cook from scratch. Convenience foods generally cost more than the basic ingredients needed to cook the same meal. And your personal culinary efforts are sure to produce a better tasting meal' as well.

2. Dry-cleaning bills can't be avoided, but you can cut down on these expenses by using spot remover to get rid rid of spots on non-washable fabrics.

3. Plan ahead when buying furniture. Unless your first apartment or house is the one you intend to live in for several years, it may be more practical not to purchase expensive furnishings right away. Keep future plans in mind and try to choose not only furniture, but fabrics, which will be durable.

4. Do leave room in your budget for entertaining and evenings out. After all, the work of setting up a new household, both of you deserve time to play and enjoy being married.

5. Put money away for either continuing education or personal enrichment, such as books for today everyone is under pressure to continue getting better educated in order to become better as income earners.

Ritz being restored

The elegant Ritz Hotel, London's haunt of the rich and famous for more than 70 years, was recently sold to the same conglomerate that owns the liner, Queen Elizabeth 2.

The new owners, Trafalgar House Investments Ltd., recently paid about $5.5 million dollars for the privilege of undertaking a massive restoration project.

According to Victor Matthews, Managing Director of the Trafalgar House, considerable money will be spent to restore the hotel to its former state of grandeur. Great care will be taken to keep all the famous touches that made the Ritz Hotel world famous.

The Ritz, synonymous with aristocrats, champagne and caviar, once hosted four crowned heads of Europe at the same time.

The new owners do not aim to change the character of the grand lady of hotels but simply to restore and renew it so that once again its traditional image will offer visitors a sample of world famous hospitality.

The famous "Putting on the Ritz" and the London slogan for tourists — "A tour of London begins with tea at the Ritz" — will once again resound through the grand gallery of the famous Ritz.

With a beautiful brook setting outside ideal for photographs, "a guaranteed good time" is assured at Chesterbrook.

For accommodations, it is a good idea to call well ahead for reservations. "With more time for preparation, a better time is even more in the making, explained Destry.

A friendly atmosphere conducive to all age groups, Chesterbrook will for sure be the place you want to gather with friends on that very special occasion.

Flame of love

The diamond, as we all know, is the most common stone used for an engagement ring. Ever wonder why? Contrary to Lorelei Lee, it's not because they're a girl's best friend!

It is actually a tradition that dates back to early Italy where it was believed that the diamond was a stone born from the flames of love.

A new, affordable house

An innovative new low-cost home introduced on a national scale offers new hope to thousands of American families who have seen their dreams of individual home ownership destroyed by high prices.

The 1325 square foot home, which resulted from a year-long project sponsored by Family Circle Magazine, contains three bedrooms and a den, in addition to a living-dining area, full kitchen, two full bathrooms and a utility room. Complete with furnace, refrigerator, range, carpet, wall finishes and draperies, the home will sell for $21,900 to $24,900, excluding land, depending on location in the United States.

Called the "Family Circle Good Value House", the contemporary style home is the result of a combined program by Family Circle; Golden West Homes, Santa Ana, CA; Vindale Corporation, Dayton, OH; and Armstrong Cork Company.

The home will be built and distributed in the West by Golden West and in the East by Vindale through a network of dealers. Each selected dealer will have a model home duplicating the prototype. Many people in the United States will be able to see the home within easy driving distance.

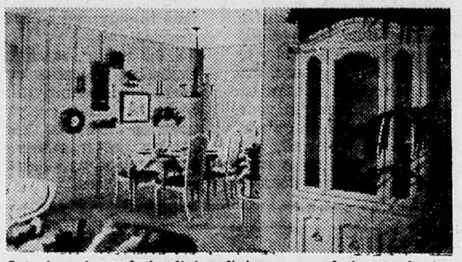
Featuring brand name materials, both inside and out, the Good Value House also contains many ideas for do-it-yourself interior design projects to further enhance its value.

The project was initiated because of increasing concern about thousands of Americans unable to buy single family homes as a result of escalating costs. Only about 15 percent of American families can now afford new homes which start at an average of about $40,000.

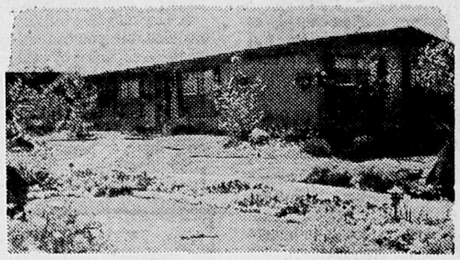
Working together, they designed a home with completely new treatments inside and out that could be produced throughout the country in plants operated by both manufacturers. The home will be available for installation in mobile home communities or on private lots where local zoning permits. After ordering, it will be available within a matter of weeks.

"Actually, what we have accomplished is a blending of the best advantages offered by both manufactured and traditional site-built homes," Hettich said.

Although the base price of the home does not include furniture, most display models will be completely furnished with a similar group. These furnishing may be available at a special price to consumers who desire them.



Interior view of the living-dining area of the newly introduced "Good Value House". A major feature of the home is an unobstructed traffic flow throughout. Home includes three bedrooms, a den and utility room in addition to livingdining area.



The "Good Value House" features attractive use of materials both inside and out. The exterior includes full-size windows, recessed entry and rough sawn exterior siding. The new home will be available throughout the United States.

The Happiest day is here...and even the sun is smiling. Ready to receive by the gazebo, she wears the discretely elegant gown with neckline framed in delicate appliques. He subscribes to traditional trends wearing long tailcoat in new shade of snappy ginger with matching color shirt, tie, groom sash and flare bottom trousers. Satin framing on the jacket adds a touch of resplendence.

New fashions for groom add color

A survey of 1975 brides conducted for a leading bridal publication revealed that 75% of all first marriages took place in a house of worship. A best man and ushers were included in 80% of all wedding parties. A reception for guests was planned by 90.8% of all the respondents.

It is apparent that the wedding scene continues to be a stronghold of tradition despite the faddists, cultists, and sensation-seekers.

For spring '77 the bride continues to reign supreme on her day, dressed most often in traditional white. The look of total femininity is expressed in lace and applique trims on clinging bodices, see-through effects on sleeves and a variety of headpieces ranging from small half hats to mantillas.

The big news on the nuptial scene this year throws the spotlight on fashions for the groom and his men, according to Robert C. Rudofker, President of After Six, America's largest designers and producers of men's formals.

Previewing his company's new spring formal collection, Rudofker stated, "Young men have responded to the feeling of dashing romanticism we've captured in an expression of color harmony and two very distinctive silhouettes.

"Last year," he continued, "we streamlined the tailcoat and suggested that this be worn by the groom to distinguish him from the other men in the wedding party

"We're advocating this style for spring in fresh soft shades of ice blue, snappy ginger, sunshine yellow, sandy beige, and white."

Fine fashions at Lords and Ladies

Lord and Lady's Formal owner Steve Vaslaw pretty much typifies his store and its success in Watertown, located almost directly across from Watertown High School on Rte. 16.

He is 33-years-old and has owned the store since its inception six years ago. "It is probably one of the biggest reasons for the success of the business, it has really helped us to be able to relate to the 'Now Girl'", said the articulate owner.

Offering a vast array of bridal and men's formal in the 4,500 sq. ft. building, which is totally allocated to the bridal business, Lord and Lady's Formal carries attire for all formal affairs, in addition to that special occasion.

"We have a full line of special occasion and evening dresses", said Vaslaw.

The bridesmaids gowns and bridal wear selections are one of the largest around, according to Vaslaw, with a price range that can meet anyones needs, limits or expectations.

With a staff of 18, Lord and Lady's Formal does all work on the premises, including seaming and pressing and all maintenance of the gowns.

And included in the large setting for future brides and grooms, are two plush bridal rooms, complete with shag rugs and chandeliers, and three bridesmaids rooms.

Watch your weight, mate

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Meet the world's best weight-watcher . . . your bathroom scale!

If you're weight-conscious, or should be, a good scale is your best friend. Always there when you need it, a good scale should be honest and reliable, ready to warn you of trouble abead. Choose your scale as carefully as you would any friend, and give it the care and attention a good friend deserves. Keep in touch!

We find it surprising that many people don't own scales — or rarely use them. Some people cut down on their eating when their clothes "get too tight." A good scale would tip them off three weeks earler, well before the popped-button stage!

Then there are people whose scales lie. Lots of overweights have a fondness for flatterers . . . scales that shave off a few pounds. If the perfidious gadget malfunctioned in the other direction or was used to weigh postage or packages . . . they'd toss it out with the trash.

We have a friend whose scale told her she weighed 148 when 155 was closer to the truth. It was rusted and paint-stained, but she clung to it loyally because she couldn't bear to see the dial go past 150. "I'm not kidding myself," she protested. "I know it's off by 8 or 10 pounds, but what's the.harm? When it goes past 150, I cut down. So what if it's really-158!" One day it stopped working altogether and she was.given a shiny new scale for Mother's Day. Since then she's kept her real weight 10 pounds below her former level. So much for what's-the-harm of flattering scales!

WEIGH DAILY: Once upon a time it was a diet article axiom that you should-weigh yourself only once a week. Because time of day, clothing, fluid retention, and hormone levels can cause a scale to bounce up or down 3 or 4 pounds without regard to fat loss, a daily weigh-in was thought to be too discouraging.

We have never shared that opinion. We think it's much more discouraging to have a whole week's calorie-watching go seeminqly unrewarded because you pick the wrong morning in the week to weigh yourself. Since weight-watching is an every day affair, tipping the scales daily sets the proper tone for the day. No matter which way the scale goes, it can spur you on to better effort. Lost a pound7 Keep up the good work, nothing succeeds like success! Gained a pound? Today we'll try harder.

If, despite your best efforts, the scale heads the wrong way several days-in a row, than it's time to seek reasons. There are no "unexplainable weight gains." You're either eating more calories than you think you are, or you've cut your activity.

When the scale stands still or rises despite several days on the caloric straight-and-narrow, you may be retaining excess fluid, an explanation not to be taken lightly.

A trip to the doctor, a check on blood pressure and salt intake, are all in order. Repeated constipation also calls for medical advice and major change in food choices.

MORE TIPS: — A doctor's-type scale is the best and most accurate, if you have the room and money for one. Check a medical supply-house or, for a cheaper version, look at general merchandise mail order catalogs. Cheaper still, buy one second hand: watch the want ads, flea markets, used medical, school and office supply outlets.

— Or: Carry your bathroom scale to the doctor's scale and check it against that one for accuracy. Adjust your scale at least twice a year.

— If you live in two places — home and school, or a summer place— have two scales, "here" and "there" especially if "there" is where you gain.

— Put a scale.on your "wish list" if you're moving out. What better "apartment-warming" or wedding gift.

— Weighed the same way every day: Same time and place. Same state of undress. Pick the time you'll get the most flattering honest answer: unshod, unclothed and unfed, first thing every morning.

How may calories.a day should you eat to weight what you want to be? Learn your personalized calorie quotient for your age, build and activity level.

The perfect match.

Eliot Savings for financial security

The Eliot Savings Bank is somewhat of a new member to the Needham business family, just recently coming to Needham early this past December. But the bank, whose roots go as far back as 1864 when it was incorporated in Roxbury, has lost little time in achieving a closeness to the Needham community and surrounding towns.

Two drive-up windows, plenty of free parking and hours to make banking available for every member of the family, Eliot gives the local depositor up to 15 options of security.

A full range of savings accounts include: regular accounts, notice accounts, term deposit certificates, retirement accounts, NOW accounts and Christmas and vacation accounts.

In addition, at Eliot home mortgages, travelers checks, savings bank life insurance, direct deposit of social security checks, sold and redeemed U.S. Savings Bonds and banking by mail is at your disposal.

Eliot President Howell R. Wood and Vice President Treasurer Charles P. Read and a staff of eight are awaiting all Needham residents with open arms. Eliot Savings Bank, since coming to Needham has been doing excellently well, because they serve the people of the community well.

Four fulltime tellers and two part-time tellers are at the windows for you Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

As is evident above, these aren't the 'typical bankers hours' which make it difficult for you or anyone else to find the time to get to the bank.

Eliot Savings is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

A meaningful service

Of all the ceremonies of life, the wedding is without a doubt the most festive, joyous, and the best-loved. No matter how much times may change and customs vary, the expression of love, faith, and trust found in the wedding ceremony is a constant source of inspiration.

Even with the current trend toward alternate lifestyles that do not involve the commitment of marriage, statistics prove that marriages are as popular as ever, and there has been an increase in the 70's in people "tying the knot."

Today's couples have more opportunities than ever to enrich this vital ceremony of life with their own personal expressions, and make their wedding truly the most meaningful event of their lives.

Gone are the days of the standard-looking bridal gown, the days when Lohengrin was the only bridal march to be heard, the days when couples had little choice but to promise to love, honor and obey — even though they felt there was so much more to be said.

The clergy and marriage counselors alike now encourage couples to find the music and words for their wedding ceremony which truly express what they feel for each other and their future together.

If they decide that the traditional bridal chorus and church vows are just what they want, that's fine. But in their search they will have gained from the rewarding experience of creating a joint definition of their own future plans.

This new freedom to modify, even break away from the traditional, carries through to the dress, reception plans, gift giving and honeymoon styles of today's newlyweds.

Color is appearing in today's wedding dresses, dresses which may vary from very formal to short and simply smashing, from frilly and laced to tailored and sleek.

Receptions range from simple tea and cake gatherings to exotic banquets — even sit-down dinners — with all kinds of new and different delicacies; but whatever the budget and size, all is done with a special personal flair.

Guests are spending more time in the selection of a gift for the newlywedded couple, concentrating on individuality and seeking out presents that are true reflections of the new couple's lifestyle.

All in all, the key word for today's wedding is personal, with all the emphasis placed on making each and every aspect of the wedding ceremony a vital expression of the two distinct personalities who have decided to make that most loving and giving of commitments.

It is a delightful occasion for all involved, and should reflect both the joy and dignity which have always marked this special ceremony of life.

Mobility: Key to America's freedom

In America's Bicentennial year, many historical highlights were recalled: the colonies' declaration and battle for independence, the new nation's constitution and guarantees of freedom.

But as historian Richard A. Bartlett notes in his text on the American frontier from 1776-1890, "The New Country", the dominant force in America's history — the force that even more than the Constitution guaranteed freedom — was mobility:

"In the new country freedom meant mobility, the freedom to roam. It was this implicitly understood aspect of American life, assumed to be in the nature of things, that led a man to go whither his whims or his hopes led him to better his life. Mobility was, and is, an integral part of freedom; without it the whole concept as Americans know it, would collapse."

Throughout America's history, mobility has meant do-it-yourself moving. Today, three-fourths of all families that move each year — moving to seek new homes, new jobs, new opportunities — do so by do-it-yourself means. Indeed, do-it-yourself moving is an American tradition.

Not just the method, but the direction, routes and costs of moving have remained generally unchanged over the past two centuries. As the new nation expanded, pioneers rumbled westward across the continent in covered wagons, following the National Highway and the Oregon Trail. Today, families still move westward, now largely in rented trucks and trailers, along interstate highways, many of which follow old pioneer trails.

Joseph Ware's "Emigrants' Guide to California", published in 1849, listed the cost of outfitting a covered wagon, with four yoke of oxen and supplies to sustain a pioneer family for one year at $600. Among the 2'500 pounds of suggested cargo were 800 pounds of flour, 700 pounds of bacon, 75 pounds of coffee, 200 pounds of lard, 200 pounds of beans, 100 pounds of dried fruit, and 25 pounds of salt and pepper. Cooking utensils, tools, ammunition, extra axles, and "private baggage" (including beds, furniture or other household goods) were limited to 400 pounds. The journey, roughly from Kansas City to Portland, Oregon, took up to six months.

Modern families, in spite of 120 years of economic inflation, can move more for less. A rental trailer with a capacity of about 2,800 pounds, costs $151 for an eight-day trip from Kansas City to Portland. A 24-foot rental truck, with a capacity of 8,000 pounds of cargo rents for $430 for the same trip.

En route conveniences have changed, of course, but surprisingly the prices haven't. In the 1860's, when the Overland Stage Line was hauling passengers from Missouri to Denver, riders could partake of meals at stations along the route. Writers of the era described the meals as "the same, breakfast, dinner and supper were undistinguishable save by the hour"; "doughnuts, green and poisonous with saleratus, suspicious eggs in a massive greasy fritter, and rusty bacon, intolerably fat;" and "the usual meal is fat ham and eggs or boiled pork potatoes, and bread that looks as if it were baked in black ashes, while the coffee is the very vilest stuff." Prices for these treats ran from $1 to $1.50.

Today, of course, families can stop at any number of franchised food stands and eat for about $1 per person. The food may not be gourmet, but it is uniform, tasty and nutritious.

So the how, the where, and the how much of moving has not changed much over the years — people are still moving themselves, ever westward, at 1860-era prices. But what of the "why" of moving? Why did people move 150 years ago, and why do they move today?

Modern couples buy furniture of simplicity and flexibility

Today's newlyweds face an unprecedented challenge — future shock. Beyond the traditional complexities of setting up a new home and a new life lies the pressure of constant change.

The modern couple must plan on creating their home environment with the sure knowledge that it is likely to be but the first of many. Being well educated, informed consumers, they are quite wisely searching for furniture which has permanent value. Great care and selectivity is exercised in finding just the right "investment pieces" which are beautiful, functional and yet can move with graceful adaptability to new and different locations and color schemes.

Family size and activities will be varied over the years. The couple will experience changes in decorating taste. Their needs will constantly be altered and modified with the flux of developing careers and social life. And all this will be done with the added burden of rising construction costs and often steadily diminishing living space.

One of the most effective ways to make the most of existing space is with the use of wall systems which, while lifting the furniture off the floor, organize and simplify storage problems. The system can grow with the addition of more shelves or storage components and can be easily rearranged or even removed when ready for the next move.

A wise choice of easy-care upholstered pieces, area rug, electric fireplace and functional cube furniture give this room an inviting cozy, comfortable look.

Safekeeping at Suffolk Franklin

Since 1908, Savings Bank Life Insurance has provided people in Massachusetts with life insurance protection at the lowest possible cost. Its stability and success has served as a model for similar, but independent, systems established in New York and Connecticut.

Anyone who works or lives in Massachusetts is eligible to buy up to $41,000 of Savings Bank Life Insurance with guaranteed cash and loan values (on all permanent insurance) with the first anniversary. Dividends are also payed which can reduce the cost even further.

"Our life insurance programs are equivalent in coverage and less expensive compared to other life insurance policies," Pat Corkum, Savings Bank Life Insurance Officer at Suffolk Franklin Bank explained. "Most insurance companies maintain a sales staff with commissions and expenses which are passed on to the policy holder. Savings Bank Life Insurance is sold through mutual savings banks and our representatives are not paid a commission, nor do they incur travel and other miscellaneous expenses when they sell a policy. When our costs are less, we pass these savings on to the customer."

Like other insurance programs, Savings Bank Life Insurance offers plans to fit any individual or family circumstances. Permanent life insurance and endowment life insurance are both available with dividends, and cash and loan values beginning in the first year. Riders to these policies are available for spouse or children. Special purpose plans such as 5-year renewable term insurance, decreasing term, and 10-year modified life can also be obtained at any mutual savings bank.

Herbert Gray, of Suffolk Franklin said, "Our branch managers and customer service representatives are trained to provide you with competent, impartial advice in this area." He added, "If you compare coverage and premium costs of your present programs, you will see why over half a million people have made Savings Bank Life Insurance part of their financial and life insurance portfolios."

The annual premium for a $10,000 straight life policy at age 30 (also referred to as ordinary or whole life) with dividends, and cash and loan values beginning with the first anniversary would be $142.80. The annual policy for the equivalent policy from other insurance companies could range from $152.10 to $211.70. (Savings Bank Life Insurance can offer up to $15,000 in coverage without a medical examination through age 35.)

Suffolk Franklin is the fourth largest savings bank in Massachusetts. A Mutual Savings Bank and a member of both the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Deposit Insurance Fund of Massachusetts, Suffolk Franklin has 14 offices serving the family financial needs of Boston and surrounding neighborhoods.

Sheets are off and 'in'

Sheets have come from the days of a linen closet necessity to one of the hottest and most fashionable items in the retail market!

Sheets are in. There are now designer sheets, washable satin sheets, sheets with museum print reproductions, round sheets, waterbed sheets, even heart-shaped sheets!

With such a sheet boom in progress, it's only natural that decorators and designers everywhere are coming up with hundreds of unique ideas for taking the sheet off the bed and putting it into the total decor of the home.

One favorite non-bed use of sheets is for wall-hangings: sheets can be gathered slightly and hung from the ceiling of one or more walls of a room for a richly-draped, coordinated effect.

The only limit is your own creativity!

Outfitting the tiny Ms.

Fourteen million American Ms. measure up to mini standards as they stand tall at between 4'10" and 5'4" and weigh in at under 115 pounds. For them, being up-to-the-minute in their wardrobe and without the costly and time-consuming need for major alterations has usually posed a problem. So a fashion expert in miniature measurements, Matthew Love, has translated the expertise gained in garbing pre-teens into a collection for the petite Ms. that takes the sophisticated stance in silhouette, fabric and color that the petite of any age is looking for.

Dresses lead the way in the Matthew Love for the Petite collection. By day, supersuede is importantly starred in sweat-shirt dresses and split skirt shirt-dresses, both carefully proportioned to give the small girl the longer length

Buying a house with a history

Like many young couples, Lee and Paul Pawlowski of Dedham had in mind the kind of house they wanted to buy and the kind of house they could afford. And like many young couples, they expected to find the kind of house they could afford...which is usually somewhat short of what one wants.

During their search, they came across a huge, red brick house on which had been an old inn built in 1801. They never asked to see the inside because they thought they couldn't afford it. However, some urging on the part of a real estate agent, and natural curiousity prevailed and they went through the house. They decided, mostly, mostly as a lark, to bid.

"We made then them an offer they could refuse," said Paul wryly. To the Pawlowski's astonishment, the bid was accepted. The house was theirs.

In January of 1976, they moved in along with their two year old daughter, Allegra. The house used to be the Norfolk Hotel or Norfolk House. Since Dedham was on the direct road to Boston from Boston to Providence, there were many taverns in the town and Norfolk House was one of the last old taverns.

One of the last owners had a strong sense of history and in 1912 wrote a book entitled "Tale of a Dedham Tavern" which has been preserved and handed along from owner to owner.

The couple love the huge old house and the street on which it is built. Court Street, only a few feet from the center of Dedham, has a lovely Colonial feeling.

Paul, an architect, with Sasaki and Associates in Watertown, said they would not attempt to restore the house, but just ma "make it livable." They have a five year plan for the house. What appeals to them most is the "flow of space...it is comfortable and pleasant."

There are roughly 12 fireplaces in the house, two kitches, the remains of a once immense ballroom, a dining room and a huge living room, and many bedrooms. The house needed no structural work, said Paul, since the building was "sound and all the systems worked." They did have to make it airtight.

Top giftware selection at Stowell's

150 years is a long time.

Stowell's Jewelers of Boston, with a store in the Chestnut Hill Mall, as well as five other New England locations, has just entered its 151st year of service to the Boston and greater Boston community.

In the Gay Nineties, Americans were buying large valuable stones set in rings, earrings and pendants. Many Stowell's customers today still have in their possession jewelry purchased from Stowell's before the turn of the century.

Also sometimes known as the diamond headquarters in the area, Stowell's offers a full selection of custom-made and personalized diamond jewelry and wedding rings.

Diamond covered house keys are also available for the 'hard-to-please' person on your gift list.

A wide selection of varied gifts for the bridal couple is a hallmark at Stowell's. An excellent selection of watches by Beauone, Mercier, Rolex, Omega, Movado and Seiko are there for your choice.

An immense silver collection includes Wallace, Towie, Kirk, Lunt and Reed and Barton. Steiff pewter items fit into every style of decorating and gift-giving. Crystal by Waterford, Val St. Lambert, Lalique & Orrefors makes a nice table presentation when it is combined with the traditional and modern patterns available in china.

Collectors who are serious about adding to their figurine collection will find many limited edition pieces at Stowell's. Royal Doulton figurines are always welcomed by collectors, as are the Royal Copenhagen and Bing & Grondahl plates. Lenox and Belleck accent pieces are in abundance at Stowell's. Limited edition Cybis figurines are beautifully executed Carousel animal figures and make excellent conversational pieces in the home because of their exquisite and intricate workmanship.

Stowell's convenient charge plans, and BankAmericard and Master Charge are at your disposal while browsing at Stowell's.
